LIMITED PARTNERSHIP INTERESTS

General

This confidential Private Placement Memorandum (as it may be amended, restated or supplemented from time to time, this “Memorandum”), dated April 2026, is furnished on a confidential basis to a limited number of sophisticated investors primarily domiciled in countries of the European Economic Area (“EEA”) or the United Kingdom (“UK”) for the purpose of providing certain information about an investment in limited partnership interests (the “Interests,” and each purchaser thereof, a “Limited Partner”) of Macquarie Alliance Partners Infrastructure Fund II SCSp a special limited partnership (société en commandite spéciale) established under the laws of the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg (the “Partnership,” and together with Macquarie Alliance Partners Infrastructure Fund II, L.P., a Delaware limited partnership (the “Main Fund”) any Alternative Vehicles, Parallel Funds and/or Feeder Funds (each as defined herein), “MAPIF II” or the “Fund”). A reference to the Partnership will be deemed to also include a reference to its Parallel Funds and Alternative Vehicles if the context so requires. Capitalized terms used throughout this Memorandum have the meanings ascribed to such terms in Section 10 — “Detailed Term Sheet” or as otherwise defined herein. For the avoidance of doubt, this Memorandum does not constitute an offer for, or solicitation to invest in any Parallel Fund (including, without limitation the Main Fund).

The Partnership is a special limited partnership (société en commandite spéciale) formed under the laws of the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg, and in particular the law of 10 August 1915 on commercial companies, as amended (the “Company Law”). MAPIF II Luxembourg GP S.à r.l., a private limited liability company (société à responsabilité limitée) incorporated under the laws of the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg, serves as the managing general partner (associé commandité-gérant) of the Partnership (the “General Partner”). Macquarie Alliance Partners Holdings Pty Limited, a Macquarie affiliate and an Australian limited company, will be a special limited partner of the Partnership (the “Founder Partner”) and will be entitled to receive carried interest distributions as disclosed in this Memorandum. The Founder Partner is not authorized to carry out any act of management nor to bind the Partnership.

The Partnership qualifies as an externally managed alternative investment fund (“AIF”) within the meaning of Directive 2011/61/EU of 8 June 2011 on Alternative Investment Fund Managers, as implemented in any relevant jurisdiction, together with Commission Delegated Regulation (EU) No 231/2013, as well as any similar or supplementary law, rule or regulation, including as implemented, assimilated, amended, replaced, reenacted, and/or consolidated in the United Kingdom pursuant to applicable legislation including the UK Alternative Investment Fund Managers Regulations 2013/1773, and in each case as amended from time to time, including as amended in the EEA by Directive (EU) 2024/927 (the “AIFMD”), and is registered with the Registre de Commerce et des Sociétés of the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg under number B305749.

The registered office of the Partnership is located at 20, boulevard Royal, L-2449 Luxembourg, Grand Duchy of Luxembourg. The Partnership holds a register at its registered office including an up-to-date version of the limited partnership agreement of the Partnership, a list of the Partners of the Partnership and the Interests held by each of them and in which the Administrator (as defined herein) will record any transfer of the Interests.

The portfolio management function of the Partnership is performed by Macquarie Alliance Partners Management, LLC (the “Portfolio Manager”). Macquarie Asset Management Europe S.à r.l, a private limited liability company (société à responsabilité limitée) incorporated under the laws of the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg (the “AIFM”), has been appointed as the external alternative investment fund manager of the Partnership by the General Partner. The AIFM is in charge inter alia of the risk management function of the Partnership, but it has delegated portfolio management of the Partnership to the Portfolio Manager. The AIFM will be responsible for the proper and independent valuation of the assets of the Partnership.

The AIFM has been authorized by the Commission de Surveillance du Secteur Financier of the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg (the “CSSF”) as an alternative investment fund manager pursuant to the law of 12 July 2013 on Alternative Investment Fund Managers, as may be amended from time to time, which has implemented the AIFMD in Luxembourg (the “AIFM Law”).

Any reference herein to rights, powers or duties exercised or performed by the AIFM will be exercised by the AIFM pursuant to the alternative investment fund management agreement entered into between the AIFM and the General Partner in its capacity as managing general partner of the Partnership (as amended, restated or supplemented from time to time, the “AIFM Agreement”). Any reference herein to rights, powers or duties exercised or performed by the Portfolio Manager will be exercised by the Portfolio Manager either pursuant to the investment management agreement entered into between the AIFM and the Portfolio Manager (as amended, restated or supplemented from time to time, the “Portfolio Management Agreement”), or pursuant to a specific delegation of powers granted to the Portfolio Manager by the General Partner or the AIFM.

The Partnership does not qualify, and has not been authorized by the CSSF, as (i) an undertaking for collective investment under the law of 17 December 2010 relating to undertakings for collective investment, (ii) a specialised investment fund under the law of 13 February 2007 relating to specialized investment funds, nor (iii) an investment company in risk capital under the law of 15 June 2004 relating to the investment company in risk capital. Any representation to the contrary is unlawful.

The information in this Memorandum is based on information provided by General Partner, and from other sources, including the AIFM and the Portfolio Manager, which is the portfolio manager of the Fund and its predecessor fund, Macquarie Alliance Partners Infrastructure Fund, L.P. (together with its parallel funds, feeder vehicles, alternative investment vehicles and other related fund vehicles, “MAPIF I”).

This Memorandum is distributed on behalf of the General Partner, an entity within the Solutions Division of Macquarie Asset Management (“MAM”), in the U.S. by Macquarie Asset Management Solutions (“MAMS”), a division of Macquarie Capital (USA) Inc. (“MCUSA”), a U.S. registered broker-dealer and member of FINRA, and in Canada by MAMS and Macquarie Infrastructure and Real Assets (Sales) Canada Ltd, a Canadian exempt market dealer, in Luxembourg and certain member states of the European Economic Area (the “EEA”) by the AIFM, in the United Kingdom by Macquarie Infrastructure and Real Assets (Europe) Limited, in Austria by Macquarie Investment Management Austria Kapitalanlage AG (“MIMAK”), a marketing intermediary of the AIFM, and in Switzerland by Macquarie Investment Management Switzerland GmbH, each of which is an affiliate of the General Partner, and in other jurisdictions, by one or more entities on the General Partner’s behalf, which are also affiliates of the General Partner.

In the EEA, the AIFM has the right to terminate the arrangements made for marketing of the Partnership, in certain jurisdictions and to certain investors in accordance with applicable laws and regulations, including the AIFMD provisions.

Other than Macquarie Bank, any Macquarie Group entity noted in this Memorandum is not an authorized deposit-taking institution for the purposes of the Banking Act 1959 (Commonwealth of Australia). The obligations of these other Macquarie Group entities do not represent deposits or other liabilities of Macquarie Bank. Macquarie Bank does not guarantee or otherwise provide assurance in respect of the obligations of these other Macquarie Group entities. In addition, (a) the investor is subject to investment risk including possible delays in repayment and loss of income and principal invested and (b) none of Macquarie Bank or any other Macquarie Group entity guarantees any particular rate of return on or the performance of the investment, nor do they guarantee repayment of capital in respect of the investment.

This Memorandum is to be used by the prospective investor to which it is furnished solely in connection with the consideration of the purchase of the Interests described herein. This Memorandum contains confidential, proprietary, trade secret and other commercially sensitive information and should be treated in a confidential manner and may not be reproduced or used in whole or in part for any other purpose, nor may it be disclosed without the prior written consent of the General Partner. Recipients of this Memorandum will cause their representatives to comply with the foregoing. You should not (and should take reasonable steps to ensure that your representatives who have received this information will not) use the information contained herein in such a way so as to do anything that breaches any applicable laws or regulations in relation to any securities of any entity that may be discussed in this Memorandum, including trading in any securities, derivative instruments or other financial products in relation to such entities, and aiding, abetting, counselling or procuring any other party to trade in the same. This Memorandum may not be copied, reproduced, distributed or used in whole or in part for any other purpose, nor may it or any of the information it contains be disclosed or furnished to any other person without the prior written consent of Macquarie. This Memorandum may not be copied, reproduced, distributed or used in whole or in part for any other purpose, nor may it or any of the information it contains be disclosed or furnished to any other person without the prior written consent of Macquarie.

This Memorandum constitutes, and the contents hereof contain information which are strictly confidential and should not be disclosed by any recipient under the Freedom of Information Act (“FOIA”) or any similar state, local or foreign laws, statutes or regulations (collectively “Disclosure Laws”), in reliance upon exceptions available for material of this type. By accepting and maintaining these materials, except as otherwise provided in a written agreement between the recipient of this Memorandum and the Portfolio Manager, if the recipient receives a request under any applicable Disclosure Law to provide, copy or allow inspection of this Memorandum or other information regarding or otherwise relating to the Portfolio Manager or the Fund, the recipient agrees to (i) provide prompt notice of the request to the Portfolio Manager, (ii) assert all applicable exemptions available under law and (iii) cooperate with the Portfolio Manager to seek to prevent disclosure or to obtain a protective order or other assurance that the information regarding or otherwise relating to the Portfolio Manager or the Fund will be accorded confidential treatment in such manner as the Portfolio Manager may reasonably determine.

Notwithstanding anything in this Memorandum to the contrary, nothing in this Memorandum shall be construed as restricting the recipient's reporting of possible violations of U.S. federal or state law or regulation to any governmental agency or entity or self-regulatory organization, including the U.S. Department of Justice, the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (the "SEC"), the U.S. Congress, and any federal or state agency Inspector General, cooperating with any such governmental agency or entity or self-regulatory organization in connection with any such possible violation or making of other disclosures or taking other actions (including receiving any whistleblower award provided for under such laws or regulations) that are protected under the whistleblower provisions of federal or state law or regulation, in each case without any notice to or authorization from the Fund, the General Partner or Macquarie, in each case, to the extent required by the applicable federal or state law or regulation.

Notwithstanding anything in this Memorandum to the contrary, to comply with Treas. Reg. Section 1.6011-4(b)(3)(i), each recipient of this Memorandum (and any employee, representative or other agent thereof) may disclose to any and all persons, without limitation of any kind, the U.S. federal income tax treatment and tax structure of the Fund or any transactions undertaken by the Fund, it being understood and agreed, for this purpose, that (i) the name of or any other identifying information regarding (A) the Fund or any existing or future investor (or any affiliate thereof) in the Fund or (B) any investment or transaction entered into by the Fund, (ii) any performance information relating to the Fund or its investments, and (iii) any performance or other information relating to previous funds or investments managed or sponsored by Macquarie (as defined below) do not constitute such tax treatment or tax structure information.

The Interests have not been recommended, approved or disapproved by the SEC or by the securities regulatory authority of any state or of any other U.S. or non-U.S. jurisdiction, nor has the SEC or any such securities regulatory authority passed upon the accuracy or determined the adequacy of this Memorandum. Any representation to the contrary is a criminal offense.

The Interests have not been registered and are not expected to be registered under the U.S. Securities Act of 1933, as amended, and the rules and regulations promulgated thereunder (the "1933 Act"), the securities laws of any U.S. state or the securities laws of any other country or any other jurisdiction, nor is such registration contemplated. The Interests will be offered and sold in the United States under the exemption provided by Section 4(a)(2) of the 1933 Act and Rule 506 of Regulation D promulgated thereunder and other exemptions of similar import in the laws of the states and other jurisdictions where the offering will be made, and will be conditional upon, among other things, obtaining internal Macquarie, and in certain jurisdictions external, approvals. The Fund will not be registered as an investment company under the U.S. Investment Company Act of 1940, as amended, and the rules and regulations promulgated thereunder (the "1940 Act"). It is not expected that the Interests will be registered under Section 12(g) or any other provision of the U.S. Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended and the rules promulgated thereunder (the "Exchange Act"). There is no public market for the Interests, and no such market is expected to develop in the future. The Interests may not be sold or transferred (i) except as permitted under the Partnership's limited partnership agreement (as amended, restated or otherwise modified from time to time, the "Partnership Agreement") and (ii) unless they are registered under the 1933 Act and under any other applicable securities laws or an exemption from such registration thereunder is available. Each Limited Partner will be required to represent that it is a qualified investor under applicable securities laws and that it is acquiring its Interests for investment purposes and not with a view to resale or distribution and that it will only sell and transfer its Interest to a qualified investor under applicable securities laws or in a manner permitted by the Partnership Agreement and consistent with such laws.

Macquarie Asset Management Europe S.à r.l. (the "AIFM") may provide this Memorandum and other information regarding the Fund and the Interests to professional investors domiciled or with a registered office in the EEA ("EEA Investors") who have contacted the AIFM (or its affiliates or placement agents) at such EEA Investor's own initiative to request such information. Where information is provided in response to an own-initiative request by a prospective EEA Investor, such EEA Investor may not benefit from any protections or rights under the AIFMD as implemented in respect of any resulting subscription for Interests.

The information included herein identifies a number of benefits inherent in the General Partner's, the AIFM's and the Portfolio Manager's services and operations on behalf of the Fund, although the Fund is also subject to a number of material risks and limitations associated with these benefits, as further identified herein. Although the General Partner, the AIFM and the Portfolio Manager believe that they and their personnel will have competitive advantages in identifying, diligencing monitoring and ultimately selling investments on behalf of the Fund, there can be no guarantee that the General Partner will be able to maintain such advantages over time, outperform third parties or the financial markets generally, implement its investment strategy or achieve its investment objectives for the Fund or any investment, or avoid losses.

Investment in the Fund will involve a high degree of risk due, among other things, to the nature of the Fund's investments, including the risk of loss of an investor's entire value of investment or other amount of capital. Prospective investors should pay particular attention to the information under Section 11 — "Risk Factors and Potential Conflicts of Interest" in this Memorandum. Investment in the Fund is suitable only for sophisticated investors and requires the financial ability and willingness to accept the high risks and lack of liquidity inherent in an investment in the Fund. Investors in the Fund must be prepared to bear such risks for an extended period of time. No assurance can be given that the Fund's investment objectives will be achieved or that investors will receive a return of their capital.

In making an investment decision, investors must rely on their own examination of the Fund and the terms of this offering, including the merits and risks involved. The Fund has not engaged any legal or other advisors to represent investors in the Fund. Prospective investors should not construe the contents of this Memorandum as legal, tax, investment or accounting advice, and each prospective investor is urged to consult with its own advisors with respect to legal, tax, regulatory, financial and accounting consequences of its investment in the Fund.

This Memorandum is not a prospectus within the meaning of Regulation 2017/1129 on the prospectus to be published when securities are offered to the public or admitted to trading on a regulated market and repealing Directive 2003/71/EC (including as implemented, assimilated, amended, replaced, reenacted, and/or consolidated in the United Kingdom pursuant to applicable legislation and regulatory guidance) and does not purport to contain all of the information an investor may require to form an investment decision. It is not intended to be relied upon solely in relation to, and must not be taken solely as the basis for, an investment decision.

This Memorandum contains a summary of the Partnership Agreement and certain other documents referred to herein. However, the summaries set forth in this Memorandum do not purport to be complete. They are subject to and qualified in their entirety by reference to the Partnership Agreement and such other documents, copies of which must be reviewed for complete information concerning the rights, privileges and obligations of investors in the Partnership. If the descriptions in or terms of this Memorandum are inconsistent with or contrary to the descriptions in or terms of the Partnership Agreement or such other documents, the Partnership Agreement and such other documents will control. The General Partner reserves the right to modify the terms of the offering and the Interests described in this Memorandum, and the Interests are offered subject to the General Partner's ability to reject any subscription in whole or in part in its sole discretion. The Sponsor may issue amendments and supplements to this Memorandum at any time.

Each prospective investor is invited to meet with representatives of the Partnership and to discuss with, ask questions of and receive answers from such representatives concerning the terms and conditions of the offering of the Interests, and is urged to request any additional information, to the extent that such representatives possess such information or can acquire it without unreasonable effort or expense, necessary to verify the information contained herein, and such additional information shall be treated in a confidential manner.

No person has been authorized in connection herewith to give any information or make any representations other than as contained in this Memorandum and any representation or information not contained herein may not be relied upon as having been authorized by the Fund, the General Partner, the AIFM, the Portfolio Manager, Macquarie Group Limited and its worldwide direct and indirect subsidiaries, affiliates and the investment funds and other investment vehicles that they manage or sponsor (collectively, “Macquarie Group” or “Macquarie”) or any of their respective directors, managers, officers, employees, members, partners, shareholders or affiliates. The phrase “Macquarie and its affiliates” and other similar variations or derivations thereof as used herein are utilized for context and emphasis only and, notwithstanding any duplication or redundancy in light of the broad and encompassing nature of the definition of “Macquarie” (which includes any such constituent entities), are not intended to modify such definition of “Macquarie.” References to the title and/or position “Senior Managing Director,” “Managing Director,” and/or similar titles refer, as applicable, to the officer position within the Sponsor, or the non-officer title granted to an individual by Macquarie, and do not connote general partner status and/or in any manner limit the sole authority of the Sponsor to exercise or participate in the control of the Fund.

The views expressed herein are the opinions of the General Partner and should not be construed as absolute statements and are subject to change without notice. None of the Fund, the General Partner or their respective affiliates of any of their respective directors, officers, managers, employees, partners, members, shareholders, advisors or agents makes any representation or warranty, express or implied, as to the accuracy or completeness of the information contained herein.

Unless otherwise indicated, (i) Macquarie information other than financial information contained herein is as of March 1, 2026 and (ii) financial information contained herein is as of September 30, 2025. The delivery of this Memorandum does not imply that any other information contained herein is correct as of any time subsequent to the date shown on the cover of this Memorandum. Certain statements of fact in this Memorandum are intended to be accurate at the initial closing of the Fund (the “Initial Closing”) rather than the date hereof, including, but not limited to, interpretation of the Fund’s legal structure.

Prospective investors should inform themselves as to the legal requirements and tax consequences within countries of their citizenship, residence, domicile and place of business with respect to the acquisition, holding or disposal of the Interests, and any foreign exchange restrictions that may be relevant thereto.

As used herein, “proprietary” in reference to an investment means an investment or potential investment, which the Portfolio Manager believes was originated through industry or other pre-existing relationships between Macquarie personnel and industry participants, owners, third-party managers, agents or advisors, outside of an auction or competitive process, although subsequently, the opportunity may have been or may be subject to some form of auction or competitive process. As used herein, “limited auction” means a limited closed auction process conducted by a private entity. As used herein, unless otherwise specified, “realization” in reference to Portfolio Investments (as defined herein) means a complete realization of such investment and does not include partial realizations.

The distribution of this Memorandum and the offer and sale of the Interests in certain jurisdictions may be restricted by law. Please see the various securities laws legends that are found in Appendix B—“Offering Legends” of this Memorandum. This Memorandum does not constitute an offer to sell or the solicitation of an offer to buy in any state or other U.S. or non-U.S. jurisdiction to any person or entity to whom it is unlawful to make such offer or solicitation in such state or jurisdiction. This offering does not constitute an offer of the Interests to the public, and no action has been or will be taken to permit a public offering in any jurisdiction where action would be required for that purpose. The Interests may not be offered or sold, directly or indirectly, and this Memorandum may not be distributed in any jurisdiction, except in accordance with the legal requirements applicable in such jurisdiction. The AIFM may apply to market the Partnership in any jurisdiction in the EEA to “professional investors”¹ by using the marketing passport provided for in the AIFMD and to professional investors in the UK by using the UK’s national private placement regime.

Prospective investors should review Appendix B — “Offering Legends” for certain information relating to offers and sales of Interests to investors in various non-U.S. jurisdictions.

This Memorandum contains information concerning the past performance results of other funds managed by Macquarie, which is provided for informational purposes only. In considering the prior performance information contained herein, prospective investors should bear in mind that past performance is not indicative of future results and there can be no assurance that the Fund will achieve comparable results. Any past performance information relating to prior investments of other Macquarie Funds (as defined herein) may not be fully relevant to an evaluation of the prospects of an investment in the Fund and prospective investors should use their own judgment to appropriately weigh or discount such information. There can be no assurance that the Fund will achieve results comparable to any past results or that the Fund will be able to implement its investment strategy or achieve its investment objective. Investments that the Fund intends to pursue in the future may differ in material respects and will be made under different market, economic and supply-demand conditions than those under which such investments were made and which may not be replicated. The performance of certain funds referred to herein that are still in the process of making or realizing upon investments may be significantly affected by future investment activities. For the foregoing reasons, prospective investors should attach correspondingly qualified consideration to the performance information herein. It should not be assumed that any of the unrealized investments of the predecessor funds of the Fund or any other Macquarie Fund can be realized at current valuations or that any investments made in the future will equal the performance of such prior investments. No guarantee, projection or prediction of future events or results is being provided and no inference to the contrary should be made. See Section 8—“Investment Performance” for additional information regarding the use of related performance within this Memorandum.

The Fund’s sustainability activities are subject to the Portfolio Manager’s fiduciary duties and any applicable legal, regulatory and contractual requirements. Any sustainability-related commitments and related timelines, are aspirational and not guarantees or promises that all such commitments will be met, unless as otherwise specified in any applicable regulatory disclosures. Terms such as “ESG,” and “sustainability” can be subjective in nature, and there is no representation or guarantee that these terms, as used in the Memorandum, or judgment exercised by the Portfolio Manager or its affiliates or advisors in the application of these terms, will reflect the views, policies, principles, frameworks or preferred practices of any particular investor or other third-party or reflect market trends. Prospective investors are invited to read the entire Memorandum and the Partnership Agreement and to fully evaluate the characteristics and objectives of the strategy before deciding whether or not to subscribe for the Interests. For further information, please refer to <https://www.macquarie.com/us/en/about/company/sustainability.html>.

These trends may not be indicative of future results. Due to various risks and uncertainties, including those set forth in Section 10 —“Risk Factors and Potential Conflicts of Interest,” actual events or results or the actual performance of the Fund or any predecessor fund may differ materially from those reflected or contemplated in such forward- looking statements.

In addition, in each case unless the context otherwise requires: (i) the words “include,” “includes,” “including” and other words of similar import are meant to be illustrative rather than restrictive, (ii) “person” means an individual, a partnership (general, limited or limited liability), a corporation, a limited liability company, an association, a joint stock company, a trust, a joint venture, an unincorporated organization or a governmental, quasi-governmental, judicial or regulatory entity or any department, agency or political subdivision thereof, (iii) the use of the word “may” and similar references in this Memorandum regarding the policies, practices of or contemplated actions by, the General Partner, the Fund, the AIFM, the Portfolio Manager and/or their respective affiliates is intended as a statement that such policies, practices or actions are authorized and permitted by (but not required of) the General Partner, the Fund, the AIFM, the Portfolio Manager and/or their respective affiliates under this Memorandum in the relevant circumstances, and (iv) similarly, the use of the word “may” in the context of disclosures and/or conflicts of interest is intended as a statement that such items are authorized and/or reasonably possible to occur.

No statements contained herein constitute a guarantee, projection or prediction of the future and actual events may differ significantly. Statements contained herein are not made in any person’s individual capacity, but rather on behalf of the Portfolio Manager, which manages and implements the investment program of the Partnership pursuant to the delegation to it by the AIFM. Any specific investments, case studies or sectors identified herein were selected for inclusion in this Memorandum on the basis of being representative of investments or commitments to invest that the Portfolio Manager believes are comparable to investments that the Fund may seek to make. These case studies do not represent all investments made, sold or recommended that would be within the investment criteria of the Fund and further represent only a small percentage of investments recommended by the Portfolio Manager. Potential investors should also note that the selected case studies presented in or referred to in this Memorandum do not involve all of the Macquarie professionals who will be involved with the management and operations of the Fund. In addition, certain of the persons that were involved in the investment program of the Fund’s predecessor funds (including certain members of the investment committee thereof) will not be actively involved in the Fund or will function in different roles at Macquarie, which may impact the Fund’s ability to achieve comparable returns. These case studies were also selected to show the investment strategy and investment process of the Portfolio Manager. It should not be assumed that investments identified were or will be profitable, that their performance is necessarily representative of the Portfolio Manager’s overall performance or that decisions the Sponsor or the Fund will make in the future will be as profitable.

Different publications and third-party sources may have a different understanding of what constitutes “infrastructure” or “infrastructure-related” investments, projects and assets such that any statistical references or generalizations regarding “infrastructure” or “infrastructure-related” investments, projects and assets may not necessarily refer to the types of investments that the Fund may seek to make.

The Fund (including for this purpose any Alternative Vehicles, Parallel Funds and/or Feeder Funds) is permitted to trade in instruments regulated by the U.S. Commodity Futures Trading Commission (the “CFTC”) , and in such event the General Partner and/or its affiliates intend to qualify for an applicable exemption from registration with the CFTC as a commodity pool operator (“CPO”) with respect to the Fund under section 4.13(a)(3) of the regulations of the CFTC (the “CFTC Regulations”). This exemption is available for operators of pools (a) whose interests are exempt from registration under the 1933 Act and are offered and sold without marketing to the public in the United States, (b) whose participants are limited to accredited investors, (c) whose investments in commodity interest positions are limited such that either (i) the aggregate initial margin premiums, and required minimum deposit for retail forex transactions (as defined in CFTC regulation section 5.1(m)) required to establish such positions, determined at the time of the most recently established position, does not exceed 5% of the liquidation value of the pool’s portfolio, after taking into account unrealized profits and unrealized losses on any such positions it has entered into, provided, that in the case of an option that is in-the-money at the time of purchase, the in-the-money amount, as defined in CFTC regulation section 190.01, may be excluded in computing such 5% or (ii) the aggregate net notional value of such positions, determined at the time of the most recently established position, does not exceed 100% of the liquidation value of the pool’s portfolio, after taking into account unrealized profits and unrealized losses on any such positions into which it has entered, and (d) the interests in which are not marketed as or in a vehicle for trading in the commodity futures, commodity options, or swaps markets. Therefore, neither the General Partner nor Macquarie will be required to deliver a disclosure document (as described in part 4 of the CFTC regulations) or a certified annual report to investors. The General Partner and/or its affiliates reserve the right to pursue an alternative exemption from SPO registration, or else register with the CFTC. This Memorandum is not required to be, and has not been, filed with the CFTC. The CFTC does not pass upon the merits of participating in a pool or upon the adequacy or accuracy of an offering memorandum. Consequently, the CFTC has not reviewed or approved this memorandum or any offering in connection herewith.

1. EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Introduction

Macquarie Alliance Partners Management LLC (the “Portfolio Manager”) is launching Macquarie Alliance Partners Infrastructure Fund II SCSp a Luxembourg special limited partnership (société en commandite spéciale) (the “Partnership,” and together with Macquarie Alliance Partners Infrastructure Fund II, L.P., a Delaware limited partnership (the “Main Fund”), and any Alternative Vehicles, Parallel Funds and/or Feeder Funds (each as defined herein), “MAPIF II” or the “Fund”) to invest in a diversified portfolio of managed infrastructure investments, primarily interests in established private investment funds, through secondary market purchases. MAPIF II is the second vintage in its series and aims to generate attractive risk-adjusted investment returns for investors by utilizing the Portfolio Manager’s experienced team of investment professionals dedicated to the infrastructure secondaries market and leveraging the experience and knowledge base of Macquarie globally pertaining to infrastructure as an asset class.

The Opportunity

The Portfolio Manager believes infrastructure secondaries offer many portfolio benefits to investors, including diversification, early distributions, mitigation of the “J-curve” typically associated with investment in primary interests, long-term liability matching, and a hedge against inflation. In seeking to provide investors with attractive risk-adjusted returns relative to other asset classes, the Portfolio Manager will target secondaries investment opportunities reflecting:

- Seasoned investments, typically managed by an infrastructure fund manager for three to seven years, providing visibility into both their capital needs, value creation plans, and cash generating capacity/potential for realization;
- The provision of essential services with relatively low elasticity of demand, thereby limiting exposure to economic cycles and demonstrating a lower risk and volatility compared with other asset classes;
- Incorporation of revenue structures that are formally or informally linked to Consumer Price Index (“CPI”), including contracted, regulated, concession-based and GDP-correlated, thereby providing a basic hedge against rising inflation and/or interest rates; and/or
- Long-lived physical assets with sustainable competitive advantages and barriers to entry, facilitating the ability to forecast cash flows.

The Portfolio Manager believes that many attractive investment opportunities will be driven by the maturation of the infrastructure primaries market, the desire of limited partners to rebalance portfolios or otherwise reallocate capital among various types of investments, and/or seek liquidity, and other themes discussed herein.

MAPIF II

The Portfolio Manager is seeking Capital Commitments in aggregate of $1.0 bn - $1.5bn, consistent with the Fund’s intended strategy. The Portfolio Manager believes this target size will allow the Fund to be deployed in a timely fashion while still being selective about the investments pursued. The Portfolio Manager also believes that the Fund’s target size will facilitate construction of a diversified portfolio, including with respect to geography, sector, manager, investment vintage, revenue framework, and risk/return profile. The Portfolio Manager will attempt to deliver a Target Net IRR of 12-15% over the life of the Fund.² The Fund's primary strategy is to make investments in interests in established private investment funds, through secondary market purchases and primary investments in continuation vehicles and other liquidity solutions transactions.

The Team

The Portfolio Manager of MAPIF II is an entity within the Solutions Division ("MAM Solutions") of Macquarie Asset Management ("MAM"). MAM is a global leader in infrastructure investment and asset management with over 30 years of experience in the sector. As of December 31, 2025, MAM had approximately $237.9 billion of infrastructure assets under management.³

The Portfolio Manager's infrastructure team comprises eight seasoned personnel with substantial individual and collective experience spanning infrastructure, secondaries, investment and general management. Investment Committee member and Head of MAM Solutions Robbie Burns brings over 20 years of professional experience and has been with Macquarie Asset Management for 12 years. Prior to his current role, Robbie was Head of Corporate Development for MAM, where he played a key leadership role in the establishment, execution and communication of MAM's strategy, with a focus on inorganic opportunities. Through his career, he has worked in Australia, the UK and the US, and he has significant experience across the asset management sector. The Head of Infrastructure Secondaries and President of the Portfolio Manager, Wandy Hoh, has over 25 years of relevant experience and began investing in secondaries as a founding member of what is now Strategic Partners (then part of DLJ/Credit Suisse, now Blackstone). Prior to joining Macquarie to lead the secondaries team, Hoh was Managing Director and member of the Investment Committee and Senior Steering Committee making primary investments in infrastructure with Glenfarne Group.

Senior investment professionals Bryan Beach and Plern Bonython each have over 10 years of relevant experience. Bryan Beach joined Macquarie Alliance Partners, LLC ("MAP") after six years originating, evaluating, and executing investments at Newbury Partners, a secondaries investment firm dedicated to acquiring buyout, growth equity, venture capital and fund-of-funds limited partnership interests. Bryan played a key role in the deployment of MAPIF I, leading the sourcing and execution of multiple transactions. Plern Bonython recently joined the MAP team after four years leading the North American infrastructure sponsor coverage effort for the Infrastructure and Energy Advisory team at the Macquarie Capital division of Macquarie Capital (USA) Inc. and its non-U.S. counterparts within Macquarie ("Macquarie Capital"). Plern has over 11 years of experience in infrastructure debt and equity syndication and coverage and has extensive knowledge of sponsor pools of capital, their mandates and investment approaches.

The Portfolio Manager's senior investment professionals⁴ have, on average, 25 years of infrastructure and secondaries investment experience. The Portfolio Manager has eight investment professionals dedicated to secondaries investment and, while remaining subject to appropriate information barriers, intends to utilize Macquarie's resources for their financial, market and industry insights to assist Fund investment professionals in the evaluation of secondaries investment opportunities. The Portfolio Manager believes it is well-positioned to build on its track record and compete effectively in the market relative to its mandate.

² No assurance can be given that the Fund's target return objectives will be met. Actual returns may differ significantly from the targeted returns indicated herein. Targeted performance is not a guarantee, projection, prediction or indication of future results. The Target Net IRR calculation is an aggregate target internal rate of return for the Fund overall after the payment of fees or carried interest associated with the Underlying Fund and takes into account certain assumptions, including that management fees and performance compensation will be charged to the Fund in accordance with the headline terms generally expected under the Partnership Agreement as indicated in Section 10 — "Detailed Term Sheet—Distributions," but excludes any taxes borne by any investors. The actual Net IRR for each investor in the Fund may differ depending on the timing of such investor's Capital Commitment. The scenarios presented are an estimate of future performance based on current market conditions and are not an exact indicator. What each investor will get will vary depending on how the market performs and how long each investor keeps the investment/product. Future performance is subject to taxation, which depends on the personal situation of each investor and which may change in the future and may lead to a financial loss if no guarantee on the capital is in place. See Section 2 — "Summary of Key Terms" for additional information, assumptions and methodologies regarding the Target Net IRR and Gross IRRs.

Investment Highlights⁵

The Portfolio Manager believes that the following characteristics distinguish MAPIF II as a compelling investment opportunity and will allow the Portfolio Manager to generate attractive risk-adjusted returns:

Expanding opportunity set. The Portfolio Manager believes that the opportunity set for infrastructure secondaries investments will continue to expand. Historical and ongoing primary investments in infrastructure are expected to generate a strong pipeline of potential infrastructure secondaries investment opportunities for MAPIF II.

Experienced team. The Portfolio Manager believes successful infrastructure secondaries investing is driven by local insights due to the highly specialized socio-economic, macroeconomic, political and regulatory considerations that exist in various jurisdictions and geographies. The Portfolio Manager has a dedicated team of eight investment professionals that, together with market information and insight provided by resources of the world's largest manager of infrastructure assets⁶ in locations throughout the world, facilitate the thorough and efficient underwriting of secondaries investment opportunities.

Disciplined sourcing and execution. The Portfolio Manager devotes considerable time and resources to originating and executing attractive investment opportunities. Such opportunities arise from sources including MAM's roster of more than 800 LP relationships globally, relationships with most general partners (many of whom are staffed with Macquarie alumni) and relationships with advisors involved in the marketing of certain opportunities. The Portfolio Manager believes MAPIF II is well positioned to benefit from investment opportunities generated by the Portfolio Manager's team of experienced infrastructure and secondaries specialists as well.

Supported by the world's largest infrastructure management network. MAM is regarded as a trusted partner by community stakeholders, regulators and government agencies, responsibly managing investments in infrastructure assets used by over 300 million people every day.⁷ The infrastructure specialists across MAM provide MAPIF II with key industry insights that the Portfolio Manager believes most generalist investors cannot access. In addition to its approximately 400 dedicated investment professionals globally, MAM also has significant middle-office expertise, including risk management and sustainability, compliance, legal, finance, tax, insurance, debt, government affairs and labor relations, construction, technology and innovation, investor relations and corporate communications. ⁹ Please see the Important Notice and Disclaimer for further detail regarding Net IRR and target returns. Target returns are not a reliable indicator of future performance and are provided as an indicator as to anticipated risk profile of the Fund. There can be no assurance that the targeted returns will be achieved or that the fund will be able to implement its strategy or achieve its investment objectives. Target returns are based on facts and assumptions that MAM believes to be reasonable. Actual returns may differ significantly from targeted returns indicated herein. Targeted performance is not a guarantee, projection or prediction and is not necessarily indicative of future results. The Target Net IRR calculation is an aggregate target internal rate of return for the Fund overall calculated after payment of applicable management fees, partnership expenses, carried interest and other applicable expenses as detailed in the Important Notice and Disclaimer. The Target Net IRR for each investor in the Fund may differ depending on the size and timing of such investor’s capital commitment. The scenarios presented are an estimate of future performance based on current market conditions and are not an exact indicator. What you will get will vary depending on how the market performs and how long you keep the investment/product. Future performance is subject to taxation which depends on the personal situation of each investor and which may change in the future and may lead to a financial loss if no guarantee on the capital is in place. Changes in the value of exchange between US Dollars and any country in which US Dollars are not the local currency may have an adverse effect on the value, price, costs or income of the investments and in turn the performance of the Funds.

Additional Information on Target Net IRR

“Target Net IRR” as used in this Memorandum is defined below. In particular, investors should note the specific factors and assumptions relating to Target Net IRR.

The scenarios presented are an estimate of future performance based on current market conditions and are not an exact indicator. Actual returns will vary depending on market performance and the duration that an investment/product is held. Future performance is subject to taxation, which depends on the personal situation of each investor, which may change in the future, and may lead to financial loss for an investor if no guarantee on such investor’s capital commitment is in place.

Target Net IRR*Target Net IRR*

The “Target Net IRR” represents the targeted IRR of the Fund at the end of the Fund’s life, inclusive of actual and anticipated Fund management fees, carried interest, taxes and other expenses that are expected to be borne by investors (other than taxes and other expenses borne or to be borne by investors or vehicles through which they participate in investments, including, for example, alternative investment vehicles, corporations and feeder funds, which would further reduce net returns).

Specific Factors Relating to Target Net IRR

Target Net IRR is not a guarantee, projection or prediction and not necessarily indicative of future results, and there can be no assurance that such targeted returns will be met or that the Fund will be able to implement its investment strategy, achieve its investment objectives or avoid substantial losses. The Target Net IRR assumes the Portfolio Manager can successfully execute on its base case assumptions, and is a goal based on the Portfolio Manager’s belief about the returns that may be achievable on investments in light of the Portfolio Manager’s and its professionals’ experience, their view of current and expected market conditions, potential investment opportunities and the indicative terms thereof that the Portfolio Manager is currently reviewing or has recently reviewed, availability of financing, leverage levels and terms and certain assumptions about investment and disposition pace and conditions, default and recovery rates and market fluctuation or recovery as of the date of this Memorandum. The actual Net IRR of the Fund will depend on, among other factors, future operating results, the value of the assets and market conditions at the time of underwriting and disposition, any related transaction costs and the timing and manner of sale, all of which may differ from the assumptions and circumstances on which the Target Net IRR contained herein is based; accordingly, the actual Fund Net IRR may differ materially from the returns indicated herein. A broad range of risks could cause the Fund to fail to meet its investment objectives and Target Net IRR. In considering the performance information contained herein, prospective investors should bear in mind that past or targeted performance is not a guarantee, projection, prediction or indication of future results, and there can be no assurance that the Fund will achieve comparable results, that Target Net IRR will be met or that the Fund will be able to implement its investment strategy or achieve its investment objectives. Target returns on individual investments may be higher or lower than Fund-wide aggregate targets.

Key Assumptions Relating to Target Net IRR

“Target Net IRR,” as used herein, assumes (a) that a minimum of 90% of Capital Commitments are invested over the three-year period following the Initial Closing with target asset Gross IRRs ranging 12-22% in US dollars in nominal terms, (b) no change in relative currency rates as of December 31, 2025, (c) investments made over the course of such three-year period are realized over a 10-year fund life, (d) inflation and other market forces remain consistent with long-term historical averages, (e) total Fund capital commitments of up to $1.5 billion and (f) that all investments performed to base case underwriting and did not incur losses.

The Target Net IRR further assumes (a) management fees and performance compensation charged to the Fund in accordance with the headline terms generally expected under the Partnership Agreement, (b) offering and organizational expenses incurred directly by the Fund at the maximum capped amount of US$6.0 million, (c) no management fee offset, and (d) annual, ordinary ongoing partnership expenses consistent with those of funds of similar size and type. Actual expenses or costs of the Fund may vary significantly from such assumptions, which could result in a materially lower Net IRR. The Target Net IRR is for the Fund in the aggregate, and the Target Net IRR for individual investors in the Fund may differ depending on the size and timing of such investor's Capital Commitment. Please see Section 8—"Investment Performance" for additional important information regarding IRRs and historical performance of MAPIF I.

3. INVESTMENT CHARACTERISTICS OF INFRASTRUCTURE

Infrastructure assets typically exhibit attractive portfolio benefits to investors with long-term investment horizons who seek current yield, predictable long-term cash flows, a hedge against rising inflation and portfolio diversification.

Infrastructure assets such as utilities, transportation networks, digital infrastructure networks, renewable energy, and waste management companies are essential to the operation and growth of an economy. The Portfolio Manager believes that as a result of the defensive nature of many infrastructure businesses, they are often subject to high barriers to entry and, in some cases, subject to price regulation (e.g., regulated utilities). Infrastructure assets generally require significant upfront capital investment and have long operational lives. These attributes typically place infrastructure businesses in secure market positions relative to new entrants.

In many cases, infrastructure investments have the potential to produce returns with lower volatility and a low correlation to other asset classes – features that are often enhanced in the context of secondaries given the maturity of the assets (typically three to seven years into the ownership by the primary investor). This decoupling is primarily due to the essential services nature of infrastructure assets that render them less exposed to economic cycles and beneficiaries of inelasticity of demand from users.

The table below summarizes what the Portfolio Manager believes are some of the key benefits of infrastructure as an asset class.

Typical Infrastructure Investment Characteristics	Key Benefits
Provide essential services with relatively low elasticity of demand	Limited exposure to economic cycles; lower risk and volatility compared with other asset classes Portfolio diversification that results from low correlation with other asset classes
High capital costs required to develop, construct and maintain infrastructure assets	Barriers to entry for potential competitors
Cash generation growth in excess of operating expenses and debt service requirements	Cash flow available for growth investment and subsequent capital appreciation, and/or yield to investors
Revenues often formally or informally linked to CPI; rising costs often passed through to customers	Hedge against rising inflation
Long-lived physical assets with competitive advantages (such as exclusive, long-term rights or contracts, efficiencies provided by economies of scale, or natural monopolies)	Ability to forecast cash flows over the long term resulting in relative predictability of outcomes; to raise long-term, investment grade financing; barriers to entry for potential competitors due to capital intensity or protected market position

4. INFRASTRUCTURE MARKET OPPORTUNITY¹⁰

The Portfolio Manager believes significant opportunity will exist for investment in infrastructure secondaries through the Fund's investment period. Both macroeconomic trends and sector-specific dynamics are expected to drive a wide spectrum of investment opportunities that are expected to fall within the Fund's mandate.

The Portfolio Manager intends to target investments in infrastructure sectors where it believes its access to experience and knowledge provides a competitive advantage in evaluating and pricing such opportunities. These sectors include, but are not limited to, transportation-related infrastructure, waste management-related infrastructure, digital infrastructure, utilities and energy infrastructure (including renewables), and social infrastructure. Private investment in infrastructure is substantial and growing. Infrastructure primaries AUM has more than doubled roughly every five years since 2014, and Prequin research suggests it could reach nearly $3 trillion in 2030.¹¹ The growth of the primary market is, in turn, expected to drive growth in the secondaries market where the same forecasts project a secondaries market of approximately $226 billion in 2030¹² up from approximately $30 billion today.¹³

Key Infrastructure and Infrastructure Secondaries Investment Drivers

Population Growth and Urbanization

Demand for infrastructure is often driven by growth in population, urbanization and economic activity. For example, the United Nations estimates that two-thirds of the world's population growth between now and 2050 will take place in cities.¹⁴ In 2025, cities had become the most prevalent settlement type in 104 countries and this number is projected to grow to 127 by 2050.¹⁵ Efficient and appropriately scaled infrastructure will be essential to adequately support and service the increased burden of population concentration and localized economic activity. Without new investment in infrastructure, constrained capacity, congestion and related issues will lead to costly productivity losses and decreasing economic competitiveness. The Portfolio Manager believes that private investment in infrastructure will be needed to meet growing demand.

Rationale for Private Funding Sources

The Portfolio Manager believes increasing fiscal pressure on provincial, state and local governments may lead not only to an increased number of public-private partnership ("PPP") / long-term concessions transactions, but also to the full privatization of infrastructure assets. Privatization transactions are seen as a means of creating liquidity and/or reducing the operations and maintenance cost burdens of government entities. Privatizations generally involve the sales of infrastructure assets, where substantially all rights and responsibilities transfer to the private sector, and there is much less ongoing government involvement than in a PPP transaction. Private ownership has been widely accepted for many types of infrastructure assets in the United States and Canada, including electric, gas and water utilities, electricity generation, marine terminals, toll roads and telecommunication infrastructure assets.

Recent Private Market Trends Supporting Secondaries Activity

Private markets have experienced a sustained decline in distributions, driven by a combination of factors including rapidly rising interest rates, heightened macroeconomic uncertainty, and shifts in managers' value-creation and exit strategies¹⁶. The Portfolio Manager believes this slowdown in distributions has been a key driver of increased activity in the secondary markets.

Since 2022, average annual private market distributions as a percentage of NAV have been approximately half of the average observed over the preceding decade¹⁷. This trend has been evident across broader private markets, and in response, the secondaries market has played an increasingly important role in providing liquidity. Transaction volumes have continued to grow from 2022 through a record-setting 2025, as both limited partners and general partners are increasingly utilizing secondary transactions as a portfolio management tool to generate liquidity and actively manage their portfolios.

Within secondaries, the dry powder ratio remains favorable relative to the primaries market, particularly in infrastructure secondaries. The Portfolio Manager believes that the current supply-demand fundamentals allow secondary buyers to be selective and opportunistically pursue transactions with potentially attractive risk-adjusted returns.

Infrastructure Secondaries—Trends and Opportunities

The Portfolio Manager believes that substantial growth in capital committed to primary infrastructure vehicles over the past decade, together with the expected investment going forward, including the aforementioned privatizations, will give rise to significant secondaries opportunities in the form of both LP-led and GP-led transactions. The Portfolio Manager believes the growth profile for the infrastructure secondaries market could be similar to that of the private equity secondaries market over the past two-plus decades.

The combination of a potentially undercapitalized market, the experience and knowledge of the Portfolio Manager's team and the support of the Macquarie platform is expected to provide the Fund with an attractive environment in which to complete infrastructure secondaries investments.

Potential Secondary Investment Types

The Portfolio Manager aims to source investment opportunities from its large network of institutional investors, including from investors in MAM's direct infrastructure funds with an interest in liquidity or portfolio management options. The Portfolio Manager expects to strictly observe and maintain the established information barriers between the investment teams/committees of MAM's primary funds and MAPIF II. In addition, the experience, reputation and relationships across the Fund's investment team and Investment Committee are expected to result in inbound inquiries, particularly advisors, looking to transact in the secondaries market. The Portfolio Manager also has extensive relationships with infrastructure general partners through its alumni and professional networks from which to source bespoke investment opportunities.

Investments are expected to be made in several structures:

- LP-led transactions: LP-led transactions most commonly involve an investor with limited partnership interests in several infrastructure funds selling some or all these investments as a portfolio. In LP-led transactions, the Fund will step into the seller's LP position in the Underlying Funds, essentially as a substitute investor.

LP-led transactions can range in size from less than US$1 million for a single fund position or a position in a small number of funds to over US$1 billion for very large and diversified portfolios. LP-led transactions are expected to be a source of substantial diversification for the Fund through exposure to various managers and Underlying Funds simultaneously.

Additional LP-led transaction types that the Fund may evaluate include stapled transactions and tail-end portfolios. In a stapled transaction, a general partner will seek to address liquidity relative to existing assets (often a recapitalization or tender offer) while tying the secondary transaction to a commitment to a new fund. In this scenario, the secondary buyer must commit new primary capital to a new vehicle alongside the seasoned secondary investment. Tail-end portfolios typically represent opportunities to acquire multiple funds with meaningful diversification and visibility into near-term cash flows based on their being close to the end of the life of the Underlying Fund. The Portfolio Manager intends to selectively pursue stapled and tail-end transactions and evaluate them on a case-by-case basis.

- GP-led transactions. GP-led transactions most commonly involve continuation vehicles through which a general partner desires to extend the time over which it manages a particular portfolio company (or portfolio of companies) as a means of fully optimizing their exit potential or expanding the scope of their investment. Such transactions typically provide limited partners of such funds the opportunity to either remain invested, divest their exposure, or participate in the new transaction.

These single company or multi-asset GP-led transactions typically have higher asset concentration profiles and require substantially more time and effort in negotiating and completing the legal closing process as well as more extensive due diligence per portfolio company. These transactions are generally not competitive, but are a syndicated process involving selected lead investors.

In addition to continuation vehicles, the Portfolio Manager anticipates reviewing GP-led opportunities that are frequently referred to as fund restructurings, recapitalizations, and spin-outs. These investments generally require the formation of a special purpose vehicle (“SPV”) that acquires some or all the assets held in a general partners’ fund(s). The Underlying Fund manager will reorganize the fund by divesting assets to the SPV funded by a new secondary buyer(s) and continue to manage the assets in the SPV. This type of transaction will commonly feature new fund terms/economics and realignment with the new secondary buyer syndicate.

In a tender offer process, a general partner will coordinate an auction to identify secondary firms that offer to buy up to a certain amount of fund interests from existing LPs; these LPs can elect to choose liquidity or remain in the fund. Tender offers typically do not include a reset of fund economics but often include an extension of the fund life.

- Preferred equity transactions. Lastly, the Portfolio Manager expects to evaluate structure solutions transactions such as preferred equity transactions. These MAPIF II-led structures provide secondary investors with a preferred position (typically a senior liquidity preference to existing fund LPs) for their capital investment and the potential for early distributions or dividends and/or additional sharing of performance upside. Structure solution transactions also include GP spin-outs (that may also include a share of future economics through upper-tier entities as a component of future proceeds). The Portfolio Manager anticipates that this transaction type, if any, will represent a modest share of the Fund’s commitments.

GP-led transactions tend to focus on seasoned fund investments with portfolios that often have fewer remaining assets and therefore tend to be more concentrated relative to LP-led portfolio transactions. As a result, the Portfolio Manager’s due diligence and underwriting hurdles are generally higher for GP-led deals. Fund investment professionals will review more detailed due diligence and financial information prior to investing in a GP-led transaction. In addition, the Portfolio Manager will typically seek a higher return compared with an LP-led transaction to compensate for the concentration risk.

The Portfolio Manager will seek to combine these structures in the formation of a mature, cash flowing portfolio. Investments by type are expected to include a larger proportion of LP-led transactions given the Portfolio Manager’s belief that there will be less competition for these, particularly in the case of larger opportunities. In addition, the Portfolio Manager believes that its specialist approach, combined with Macquarie’s infrastructure experience and knowledge will provide it with an advantage in underwriting complex portfolios.

In addition to diversification by type of transaction, the Portfolio Manager expects the Fund portfolio to be diversified across a broad range of sectors and geographies as shown below. The Portfolio Manager will seek to target investments that have been managed by the underlying GP for between three and seven years, on average, where at least 70% of the capital committed to these funds has been drawn. The Portfolio Manager expects this combination of factors to contribute to the formation of a portfolio that is generating distributable cash flow early in its existence and one that substantially reduces “blind-pool” risk for investors.¹⁸

5. INVESTMENT STRATEGY AND PROCESS¹⁹

Introduction

The Portfolio Manager's portfolio construction strategy focuses on the key tenet of its investment objective of generating attractive risk-adjusted returns through investment in a diversified portfolio of managed infrastructure investments. The Portfolio Manager systematically reviews the diversity of the Fund's portfolio along six dimensions to ensure an appropriate balance given the macroeconomic outlook, trends within the asset class, geo-political issues, the size, and type of investment opportunities in the market and other factors.

The Portfolio Manager defines the six dimensions of diversification as:

- Sectors – designed to increase exposure to a wide range to distribute macro risk
- Managers – expected to contribute to more predictable outcomes
- Vintages – helps support a balance of IRR and ROI
- Geography – intended to distribute political, macro and currency risk
- Risk-return profile – targets reduction in the impact of market cycles
- Revenue framework – expected to provide a balance of contracted, concession-based, regulated and GDP-correlated sources

By constructing a portfolio diversified across these dimensions, the Portfolio Manager seeks to generate a Target Net IRR of 12-15% (over the life of the Fund).²⁰

Certain Components of a Diversified Portfolio

The Portfolio Manager's strategy includes making investments across diverse infrastructure sectors and subsectors.

While the Fund does not have defined sector limits, target sectors include:

- Transportation (e.g., airports, rail, roads, marine terminals, ports, logistics and supply chain)

¹⁹ Please refer to the Important Notice and Disclaimer regarding forward looking statements. Strategies referenced and described herein refer to MAPIF II can be no guarantee that such strategies, or any portion thereof, will be executed by MAPIF II or in any given investment, or that they will be successful if executed. There can be no assurance that MAPIF II will be able to implement its investment strategy or achieve its investment objectives.

²⁰ No assurance can be given that the Fund's target return objectives will be met. Actual returns may differ significantly from the targeted returns indicated herein. Targeted performance is not a guarantee, projection, prediction or indication of future results. The Target Net IRR calculation is an aggregate target internal rate of return for the Fund overall after the payment of fees or carried interest associated with the Underlying Fund and takes into account assumptions, including that management fees and performance compensation will be charged to the Fund in accordance with the headline terms generally expected under the Partnership Agreement as indicated in Section 10 —“Detailed Term Sheet—Distributions,” but excludes any taxes borne by any investors. The actual Net IRR for each investor in the Fund may differ depending on the timing of such investor's Capital Commitment. The scenarios presented are an estimate of future performance based on current market conditions and are not an exact indicator. What each investor will get will vary depending on how the market performs and how long each investor keeps the investment/product. Future performance is subject to taxation, which depends on the personal situation of each investor and which may change in the future and may lead to a financial loss if no guarantee on the capital is in place. See Section 2 —“Summary of Key Terms” for additional information, assumptions and methodologies regarding the Target Net IRR and Gross IRRs, and Section 8 —“Investment Performance” for additional important information regarding the Portfolio Manager's historical performance and the calculation thereof.

- Digital (e.g., towers, fiber networks, data centers)
- Waste (e.g., vertically integrated waste management and waste-to-energy)
- Utilities and Energy (e.g., regulated utilities, thermal and renewable power generation); and
- Social and Other (e.g., educational or aged care facilities and certain government services).

Opportunities to invest in the target sectors and subsectors may arise out of any part of the world. While the Fund does not have geographic limitations, the Portfolio Manager expects the majority of its capital – approximately 80% – will be invested in Underlying Funds with assets located primarily in North America and Europe.

As a consequence of the seasoned nature of secondaries investments, the Portfolio Manager expects the Fund to generate distributable cash flows throughout the investment cycle while maintaining the competitive advantages generally associated with infrastructure as an asset class, including regulated or substantially contracted revenue streams, limited demand or usage risk, or usage risk driven primarily by favorable demographic factors and a low level of exposure to market competition due to natural monopoly characteristics, government licensing or other contractual protections, natural geographic restrictions, capital intensity or other barriers to entry.

The Portfolio Manager believes the Fund is well positioned to generate distributions in the form of the yield produced by the assets in the Underlying Funds, as well as by asset dispositions by those funds. As a result, the Portfolio Manager expects investors will have a net exposure that is less than their commitment to the Fund.

The Portfolio Manager intends to focus primarily on investments in established assets with limited, if any, participation in greenfield investments that are standalone, new-build projects.²¹

Investment Process

The Portfolio Manager will implement the investment strategy through a framework intended to suit the investment process for most infrastructure secondaries transactions. This process is not intended to be a step-by-step formula for every transaction but an internal resource that each investment professional (and future employees assigned to MAPIF II) can reference to help set expectations and anticipate process milestones. By formalizing the investment process, Fund investment professionals have the potential to work more quickly and efficiently in their prosecution of potential investments. The process is expected to evolve as internal efficiencies and best practices become clearer over time.

²¹ There can be no assurance that investment opportunities with the anticipated criteria will be available or that the Portfolio Manager will be able to successfully implement its investment strategy or achieve its investment objectives.

Investment Sourcing

The Portfolio Manager's investment professionals have focused on creating a credible market presence and believe they have developed a foundation for the generation of quality investment opportunities for the Fund with proprietary sourcing attributes. The Portfolio Manager expects investment opportunities to arise broadly from sources including:

- MAM's client relationship managers – a global team of over 50 professionals operating across more than 15 regional offices in regular dialogue with over 800 institutional infrastructure investors globally
- relationships that the Portfolio Manager's professionals maintain with general partners, limited partners, investment bankers and other professional advisors
- a large network of former Macquarie staff, partners and others who have interacted with the firm in relation to various opportunities
- unsolicited opportunities based on MAM's reputation as a leading infrastructure investor globally and responsible manager of infrastructure assets
- by continually reviewing new opportunities and maintaining a detailed pricing database that is regularly refreshed, whereby Fund investment professionals engage in regular conversations with advisors as an information resource, while building a list of target funds for secondary acquisition.

The infrastructure manager community is an important source of deal flow for MAPIF II. As the primary infrastructure market is characterized by a relatively small number of general partners, the manager community is close knit. The Portfolio Manager believes that the relationships of its senior investment team with members of the community, along with those across Macquarie more broadly, constitute an important competitive advantage.²² The MAP investment team regularly networks with its contacts – in both senior capital formation and investing roles – to maintain a dialogue which often creates productive deal sourcing channels.

Investment opportunities can be proprietary and exclusive, limited auctions or widely syndicated processes. Due to the limited number of infrastructure secondaries investors in the market, Macquarie's relationships throughout the infrastructure universe, and the investment team's relationships throughout the secondaries universe, the Portfolio Manager believes that the Fund's pipeline to date has included more proprietary and exclusive transactions than syndicated processes.

The Portfolio Manager believes that its investment professionals have demonstrated an ability to originate proprietary infrastructure secondary investment opportunities and opportunities with preferred sourcing attributes (e.g., being targeted by managers, or being offered "first looks"). In addition to the potential exclusivity associated with proprietary transaction generation, the Fund's investment professionals can act with a higher degree of conviction on these targeted opportunities, relative to auction processes. The Portfolio Manager believes that given the rigor of the investment screening process, and sub-1% conversion rate for transactions signed versus presented, this emphasis on maintaining an efficient funnel is key.

Screening

During screening, Fund investment professionals will assess whether an opportunity is consistent with the MAPIF II portfolio construction strategy. If the opportunity appears to be so, upon signing of a Non-Disclosure Agreement ("NDA") and receipt of overview materials, MAPIF II's investment professionals will often engage with the sell-side advisor (or target Underlying Fund general partner) to gain additional context and information sufficient to determine whether the proposed transaction would be attractive to the Fund. If an opportunity is deemed worth pursuing, investment team leads are tasked with clarifying the timing, priority, and staffing needs relative to evaluating the opportunity. Specific transaction attributes that the Portfolio Manager screens for include:

- High-quality assets and market-leading businesses;
- Stable, high-performing general partners that will continue to drive underlying business improvement and are positioned to navigate potentially turbulent markets;
- Attractive transaction dynamics such as limited direct competition and/or information asymmetries;
- Strong fit with MAPIF II portfolio construction strategy; and
- Clear advantage including, for example, robust existing asset or sector coverage.

The proportion of investments completed relative to the value of all transactions screened is low. Through December 2025, less than 1% of all opportunities resulted in a completed investment. Fewer than half of all opportunities reviewed have been subjected to due diligence. The reasons declining to pursue an opportunity are varied, but can include:

- Unrealistic price expectations on the part of the seller/advisor and/or uncompetitive pricing after initial review/underwriting;
- Inappropriate return and/or risk profile for MAPIF II portfolio;
- An inappropriate subsector, geography or investment type e.g., energy, developing countries, green-field; and/or
- Where adding the investment would result in an imbalance in the diversification of the portfolio.

The Portfolio Manager will seek to maintain a disciplined approach to portfolio construction while maintaining a collaborative, problem-solving approach to meeting the liquidity needs of potential sellers.

Due Diligence

Following initial investment screening, Fund investment professionals will conduct a detailed review of the assets of the Underlying Fund and attempt to validate key investment theses such as sector trends, recent asset performance and updates related to near-term liquidity that may drive interest in the overall portfolio. The team will simultaneously consider any material risks, including those related to environmental and social matters, associated with the opportunity.

Assuming a favorable outcome of the due diligence, Fund investment professionals will create an initial valuation model reflecting that diligence, net leverage and historical performance. They will also review public information related to the assets including press releases, public company and/or regulatory filings and trade or news service articles. The investment teams will also look closely at the extent to which MAPIF II holds a competitive advantage over other potential bidders in recognizing embedded value in the investment (e.g., sector knowledge, knowledge of a particular portfolio or relationship with the potential counterparty).

MAPIF II investment professionals will commonly conduct calls with sub-sector experts who are internal (subject to appropriate information barriers) and external to Macquarie to understand relevant trends. In addition to transaction-specific public information, MAPIF II expects to utilize public (available to LPs) information pertaining to MAM's investments in the sub-sector or reviews of potential investments that would be relevant to a particular transaction. Input from external resources including professional contacts, expert networks, and the general partners of comparable assets will also be sought. Advanced due diligence is likely to include calls and/or onsite meetings with the general partner of the target Underlying Fund to refine assumptions and expectations around their behavior and to conduct targeted due diligence (through an external firm).

Fund investment professionals will also conduct key non-asset diligence tasks that are required before submitting a binding bid including reviews of limited partnership agreements for conflicts, proper accounting for Underlying Fund general partner economics and potential AIV/blocker concerns.

Tax Planning

The Portfolio Manager believes that thoughtful tax assessment and planning are important parts of the investment process, and can potentially drive material investment outcomes for all stakeholders. MAM has significant experience with structuring investments in infrastructure on behalf of US and global investors across asset classes. We believe this capability and focus are differentiating factors for MAPIF II, which the Fund will seek to leverage where appropriate.

MAM tax specialists anticipate partnering with the Fund and investment teams at each stage of the investment lifecycle to assess, qualify and plan for current and anticipated tax exposures, and to manage and seek to mitigate tax impacts to MAPIF II investor returns through realization. These efforts are expected to include allocating up-front the risk between secondary market sellers and third-party sponsors and MAPIF through pricing and contractual protections, coordinating with sponsors on asset realization strategy (e.g., “blocker” stock sales), and obtaining favorable tax elections (e.g., Section 754 elections) and structures (e.g., MAPIF II blocker “tag along” rights) to mitigate tax leakage arising from MAPIF II’s diverse underlying investment structures.

Investment Approval

The MAP team has established a structured and repeatable process for the review and evaluation of investment opportunities. As a first step, Weekly Pipeline Meetings are used to screen new opportunities and provide investment professionals with immediate feedback on the prospects of an investment. These introductory discussions include all team members and typically cover a variety of aspects relevant to an investment’s overall appropriateness for the MAPIF II portfolio. A deal origination note is also used to quickly summarize the transaction profile and efficiently determine overall appropriateness for the MAPIF II portfolio. The Weekly Pipeline Meetings serve as a forum for determining how to allocate team resources, re-prioritize pending opportunities, and to optimize team efficiency and maintain focus on the most attractive transactions.

The subset of opportunities that move beyond the Weekly Pipeline Meeting will typically be subject to further evaluation of the potential Underlying Fund and its asset(s) in an Investment Committee (“IC”) transaction preview. The transaction preview allows the IC to (i) understand the opportunity, (ii) identify key drivers of value and risk for follow-up diligence, and (iii) express their appetite to proceed with the investment (at potentially different transaction sizes). Transaction previews are key to maintaining transparency with the evolving MAPIF II pipeline and instructing the overall MAPIF II team on broader investment themes/issues that can be referenced in future transactions. As needed, a transaction may be discussed with the IC again before it is presented for approval, especially as deal dynamics, macro drivers or the pipeline of opportunities changes.

Prior to submitting a final bid or binding proposal, the MAPIF II investment team will thoroughly review the investment opportunity with the IC. As a part of this discussion, a comprehensive summary detailing the due diligence process, portfolio analysis and returns, competitive landscape, risk and sensitivity analyses, market opportunity/landscape, legal terms, general partner alignment, market opportunity and investment recommendation forms are prepared and delivered to the IC.

Final approval of a proposed investment rests with the IC. The IC is actively engaged with investment professionals throughout the investment analysis process.

Execution of an investment also requires input from MAM Risk and MAM sustainability professionals. Further information on sustainability risk management and diligence is set out below under Section 7 — “Sustainability”.

Closing and Transfer

Upon execution of a definitive agreement to invest, Fund investment professionals will work with the relevant general partner(s) and seller(s) to transfer the interest quickly and efficiently. The Portfolio Manager believes that the team’s abilities in this regard position the Fund well as a preferred buyer by sellers who are often working to tight timeframes. In addition, Fund investment and operations teams will ensure requirements such as AML / KYC checks are performed prior to closing and funding. While working with the seller on the transfer process, the Portfolio Manager will engage external legal resources to review fund documents, negotiate purchase and sale agreements, execute transfer documents, and/or new operating agreements, and complete final tax diligence.

If the target investment is particularly concentrated or meaningful developments arise, the investment team may also conduct additional diligence calls with the general partner(s) to confirm assets are on-track prior to closing. Additionally, as sales of portfolio assets can occur prior to transfer to a secondaries buyer, MAPIF II professionals are responsible for tracking and confirming all contributions and distributions that will affect the closing price and coordination of such matters with Macquarie Risk and Treasury when appropriate.

Active Portfolio Management and Investment Realizations

The Portfolio Manager generally expects the Fund to hold an investment in an Underlying Fund for approximately eight years on average. Although MAPIF II may be invested in an Underlying Fund for ten years or more based on asset-specific and/or macroeconomic conditions or a less seasoned fund profile, the Portfolio Manager believes that active portfolio management is a key to optimizing outcomes.

The Portfolio Manager’s standard practices include monitoring news and overall investment performance (against strategic priorities) of the Underlying Fund, such as:

- Company and portfolio updates provided by the underlying GP;
- General partner team changes;
- Capital follow-on investments; and
- Strategic efforts.

The Portfolio Manager believes that post-close monitoring is an integral part of the investment process. The investment team tracks and reports on investment performance, checks for news/developments, and provides updates on exit prospects to the IC as appropriate. These quarterly updates are key in determining the Portfolio Manager’s interest in potentially adding additional exposure to Underlying Funds as a repeat buyer. The Portfolio Manager believes that as a current LP, MAPIF II has an advantage in pricing the portfolio with speed and certainty and will look to leverage this as a source of potential future investment opportunity. As appropriate, the investment team will also complete portfolio updates with the general partner.

The Portfolio Manager’s investment team expects to also complete quarterly reviews of key portfolio metrics and/or overall attractiveness across the six dimensions of diversification to ensure consistency with the Fund portfolio construction strategy and to determine if active portfolio management efforts to accelerate liquidity should be considered. This ecosystem-like effect is expected to inform the Portfolio

Manager's investment priorities and capital deployment strategy going forward. Supplementing this process, the investment team utilizes a proprietary deal-by-deal projection model to assess how prospective investments may impact fund-level returns. The model is continuously refreshed with MAP's latest views on completed transactions through the post-close monitoring process, which seeks to provide a dynamic, up-to-date returns framework that supports ongoing investment decision-making.

Active portfolio management also means that the Portfolio Manager will evaluate whether secondaries sales of a subset of its portfolio may be prudent in certain circumstances. Such circumstances could include locking in unrealized gains, a change in strategy on the part of the general partner (including with respect to environmental and social matters), opportunistic sales that optimize returns and/or rebalance the diversification of the portfolio.

Allocation of Investment Opportunities

Entities within MAM are permitted to manage other investor commitments through separately managed accounts, co-investment vehicles, or other structures. As further set forth in the Partnership Agreement and summarized under Section 10 —“Detailed Term Sheet—Allocation of Investment Opportunities” and Section 11 —“Risk Factors and Potential Conflicts of Interest—Allocation of Investment Opportunities”, for the avoidance of doubt, MAPIF II will generally retain a priority right over privately-negotiated equity and equity-related secondary investments that meet the Partnership's investment objective, as determined in good faith by the Portfolio Manager through the entirety of the Investment Period, except as otherwise described under Section 10 —“Detailed Term Sheet—Allocation of Investment Opportunities” and Section 11 —“Risk Factors and Potential Conflicts of Interest—Allocation of Investment Opportunities”.²³ There is currently no MAM-managed vehicle with a formal priority allocation of secondaries investment opportunities ahead of MAPIF II and with available capital commitments to deploy.

Investment opportunities sourced by or presented to any Macquarie entity outside of MAM Solutions will generally not be required to be presented to the Fund and may be made (in whole or in part) away from the Fund.

Additionally, subject to maintenance of information barriers within MAM, the Portfolio Manager will have discretion to determine when and if an investment opportunity has been presented to or available to MAM. Circumstances that may involve an opportunity being presented to MAM but not available for investment by the Fund include, without limitation, where a third party potential purchaser has exclusivity to a transaction, contractual or otherwise, and does not make such opportunity available in whole or in part to the Fund.

For more detail on the foregoing, please refer to Section 10 —“Detailed Term Sheet—Allocation of Investment Opportunities” and Section 11 —“Risk Factors and Potential Conflicts of Interest—Broad and Wide-Ranging Activities”, “—Relationship with Macquarie and Other Funds Managed by Macquarie” and “—Allocation of Investment Opportunities”.

²³ See Section 10 —“Detailed Term Sheet” for certain carve outs from the priority right.

The Evolution of MAM's Infrastructure Platform

MAM's infrastructure platform was formed in 1994 with the launch of the Hills Motorway Trust, MAM's first infrastructure asset and fund as well as Australia's first listed toll road. Since then, MAM has progressively expanded into new markets and asset classes – aiming to build stronger businesses that are focused on enhancing the essential services they provide to the customers and communities who rely on them.

The timeline below sets out some of the significant milestones that have shaped the evolution of MAM's infrastructure platform:

1994	- Infrastructure and Specialised Funds group established by Macquarie in Sydney (Australia) - Launched Hills Motorway Trust – MAM's first infrastructure asset and fund
1996	IPO of Macquarie Infrastructure Group on ASX – creating one of the largest developers and operators of toll roads globally
1999	Established presence in London (United Kingdom)

its products and broader platform. Historically, given the nature of the infrastructure asset class, most of MAM's investors have been pension funds, insurance companies, and sovereign wealth funds.

Infrastructure funds management is a core business for Macquarie and has been a key driver of its growth for more than a decade.

As of September 30, 2025, MAM Real Assets has infrastructure assets under management of $233 billion and manages over 180 infrastructure businesses in over 30 countries. In managing these assets, MAM takes an active approach, working closely with each asset's management team in seeking to create value and drive business performance. Each of MAM's portfolio companies are supported by a number of executives focused on implementing fund-level strategy and asset-level business plans. This includes senior industry and finance specialists with skills and experience specific to asset sectors.

MAM aims to manage investments both profitably and responsibly. MAM believes the successful management of infrastructure assets must consider the needs and priorities of all stakeholders, particularly members of the communities that those assets serve.

The Portfolio Manager

The Portfolio Manager is a wholly owned indirect subsidiary of Macquarie Group Limited and is part of Macquarie Asset Management.

The Portfolio Manager is staffed as follows:³⁶

- Investment Committee: comprises Wandy Hoh, Head of Infrastructure Secondaries, Robbie Burns, Head of MAM Solutions, Graeme Conway, Senior Advisor to MAM and former Chief Commercial Officer of MAM, and Charles Spiller, Senior Advisor to MAM and former Deputy Chief Investment Officer for the Pennsylvania Public Employees' Retirement System.
- Investment team: comprises Bryan Beach, Plern Bonython, Shounak Ghosh, Christian Simmons, Kejdi Mucaj, Sophia Feder and Brandon Bell.
- MAM Private Markets Specialists: includes professionals with substantial experience and deep knowledge across legal, tax, finance, compliance, risk, sustainability, and strategy providing functional support to MAPIF II, each of whom will devote significant time to the Fund.

The Portfolio Manager and its staff, including members of the Investment Committee ("IC"), are physically separated from MAM's equity infrastructure direct investing teams in an access-restricted area of MAM's New York City and London offices. Confidential information provided to the Portfolio Manager and its staff may not be shared with anyone other than MAP specialists, or with Private Market specialists for purposes of reporting, compliance, and risk management. This includes information related to MAP - managed investments and potential investments. MAPIF II data is stored in separate, access-restricted workspaces on Macquarie's intranet as well as its transaction record-keeping software. Additionally, management of investment personnel is independent of that supervising MAM's equity infrastructure direct investing divisions up to above-the-wall MAM-wide individuals such as the Group Head of MAM.

The Portfolio Manager's Investment Committee and investment team have implemented information protocols designed to address potential conflicts of interest with MAM's equity infrastructure direct investing businesses and MAM Real Assets for reasons including principally the following:

- Focus and responsibility: The Portfolio Manager believes that having its team dedicated to secondaries products has the potential to yield better investment and risk management outcomes and better alignment with investors in its products relative to having its personnel comingled with MAM's other investing teams;

³⁶ There can be no assurance that any individual professional will continue to be associated with the Portfolio Manager.

- Specialist skill set: both infrastructure investing and secondaries investing are highly specialized disciplines, and the Portfolio Manager expects infrastructure secondaries to develop into its own sub-discipline as the market matures. The Portfolio Manager believes that having a dedicated team focused on developing this expertise will result in a stronger investment capability over time; and
- Ensuring the trust of counterparties: The Portfolio Manager believes that the separate nature of its team relative to MAM's equity infrastructure direct investing business, together with information protocols designed to prevent information from making its way into the hands of competitors (including MAM-managed funds in the Real Assets division), increases counterparty confidence in dealing with the Fund. In turn, the Portfolio Manager believes the Fund will benefit from being able to potentially evaluate more and better investment opportunities.

7. SUSTAINABILITY

MAM's Approach³⁸

Managing its portfolio for sustainable, long-term success is part of MAM's broader responsibility to its investors, the businesses in which MAM invests, and the communities in which they operate. MAM believes the promotion of this contributes to the long-term profitability and durability of these businesses.

The Portfolio Manager invests through a fund-of-funds structure and its role as an indirect investor does not generally permit direct influence at the asset level. However, consistent with the MAM philosophy, the Portfolio Manager intends to engage with investors, managers, industry groups, and other stakeholders on sustainability matters with the aim of promoting shared knowledge and experience and continuing to improve its own frameworks and performance on these important matters. The disclosures in this section have been included inter alia, to comply with the requirement under Article 6 of SFDR to describe the manner in which sustainability risks are integrated into the investment decisions of the Portfolio Manager. Please refer to Section 11 —“Risk Factors and Potential Conflicts of Interest” for a description of the risks, including sustainability risks, which may impact the returns of the Fund.

Managing Sustainability Risks in the Investment Process

The Portfolio Manager, under the oversight of the AIFM, seeks to consider material sustainability risks throughout the investment lifecycle. MAM's sustainability policies and frameworks provide the Portfolio Manager with a robust structure for embedding environmental, social, and governance risk management into everyday business activities and is aligned with the broader Macquarie Group approach. While the Fund will have less direct influence and/or control at the portfolio company-level based on its role as a passive and indirect investor, its approach to reviewing sustainability risks is based on material concerns at both the fund / general partner, and underlying asset level, as, to the extent sustainability risks materialize, this may have an impact on the returns of the Fund.

A. Initial Screening

During the initial screening process, investment opportunities are evaluated for potential sustainability “red flags”, including anything that the investment team believes could have a material negative reputational impact on the Fund or its investors. Sustainability issues that arise from this initial review will prompt a broader discussion and evaluation of potential risks and the overall appropriateness of the investment. Any potential investment can be rejected at this stage based on the sustainability review where material issues are identified, which can include, but is not limited to, one (or a combination of) sustainability issues related to: Underlying Fund portfolio companies, the Underlying Fund general partner, the seller, or transaction structure. Each secondary transaction will be evaluated based on the opportunity-specific concerns at diligence. Anti-bribery and corruption assessments are also conducted for each potential investment, and all transactions are screened for conflicts of interest.

If material sustainability risks (including examples noted above) surface during a screening, investment teams will flag potential concerns and consult the broader MAM organizational resources for guidance.

B. Sustainability Due Diligence

Our sustainability due diligence will generally focus on the following areas:

³⁸ Please refer to the Important Notice for additional important information regarding sustainability.

- Underlying fund manager due diligence focusing on their available policies, related processes and management of material sustainability risks
- Review of material Underlying Fund portfolio companies for material sustainability risks (when permitted by the Underlying Fund general partner)

Based on asset concentration, risk profile, the nature of the Fund's investment, access to information and other relevant factors, the MAP team intends to modify due diligence efforts to appropriately address each unique transaction opportunity and structure.

The Portfolio Manager is supported by Macquarie Group's dedicated Environmental and Social Risk team and by external partners as needed.

Significant issues or non-compliance with accepted good practice and/or relevant standards and regulation identified during diligence are highlighted to the Investment Committee as part of the investment proposal.

C. Post-Close Monitoring

Post-close, the Portfolio Manager will use commercially reasonable efforts to monitor any material sustainability risks identified during diligence, where deemed appropriate. The Portfolio Manager periodically reviews the assets within the portfolio and discusses any material risks identified as needed. :

8. INVESTMENT PERFORMANCE

This section will be updated pursuant to one or more supplements to this Memorandum to provide a summary of the performance of MAPIF I, the Fund’s predecessor. MAPIF I held final close in June 2025, with final capital commitments of over US$700 million across MAPIF I fund vehicles and separately managed account (“SMA”) capital. Since inception, MAPIF I has completed nine transactions and is over 80% deployed³⁹. The MAP team has deployed US$620m of MAPIF I and SMA capital into a diversified portfolio of 22 underlying funds, managed by 12 separate GPs and covering 200+ underlying asset⁴⁰.

Summary Investment Performance as of September 30, 2025⁴¹

	Vintage Year ¹	Total Commitments	Committed Capital ²	Invested Capital ³	Realized Value ⁴	Unrealized Value ⁵	Total Value ⁶	Gross Multiple ⁷	Gross IRR ⁸	Net Multiple ⁹	Net IRR ¹⁰	Hypothetical Net IRR (without Fund Facility) ¹¹
MAPIF I	2023	517.0	419.7	388.4	40.7	419.2	459.9	1.2x	17.9%	1.1x	14.0%	13.6%

² Committed Capital represents the total amount the predecessor fund has allocated for investments, including expenses outside commitment and transaction costs.

³ Invested Capital represents amounts contributed to Underlying Funds and includes transaction costs associated with the investments. Invested Capital excludes unfunded commitments.

⁶ Total Value is the sum of Realized Value and Unrealized Value.

⁷ Gross Multiple is the Total Value of fund investments (realized and unrealized) divided by total Invested Capital. Gross Multiple does not reflect the deduction of management fees, allocable fund expenses, carried interest, taxes or other expenses borne, or which are expected to be borne, by investors in the funds (or by vehicles through which they participate in investments, such as, for example, alternative investment vehicles, corporations or feeder vehicles), which will reduce returns and, in the aggregate, are expected to be substantial and material.

interest, and (iv) the excuse or exclusion of an investor for one or more of such fund's investments. Accordingly, no investor, even if participating in a fund, necessarily achieved the exact Net IRR shown. Net IRR also reflects the effects of leverage due to a fund's use of a subscription line or other credit facility, which may be significant and impacts the calculation of net performance metrics and may make Net IRR calculations higher than they otherwise would be without fund-level borrowing, as these calculations generally depend on the amount and timing of capital contributions. Actual ultimately realized IRRs for the portfolios that include unrealized investments will depend on, among other factors, future operating results, the value of the assets and market conditions at the time of underwriting and disposition, any related transaction costs and the timing and manner of sale, all of which may differ from the assumptions and circumstances on which the IRRs contained herein are based; accordingly, the actual ultimately realized IRRs may differ materially from the realized and unrealized returns indicated herein.

The realized IRRs for the portfolios that include unrealized investments will depend on, among other factors, future operating results, the value of the assets and market conditions at the time of underwriting and disposition, gains or loss from fluctuations in foreign exchange rates for non-USD investments, any related transaction costs and the timing and manner of sale, all of which may differ from the assumptions and circumstances on which these IRRs contained herein are based; accordingly, the realized IRRs may differ materially from the realized and unrealized returns indicated herein.

- ¹¹ The Hypothetical Net IRR (without Fund Facility) is the Net IRR adjusted to reflect amounts of all drawdowns and repayments on the subscription facility and to reflect the respective timing as if each of these cash flows was an amount drawn from or distributed to investors, adding back as cashflows the impact of the interest costs, facility fees, undrawn fees, and legal fees associated with the subscription facility as of the end of the period; and an adjustment to the carried interest calculation to reflect the changes in the resultant investor cash flows, as well as the impact of removing the fees and interest costs associated with the subscription facilities.

Note: This information must be read in conjunction with, and remains subject to, the disclosures in the Important Notice at the beginning of this document. Past performance does not predict future returns, is no guarantee of future results or returns and may increase or decrease as a result of currency fluctuations. There can be no assurance that the Fund will achieve comparable results, that the returns generated by the Fund will equal or exceed those of other Macquarie managed funds or that MAPIF II will be able to implement its investment strategy or achieve its investment objectives. There can be no assurance that unrealized investments will be realized at the valuations reflected above. Ultimate returns will depend on the value of each investment and may vary significantly from the returns presented above. The performance of any predecessor fund referred to herein that is still in the process of making or realizing upon investments may be significantly affected by future investment activities. For the foregoing reasons, prospective investors should attach correspondingly qualified consideration to the performance information herein. Prospective investors are encouraged to contact MAM representatives to discuss the procedures and methodologies used to calculate the investment performance information provided herein.

Note on Foreign Exchange rates: All amounts are presented in U.S Dollars (USD). Local currency figures have been converted to USD, and valuations, capital activity, and metrics incorporate the effects of foreign exchange movements. USD cash flows are converted from natural currency to USD applying the spot FX rate as at the relevant date of the transaction, except where the fund currency of the investment is USD in which case the actual USD cash flows are used. All figures are rounded to one decimal place. Any arithmetic inconsistencies are due to rounding.

(the “Main Fund”), the “Fund” or “MAPIF II”).

The Partnership qualifies as an externally managed alternative investment fund (“AIF”) within the meaning of Directive 2011/61/EU of 8 June 2011 on Alternative Investment Fund Managers, as implemented in any relevant jurisdiction, together with Commission Delegated Regulation (EU) No 231/2013, as well as any similar or supplementary law, rule or regulation, including as implemented, assimilated, amended, replaced, reenacted, and/or consolidated in the United Kingdom pursuant to applicable legislation including the UK Alternative Investment Fund Managers Regulations 2013/1773, and in each case as amended from time to time, including as amended in the EEA by Directive (EU) 2024/927 (the “AIFMD”), and is registered with the Registre de Commerce et des Sociétés of the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg under number B305749. Macquarie Asset Management Europe S.à r.l., a private limited liability company (société à responsabilité limitée) incorporated under the laws of the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg (the “AIFM”), has been appointed as the authorised external alternative investment fund manager of the Partnership by the General Partner. The AIFM has been authorized by the Commission de Surveillance du Secteur Financier of the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg (the “CSSF”) as an alternative investment fund manager pursuant to the law of 12 July 2013 on Alternative Investment Fund Managers, as may be amended from time to time, which has implemented the AIFMD in Luxembourg (the “AIFM Law”).

Given the range of MAPIF II’s anticipated investments, the Main Fund is expected to generate both portfolio (or passive) income including capital gains, dividends and interest as well as active business income including income that is unrelated business taxable income (“UBTI”), effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the U.S. (“ECI”) and commercial activity income (“CAI”), as those terms are used in the U.S. Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended, and as may be further defined in the Partnership Agreement.

The Blocker Fund

Limited Partners who are sensitive to UBTI, ECI or CAI are expected to have the opportunity to invest in the Partnership, which will act as a blocker fund and hold certain interests in the Fund’s underlying investments through one or more intermediary “blocker” entities that are treated as corporations for U.S. tax purposes. The blocker entities are expected to comprise both one or more Delaware limited liability companies and one or more non-U.S. entities each of which elects to be treated as a corporation for U.S. tax purposes. The blocker entities are expected to be capitalized through a combination of equity and shareholder loans, as appropriate, and are expected to hold their interests in the Fund’s underlying investments through one or more intermediate entities each of which is treated as a partnership or other flow-through entity for U.S. tax purposes and which are expected to issue “tracking” interests that track underlying investments. The tracking interests held by the U.S. blocker entities are generally expected to track investments that are expected to give rise to ECI/UBTI/CAI; by contrast, the tracking interests held by the non-U.S. blocker entities (or that are held by the blocker fund without the use of a blocker entity) are generally expected to track investments that are not expected to give rise to ECI/UBTI/CAI.

Alternative Vehicles

The General Partner reserves the right to establish one or more Alternative Vehicles to make investments due to legal, tax, regulatory or other considerations relating to specific investment opportunities or relating to certain Limited Partners. Alternative Vehicles will contain terms and conditions generally comparable to those of the Partnership or the Main Fund, as applicable, and will be managed by the AIFM, the Portfolio Manager or an affiliate thereof. Alternative Vehicles may draw down Limited Partners' committed but undrawn capital in the same manner as drawdowns are made by the Fund (See also Section 11 —“Risk Factors and Potential Conflicts of Interest”).

Parallel Funds

In order to facilitate investment by certain investors, the General Partner (or an affiliate thereof), including the general partner of the Main Fund (the “Main Fund General Partner”) is permitted to create parallel investment entities (referred to herein as “Parallel Funds” and which includes the Main Fund) that will, subject to applicable legal, tax, accounting, regulatory, structural or other similar considerations, generally invest and divest proportionally on the basis of available capital in all Portfolio Investments and share proportionately in expenses, on the basis of invested capital, other than organizational expenses, any interest and other costs of any Fund indebtedness, costs and expenses relating to annual meetings, audits, insurance and fund administration, general legal fees and expenses, and bank fees and charges, in each case which are shared on the basis of committed capital, unless the General Partner or Main Fund General Partner determines in its reasonable discretion to charge such expenses to the Partnership or a particular Parallel Fund. The terms of Parallel Funds may differ from those of the Partnership or the Main Fund including, without limitation, with respect to management fee and carried interest terms, co-investment rights, investment guidelines and limitations and Limited Partner Advisory Committee membership. The General Partner or Main Fund General Partner may require or, in its discretion, allow certain investors to invest in a Parallel Fund in lieu of or in addition to the Partnership or the Main Fund, subject to the terms of the partnership agreement or similar governing document of such Parallel Fund, including, without limitation, with respect to minimum capital commitment amounts to the Partnership and/or Parallel Fund. The Partnership shall be deemed to be a Parallel Fund for purposes herein and under the partnership agreement of the Main Fund.

The AIFM

The AIFMD became effective across the EU on July 22, 2013. The AIFMD regulates (i) alternative investment fund managers based in the EU, (ii) the management of any alternative investment fund (“AIF”) established in the EU and (iii) the marketing in the EU of any AIF, such as the Partnership. The AIFMD imposes detailed and prescriptive obligations on AIFMs established in the EU.

The General Partner has appointed Macquarie Asset Management Europe S.à r.l. (the “AIFM”) as the external alternative investment fund manager of the Partnership pursuant to the AIFM Agreement. The AIFM has been authorized by the CSSF as an alternative investment fund manager pursuant to the AIFM Law.

As an authorized alternative investment fund manager, the AIFM is subject to compliance obligations and requirements under the AIFMD as implemented. Such obligations and requirements include, but are not limited to, the following: (i) the AIFM will be subject to capital requirements and, in relation to the funds that it manages, certain reporting, disclosure, depositary and other compliance obligations under the AIFMD, which will result in the Fund incurring additional costs and expenses; (ii) the Fund and/or the AIFM may become subject to additional regulatory or compliance obligations arising under national law in certain EEA jurisdictions, which may result in the Fund incurring additional costs and expenses or otherwise affect the management and operation of the Fund; (iii) the AIFM will be required to make detailed information relating to the Partnership and its investments available to regulators and third parties; and (iv) the AIFMD will also restrict certain activities of the Partnership in relation to EEA portfolio investments including, in some circumstances, the Partnership's ability to recapitalise, refinance or potentially restructure an EEA portfolio investment.

The AIFM may provide this Memorandum and other information regarding the Partnership and the Interests to investors domiciled or with a registered office in the EEA ("EEA Investors") who have contacted the AIFM (or its affiliates or placement agents) at such EEA Investor's own initiative to request such information.

Marketing Under the AIFMD "Passport"

A fully authorized AIFM established in the EEA is entitled to market an AIF established in the EEA, such as the Partnership, to professional investors ("Professional Investors") throughout the EEA under a marketing passport. The passport requires the submission of a notification file to the competent authority of the home member state of the AIFM; the home state authority is then responsible for notifying the competent authority in each other member state in which the AIFM intends to market. An authorized EEA AIFM is required to provide periodic reporting to its home competent authority and must comply in full with the AIFMD as implemented.

Marketing in the UK Under the National Private Placement

Following Brexit, a fully authorized AIFM established in the EEA is no longer entitled to market an AIF established in the EEA, such as the Partnership, to Professional Investors in the UK under a marketing passport. However, the AIFMD as implemented and retained in UK law following the end of the Brexit transitional period ("UK AIFMD") allows for such an AIFM to register funds for marketing on a case-by-case basis under the UK's national private placement regime. Following such registration, the AIFM will be required to comply with a subset of the ongoing compliance requirements provided for in UK AIFMD.

The General Partner

The managing general partner (associé commandité-gérant) of the Partnership is MAPIF II Luxembourg GP S.à r.l., a private limited liability company (société à responsabilité limitée) incorporated under the laws of the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg, having its registered address at 20, boulevard Royal, L-2449 Luxembourg, Grand Duchy of Luxembourg, and is registered with the Registre de Commerce et des Sociétés of the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg under number B305630 (the "General Partner"). The General Partner is an indirect subsidiary of Macquarie and part of MAM. The General Partner is responsible for the management of the Partnership; however, various rights and obligations of the General Partner will be delegated to, and performed by the AIFM who, in turn, has delegated the portfolio management function of the Partnership to the Portfolio Manager. The responsibilities of the General Partner, the AIFM and the Portfolio Manager will be set out in the Partnership Agreement, the AIFM Agreement and the Portfolio Management Agreement, respectively. Additional general partners may also be established, which will also be subsidiaries of Macquarie, and will be responsible for the management of any Alternative Vehicles and Parallel Funds, as applicable. The rights and obligations of any additional MAPIF II general partners related to investment matters will be delegated to, and performed by, the Portfolio Manager in the same manner as the general partner of the Main Fund.

The Founder Partner

Macquarie Alliance Partners Holdings Pty Limited, a Macquarie affiliate and an Australian limited company, will be a special limited partner of the Partnership (the "Founder Partner") and will be entitled to receive carried interest distributions as described in Section 10—“Detailed Term Sheet—Distributions”). The Founder Partner is not authorized to carry out any act of management nor to bind the Partnership.

The Portfolio Manager

The Partnership is managed by the AIFM and Macquarie Alliance Partners Management, LLC, a subsidiary of Macquarie Group Limited and part of MAM (the “Portfolio Manager”). The General Partner has delegated responsibilities to the AIFM who, in turn, has delegated the portfolio management function of the Partnership to the Portfolio Manager that include, but are not limited to:

- sourcing, assessing and negotiating the terms of potential Portfolio Investments;
- advising the AIFM on the management of the Partnership’s portfolio Investments;
- providing Limited Partners with reports and updates on the Partnership and its Portfolio Investments; and undertaking other matters involved in the management and administration of the Partnership.

Investment decisions to be made by the Portfolio Manager will be performed by the management team, subject to the approval of the Investment Committee (as described in Section 6 —“Platform Overview—The Portfolio Manager”).⁴²

Investment Committee

The Investment Committee will be responsible for the investment decisions of MAPIF II within the parameters of the Partnership Agreement. The Investment Committee will comprise senior employees and advisors of MAM, and the initial Investment Committee members will be Wandy Hoh, Robbie Burns, Graeme Conway and Charles Spiller. The Portfolio Manager expects to periodically review the composition of the Investment Committee and evaluate the addition of other financial professionals. Investment Committee member biographies are set out in Section 6 —“Platform Overview—The Portfolio Manager”.⁴³

Limited Partner Advisory Committee

A Limited Partner Advisory Committee (the “LPAC”) will be formed for the Fund. The role of the LPAC will include, among other things:

- approving any proposed waivers of the investment limitations of MAPIF II;
- reviewing and approving the replacement of auditors for MAPIF II;
- resolving conflict of interest issues presented to it, including, but not limited to, certain related party matters between MAPIF II and other parties affiliated with the AIFM, the Founder Partner, the Portfolio Manager or the General Partner;
- providing consent on behalf of the Fund and the MAPIF II Limited Partners to any transaction provided for in Sections 205 or 206(3) of the U.S. Investment Advisers Act of 1940 (the “Advisers Act”), as amended, without derogation to any other legally permissible means of providing such consent; and
- approving other matters included in the relevant partnership agreements that require LPAC approval.

Consents of a majority in interest of the combined Limited Partners may be obtained in lieu of LPAC consent.

The LPAC shall be formed of representatives or designees of Limited Partners and/or investors in the Parallel Funds or Feeder Funds (whether admitted to the Partnership or Parallel Funds or Feeder Funds at

No member of the LPAC may be an employee of Macquarie or its affiliates or an affiliate of the General Partner.

Investment Objective	The Fund’s investment objective is to generate attractive risk-adjusted returns through investments in a diversified portfolio of managed infrastructure and infrastructure-related assets and businesses, with a focus on member countries of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (the “OECD”). The Fund’s primary strategy is to make investments in interests in established private investment funds through secondary market purchases and primary investments in continuation vehicles and other liquidity solutions transactions. Any private investment funds in which the Fund invests shall be referred to herein as an “Underlying Fund”. Investments acquired by the Fund, including any investment in an Underlying Fund or any direct investments in assets, projects or operating companies (collectively, “Operating Companies”) permitted under the Partnership Agreement, are collectively referred to herein as “Portfolio Investments.” Except as provided for under “Investment Limitations” below and in the Partnership Agreement, the Fund will not be limited in the size or type of its investments.
Minimum Capital Commitments	The minimum capital commitment (“Capital Commitment”) by investors in the Partnership will be $10 million or any smaller amount agreed to by the General Partner in its sole discretion.
Macquarie Commitment	The general partner of the Main Fund will cause its aggregate capital commitment (together with capital commitments of its affiliates (including the Founder Partner) and individuals employed by, performing services on behalf of, or associated with, Macquarie and certain family members and estate planning vehicles of the foregoing as of the Final Closing Date (as defined below)) to the Fund to be equal to 5% of the aggregate Capital Commitments of the Limited Partners up to a maximum of $50 million (the “Macquarie Commitment”), either as a Capital Commitment (either directly to the Fund or through the Founder Partner and/or its affiliates) or on a side-by-side basis with the Fund in one or more partnerships or other aggregator vehicles through which the Fund will hold its investments (each, an “Aggregator Vehicle”). Subject to the foregoing, the Founder Partner and its affiliates may make an aggregate capital commitment of an amount which is greater than the amount required by the preceding sentence and which may be retained by the Founder Partner and/or one or more of its affiliates or may be subject to a dollar-for-dollar reduction upon the acceptance of additional capital commitments of the Fund at subsequent closings (but will in no event reduce the obligation required by the preceding sentence). For the avoidance of doubt, the General Partner shall at all times hold (directly or indirectly) less than 5% of the aggregate interests (parts d'intérêts) in the Partnership. For purposes of this clause, the term “interest” shall be understood as partnership interests (parts d'intérêts) within the meaning of article 14(4) of the Luxembourg income tax law of 4 December 1967 (Loi modifiée concernant l'impôt sur le revenu) and §2(2)3 the Luxembourg commercial tax law of 1 December 1936 (Gewerbesteuer-gesetz). The Macquarie Commitment may be allocated to and satisfied by any entity within Macquarie (and/or by the individuals or entities described above) investing or committing to invest directly or indirectly in the Fund, or alongside the Fund (or any Aggregator Vehicles through which the Fund may make investments); provided, that for the avoidance of doubt, any such entity within Macquarie making the Macquarie Commitment alongside the Fund shall participate in each Portfolio Investment pari passu with the Fund and/or one or more Aggregator Vehicles (generally by participating alongside the Fund in one or more Aggregator Vehicles (as defined below) through which the Fund holds its Portfolio Investments). See “Aggregator Vehicles” below.

Total Capital Commitments	The Fund is targeting Capital Commitments aggregating $1.0 billion - $1.5 billion. Capital Commitments in excess of or less than this amount are permitted to be accepted at the discretion of the General Partner. The Partners’ Capital Commitments will be funded based on their undrawn Capital Commitments as described in “Drawdowns” below.
Investment Limitations	The Fund will not: (i) invest at any time more than 20% of its aggregate capital commitments (excluding any amounts invested that the General Partner expects to syndicate to co-investors or third parties) in a single Underlying Fund (including Follow-On Investments (as defined below)); (ii) invest at any time more than 25% of its aggregate capital commitments (excluding any amounts invested that the General Partner expects to syndicate to co-investors or third parties) in Underlying Funds that are managed by the same manager or general partner (including Macquarie), or an affiliate thereof (including Follow-On Investments); (iii) invest at any time more than 20% of aggregate capital commitments (excluding any amounts invested that the General Partner expects to syndicate to co-investors or third parties) collectively in Underlying Funds that have as their primary investment objective the making of non-OECD (as defined below) investments and Operating Companies the headquarters and principal place of business of which are located in non-OECD jurisdictions; (iv) invest at any time more than 5% of aggregate capital commitments (excluding any amounts invested that the General Partner expects to syndicate to co-investors or third parties) collectively in (A) Underlying Funds, other than continuation vehicles, through primary subscriptions for limited partner or similar interests from the issuing Underlying Fund (“Primary Fund Investments”), and (B) direct investments in the securities or other interests in an operating business other than an Underlying Fund, including direct private equity, real estate and/or similar investments (collectively, “Direct Investments”), in each case, inclusive of Follow-On Investments; provided, that the foregoing limitation shall not apply to (1) investments (including primary commitments) in continuation vehicles or similar GP-led transactions involving existing assets or investments that will continue to be managed by the same investment manager or its affiliates, or (2) any Primary Fund Investment or Direct Investment (including a required GP commitment or stapled commitment or investment) undertaken in connection with a larger secondary investment transaction, and such investments shall not be taken into account for purposes of the 5% limitation; (v) make any Direct Investment or Primary Fund Investment in an Underlying Fund or Operating Company managed by Macquarie; (vi) invest in any transaction as a Direct Investment to acquire control of a publicly traded company if the transaction at the time of investment is opposed by the board of directors (or analogous governing body) of such issuer; provided that the acquisition of a company in connection with a bankruptcy or similar restructuring shall not be prohibited, notwithstanding any opposition of the equity owners or any other constituency of any such business or their representatives; (vii) make open market purchases of publicly traded securities as a Direct Investment unless such open market purchases (A) are made in connection with or with a view to a contemplated privately negotiated transaction in which the Fund (either alone or as part of a consortium) would have, or would seek to have, control or a significant influence over the management and/or operations of the relevant Operating Company or (B) are made subsequent to any such privately negotiated transaction in the same Operating Company or one of its affiliates; or (viii) effect (in a single transaction or series of contemporaneous and related transactions) an acquisition of interests in one or more Underlying Funds in which 40% or more of the Fund’s cost-basis attributable to such transactions (as determined pursuant to the purchase price allocation under the relevant transaction documents) involves interests in Underlying Funds managed by Macquarie, unless one or more non-affiliated third parties participates in such transactions alongside the Partnership in a meaningful amount at substantially the same time on substantially the same economic terms (one-third or more of the total transaction value being deemed to be a “meaningful amount” for purposes of this limitation). Compliance with the foregoing investment limitations will be measured at the time of investment, based on the cost of such investment (and, if applicable, taking into account the exchange rates in effect at that time). Additionally, prior to the Final Closing Date, the percentage limitations above shall be based on the greater of (x) $1.5 billion and (y) the actual aggregate capital commitments of the Fund (such greater amount, the “Benchmark Commitments”). The foregoing investment limitations may generally be waived on a case-by-case basis by the Portfolio Manager with the consent of the LPAC (as defined below). Beginning as of the date that is 24 months following the Initial Closing Date, the Fund shall comply with the restrictions relating to single borrower exposure limits in respect of certain financial institutions and funds in Article 15(4a) of AIFMD (as amended by Directive (EU) 2024/927), subject to Articles 15(4c) and 15(4d) of AIFMD (as amended by Directive (EU) 2024/927); provided that, for the avoidance of doubt, the Fund will have up to 24 months from the Initial Closing Date in order to invest its assets in accordance with such restrictions. See also Section 11 —“Risk Factors and Potential Conflicts of Interest—Concentration of Investments; Lack of Diversity.”

Closings	An initial closing (the “Initial Closing”) will be held as soon as practicable on a date determined by the General Partner (the “Initial Closing Date”). Subsequent closings may occur at the discretion of the General Partner, at any time up to 12 months after the Initial Closing Date; provided that such period may be extended up to six months at the General Partner’s discretion (the date on which the period for subsequent closings expires, the “Final Closing Date”). See “Subsequent Closings” below.
Investment Period	The Partnership’s investment period (the “Investment Period”) will last until the three-year anniversary of the Final Closing Date, which period may be extended for up to one additional year by the General Partner in its sole discretion. The Investment Period is subject to earlier termination pursuant to the Partnership Agreement, including in connection with the occurrence of a Key Person Event, as described therein. Following the expiration or termination of the Investment Period and during the remaining life of the Partnership, all Partners generally will be released from any further obligation to fund their undrawn Capital Commitments for the purposes of allowing the Partnership to make new Portfolio Investments (as adjusted pursuant to “Recycling of Capital” below, the “Undrawn Capital Commitments”) except as otherwise provided in the Partnership Agreement and to the extent necessary to: (i) cover the expenses of the Partnership, including repayment of Partnership indebtedness (or satisfying guarantees) and fees and expenses related thereto, (ii) pay the Management Fee, (iii) complete Portfolio Investments in respect of which the Partnership (or an affiliate thereof) has entered into a signed letter of intent, memorandum of understanding, written agreement in principle, unsettled trade, definitive agreement to invest or similar written investment commitment on or prior to the expiration or termination of the Investment Period (“Pending Investments”), (iv) satisfy obligations to make capital contributions to Underlying Funds or Operating Companies, including amounts that are required to be invested or subject to being recalled or that are otherwise “recycled” pursuant to the terms of any Underlying Fund (which, for the avoidance of doubt, shall not be considered Follow-On Investments), and (v) make follow-on investments in or relating to existing Portfolio Investments (“Follow-On Investments”). As used herein, the term “Portfolio Investments” includes Pending Investments and Follow-On Investments. The General Partner will have the right to terminate the Investment Period upon any of the following: (i) when the Partnership has reached Full Investment (as defined below), (ii) the General Partner’s determination in good faith that changes in applicable laws or regulations or business conditions make termination of the Investment Period necessary or advisable or that it is impracticable for the Portfolio Manager to continue the business of seeking out and making Portfolio Investments on behalf of the Partnership, or (iii) the General Partner and either the LPAC or a majority in interest of the Combined Limited Partners determine to terminate the Investment Period.

Drawdowns	Subject to certain exclusion and cancellation provisions described below, Capital Contributions will be called down from Partners’ Undrawn Capital Commitments, generally on an as-needed basis (or for general working capital reserves) for Portfolio Investments (including deposits thereon), fees and expenses, with a minimum of 10 business days’ prior notice to the Limited Partners (each such call down, a “Capital Contribution”). Pending investment or distribution by the Partnership, monies held by the Partnership may be placed on deposit with major banks or in certain other short-term investments specified in the Partnership Agreement (“Temporary Investments”).
Recycling of Capital	Undrawn Capital Commitments may be increased by any amounts returned or distributed to the Partners, and such amounts will be subject to recall as described in the Partnership Agreement for future investments and expenses; provided that the General Partner will not cause the Partners to make Capital Contributions for Portfolio Investments in excess of 125% of the aggregate Capital Commitments (excluding, for purposes of determining compliance with the foregoing limitation, any amounts that are required to be reinvested or recalled or that are otherwise “recycled” pursuant to the terms of any Underlying Fund and any amounts invested in connection with a syndication by the Fund of a portion of a Portfolio Investment in accordance with Section 10 —“Detailed Term Sheet”—“Syndication of Co-Investments”).
Subsequent Closings	In addition to Management Fee payments as described below, Partners admitted or increasing their Capital Commitment at subsequent closings (each, a “Subsequent Closing” and, together with the Initial Closing, each a “Closing”) will pay for their share of the Capital Contributions previously made for any Portfolio Investments still held by the Partnership at the time of their admission or increase in Capital Commitment (net of any Investment Proceeds received prior to such date) and for Organizational Expenses and Partnership Expenses (including expenses related to borrowings, guarantees, underwriting arrangements or letters of credit by the Partnership) previously funded by prior or existing Partners, plus, additional amounts (“Additional Amounts”), if any, calculated by multiplying each such payment by an 8% per annum compounded rate (compounding daily) from the date each such amount was due to the date of the drawdown in connection with such Subsequent Closing (which Additional Amounts will not be treated as Capital Contributions), and will share in any subsequent distributions and allocations of income, gain, loss or expense of the Partnership that are attributable to any such Portfolio Investment as of the Initial Closing, regardless of when a Partner is actually admitted to the Partnership. Such amounts (including any Additional Amounts) paid by Partners admitted or increasing their Capital Commitment at Subsequent Closings will be refunded to existing Partners pro rata based on the amount and timing of their prior Capital Contributions thereto, and the amounts of such refunds in respect of Portfolio Investments, Partnership Expenses (including expenses related to borrowings, guarantees, underwriting arrangements or letters of credit by the Partnership) and Organizational Expenses (but not the Additional Amounts thereon) will be added to their Undrawn Capital Commitments and will be subject to recall, and will otherwise be treated as never having been made by such existing Limited Partners.

Distributions	Distributions from the Partnership may be made at any time as determined by the General Partner in its good faith judgment. The General Partner will be entitled to withhold from any distributions amounts necessary to, in its good faith judgment, satisfy, or create reasonable reserves for, working capital, capital expenditures or investments relating to, or in furtherance of the objectives, business plans or commitments of, the Partnership or any Portfolio Investments (including Pending Investments and Follow-On Investments), expenses (including, without limitation, the Management Fee, Partnership Expenses and expenses reimbursable to the General Partner, the Founder Partner, the AIFM and the Portfolio Manager or affiliates thereof), repaying indebtedness (and paying fees and expenses in connection therewith), satisfying guarantees and other liabilities of the Partnership as well as for any required tax withholdings. Net cash proceeds received in respect of securities or other property held or received by the Partnership, including net proceeds of a sale or other disposition (collectively, “Investment Proceeds”) in respect of any Portfolio Investment or portion thereof will be first divided among all Partners (including the General Partner and the Founder Partner) in proportion to their percentage interests in such Portfolio Investment. Thereafter, the amounts initially allocated to the General Partner and/or the Founder Partner will be distributed to such Partners, and the amounts initially allocated to each other Limited Partner in respect of such Portfolio Investment will be distributed between the Founder Partner, on the one hand, and such Limited Partner, on the other hand, in the following amounts and order of priority: I. Return of Capital. First, 100% to such Limited Partner until such Limited Partner has received cumulative distributions of Investment Proceeds pursuant to this clause I in an aggregate amount equal to such Limited Partner’s Capital Contributions to date (such amounts being referred to as such Limited Partner’s “Contributed Capital”); II. 8% Preferred Return. Second, 100% to such Limited Partner until the cumulative distributions to such Limited Partner of Investment Proceeds represent an 8% per annum internal rate of return (the amount of cumulative distributions required to provide such internal rate of return, the “Preferred Return”) on the amount of such Limited Partner’s Contributed Capital;

	III. Founder Partner Catch-Up to 12.5% Overall Carried Interest. Third, 100% to the Founder Partner until the cumulative Carried Interest (as defined below) distributions to the Founder Partner with respect to such Limited Partner equal 12.5% of the total amounts distributed in respect of such Limited Partner, excluding those that represent a return of Contributed Capital and including distributions of Carried Interest to the Founder Partner in respect of such Limited Partner; and IV. 87.5% / 12.5% Split. Thereafter, 87.5% to such Limited Partner and 12.5% to the Founder Partner (the distributions to the Founder Partner described in clause III and this clause IV, being referred to as “Carried Interest”). Distributions of income from Temporary Investments will be made among all Partners (including the General Partner and the Founder Partner) in proportion to their respective proportionate interests in the Partnership property or funds that produced such income, as reasonably determined by the General Partner. The amount of any taxes paid by the Partnership (or any entity in which the Partnership directly or indirectly invests) or any taxes withheld from receipts of the Partnership from or with respect to a Portfolio Investment (or any entity in which the Partnership directly or indirectly invests) shall be allocated among the Partners as reasonably determined by the General Partner and shall be deemed to have been distributed to such Partner as Investment Proceeds to the extent that such taxes are attributable to such Partner (such taxes, “Partner Attributable Taxes”). Partner Attributable Taxes include, without limitation, withholding or other taxes imposed on receipts of or from entities through which the Fund directly or indirectly invests in a Portfolio Investment to the extent that such taxes would have been imposed on the Limited Partner had the Limited Partner invested directly in the Portfolio Investment. The Founder Partner may elect not to receive (and may elect to impose conditions on its right to receive in the future) all or any portion of any cash Carried Interest distribution or income allocation in respect thereof that otherwise would be made to it. Any such cash distribution will be, in the General Partner’s sole discretion, either retained by the Partnership on the Founder Partner’s behalf or distributed to the other Limited Partners. To the extent that the Founder Partner elects not to receive any cash Carried Interest distribution or allocation, the General Partner may, upon satisfaction of any applicable condition, cause subsequent distributions or allocations to be made to the Founder Partner until it has received the amount of Carried Interest distributions or allocations it would then have been entitled to receive without such election. In no event will interest accrue on or be paid to the Founder Partner with respect to any such waived or deferred Carried Interest. Notwithstanding the foregoing distribution priorities, the General Partner may cause the Partnership to make distributions from time to time to the Founder Partner or its affiliates in amounts sufficient to permit the payment of the tax obligations of the Founder Partner or its affiliates and any of their members or partners in respect of allocations of taxable income or distributions related to the Carried Interest (based on certain assumptions). Any such distributions will be taken into account in making subsequent distributions of Carried Interest to the Founder Partner. All or any portion of the Founder Partner's and/or the General Partner's capital contributions and distributions (including in respect of the Carried Interest) may be made to, or received from, as applicable, one or more Aggregator Vehicles through which the Partnership and the Main Fund directly or indirectly invest and the economic provisions of the Partnership Agreement shall be interpreted and applied accordingly. See "Aggregator Vehicles" below.

In-Kind Distributions	Except upon the dissolution and winding up of the Partnership, the withdrawal of a Limited Partner or with the consent of a Limited Partner, distributions prior to the dissolution of the Partnership may only take the form of cash or marketable securities. Any distribution in kind of securities will be made in accordance with the Partnership Agreement.
Founder Partner Clawback	If, upon the final liquidating distribution of the Partnership (the "Clawback Determination Date"), distributions of Carried Interest to the Founder Partner have been made with respect to any Limited Partner (other than a defaulting Limited Partner) and either: (i) the cumulative distributions with respect to such Limited Partner do not equal or exceed the Preferred Return on the aggregate amount of Capital Contributions made by such Limited Partner; or (ii) the aggregate distributions of Carried Interest with respect to such Limited Partner exceed 12.5% of the sum of (I) the excess of (x) cumulative distributions to such Limited Partner over (y) the aggregate amount of Capital Contributions made by such Limited Partner and (II) the aggregate distributions of Carried Interest with respect to such Limited Partner (such excess amount being the "Excess 12.5% Amount"), determined after giving effect to all transactions through the Clawback Determination Date; then the Founder Partner shall be obligated to return promptly to the Partnership for distribution to such Limited Partner the lesser of (x) the Clawback Amount (as defined below) with respect to such Limited Partner and (y) the aggregate amount of distributions of Carried Interest made to the Founder Partner with respect to such Limited Partner, less income taxes with respect thereto (calculated using certain assumptions set forth in the Partnership Agreement). The "Clawback Amount" with respect to each Limited Partner shall equal the greater of (x) an amount such that if such amount were distributed to such Limited Partner, the cumulative distributions with respect to such Limited Partner (after increase for such amount) equal the Preferred Return on the aggregate amount of Capital Contributions made by such Limited Partner and (y) the Excess 12.5% Amount.
Allocations	The Partnership will establish and maintain a capital account for each Partner. All items of income, gain, loss and deduction will be allocated to the Partners' capital accounts in a manner generally consistent with the distribution procedures outlined under “Distributions” above.

Management Fees	The AIFM will be paid a combined management fee (the “Management Fee”) quarterly in advance, equal to the following amount, calculated separately with respect to each Limited Partner (subject to “Large Investor and Initial Closing Incentives” below): (A) During the Investment Period: Commencing on the later of (i) the Initial Closing Date and (ii) such later date as is determined by the General Partner and set forth in a written notice to the Limited Partners (the “Effective Date”) and up until the last day of the calendar quarter in which the Investment Period expires or terminates, 1.25% per annum multiplied by the Capital Commitment of such Limited Partner as of the start of the first day of the quarter in respect of which the Management Fee is then being paid; and (B) Following the Investment Period: Thereafter, commencing with the first Management Fee payment due date after the expiration or termination of the Investment Period, 1.25% per annum multiplied by the sum of such Limited Partner’s proportionate share (based on sharing percentage in each of the Fund’s investments) of the sum of (x) the reported net asset value of the Fund’s interest in all Portfolio Investments, and (y) the Fund’s unfunded capital commitments to all Underlying Funds, in each case, measured as of the start of the first day of the quarter in respect of which the Management Fee is then being paid. Certain commissions, fees, costs and expenses (other than indemnification) of any third-party placement agents or finders may reduce Management Fees payable at the General Partner’s election as described under “Offering and Organizational Expenses” below. The Management Fee will commence as of the Effective Date, regardless of when a Limited Partner is actually admitted to the Partnership. In addition to its Capital Contributions in respect of Portfolio Investments, Organizational Expenses and other Partnership Expenses, a Limited Partner participating in a Subsequent Closing will make a payment equal to its share of the Management Fee plus Additional Amounts, if any, thereon (which payments for Additional Amounts will not reduce such Limited Partner’s Undrawn Capital Commitment) calculated at an 8% per annum compounded internal rate of return from each date on which the Management Fee would otherwise have been due and payable to the date of such Subsequent Closing. The General Partner may, in its sole discretion, allocate all or any portion of the obligation to pay the Management Fee to one or more Aggregator Vehicles. See “Aggregator Vehicles” below.
Large Investor and Initial Closing Incentives	Management Fee Discounts. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary herein, the annual Management Fee percentage calculated from time to time with respect to a Limited Partner will be subject to reduction as follows:

	(a) Large Investor Discounts. i. a reduction of 0.30% per annum for a Limited Partner making a Capital Commitment of at least $200 million; ii. a reduction of 0.20% per annum for a Limited Partner making a Capital Commitment of at least $100 million but less than $200 million; and iii. a reduction of 0.10% per annum for a Limited Partner making a Capital Commitment of at least $50 million but less than $100 million; (b) Initial Closing Period Discounts. i. a reduction of 0.10% per annum for a Limited Partner making a Capital Commitment of at least $50 million that is accepted by the General Partner during the Initial Closing Period (as defined below); and ii. a reduction of 0.05% per annum for a Limited Partner making a Capital Commitment of less than $50 million that is accepted by the General Partner during the Initial Closing Period. (c) Returning Investor Discount. i. a reduction of 0.05% per annum for any Limited Partner that is a Returning Investor (as defined below) making a Capital Commitment of less than $50 million. The foregoing reductions can be applied collectively such that (as an example) a Limited Partner making a Capital Commitment of $200 million or more that is accepted by the General Partner during the Initial Closing Period will be entitled to an aggregate reduction in the annual Management Fee percentage calculated from time to time with respect to such Limited Partner of 0.40%. For purposes of the foregoing, (i) a “Returning Investor” is any Limited Partner that was, or whose affiliate (including, as determined by the General Partner, a commonly advised or managed investor) was, a limited partner of Macquarie Alliance Partners Infrastructure Fund, L.P. or any of its parallel funds, feeder vehicles, alternative investment vehicles and other related investment vehicles, and (ii) the “Initial Closing Period” means the period beginning on the Initial Closing Date and ending on the date that is 120 days after the Closing Date or on such later date as designated by the General Partner by written notice to the Limited Partners. The General Partner reserves the right to enter into side letters with one or more Limited Partners providing for different management fee terms than those set forth herein.

		Participation in Co-Investments. With respect to a Limited Partner that makes a Capital Commitment to the Fund of at least $100 million, if the General Partner determines, in its sole discretion, to offer any co-investment opportunity to such Limited Partner, such Limited Partner will have the opportunity, but not the obligation, to elect to invest in any such co-investment opportunity alongside the Partnership, without the application of a management fee or carried interest, until such time that the aggregate capital commitments made by such Limited Partner with respect to all such co-investment opportunities is at least an amount equal to 100% of such Limited Partner's Capital Commitment to the Partnership. Notwithstanding the foregoing, the General Partner shall not be obligated to offer or present any Limited Partner any co-investment opportunity, and all such co-investment opportunities, if any, shall be offered, if at all, in the sole discretion of the General Partner.
Management Offset	Fee	Except in connection with Underlying Funds managed or sponsored by Macquarie and its affiliates, neither the General Partner, the AIFM, the Portfolio Manager nor any personnel within MAM Solutions who are actively involved in sourcing and managing investments on behalf of the Fund (such personnel, "MAPIF Team Members") generally expects or intends to charge any cash or non-cash fees in respect of: (i) setup or other origination fees in connection with the origination of a Portfolio Investment by the Partnership, the AIFM, the Portfolio Manager or the General Partner, (ii) topping or break-up fees in connection with proposed but unconsummated Portfolio Investments, (iii) directors' or monitoring fees paid by a Portfolio Investment or (iv) commitment fees in connection with the Partnership's commitment to make a Portfolio Investment (collectively, "Other Fees"), and for the avoidance of doubt, it is intended that the Partnership's share of any break-up fees, commitment fees and other amounts received in respect of the Partnership's making capital available for any consummated or unconsummated transactions be paid to the Partnership or an entity owned, directly or indirectly, by the Partnership and not to the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager or any MAPIF Team Members. For the avoidance of doubt, Other Fees will not include any (A) management, advisory or similar fees or any carried interest or performance allocation payable (1) by any Underlying Fund managed or sponsored by Macquarie and its affiliates, or (2) otherwise to any person that is not a MAPIF Team Member, (B) equity or other compensation granted or paid by Operating Companies to any persons other than MAPIF Team Members who serve in a bona fide, non-director management capacity at any such Operating Company, or (C) fees or costs paid by co-investors to the Portfolio Manager or any affiliate thereof, nor shall any of the foregoing reduce the Management Fee or otherwise accrue to the benefit of the Partnership or the Limited Partners. However, if Other Fees are charged or earned by the General Partner, the AIFM, the Portfolio Manager or any MAPIF Team Members, 100% of the Partnership's share attributable to fee-paying Limited Partners (prorated with all other investors in the applicable Underlying Fund or Operating Company on the basis of their respective equity contributions) of such Other Fees, to the extent they exceed any out-of-pocket costs or expenses (including Broken Deal Expenses (as defined below)) in connection with such transactions incurred thereby, including any value-added, sales or similar taxes (but not income or similar taxes) applicable to such fees, received by (w) the General Partner, (x) the AIFM (y) the Portfolio Manager and (z) any MAPIF

	Team Members in any fiscal year (the “Reduction Amount”) shall reduce Management Fees borne by the Partnership in such fiscal year without duplication; provided, that the Reduction Amount shall be decreased by Partnership Expenses that the General Partner, the AIFM, the Portfolio Manager or such affiliates and/or personnel, as applicable, had elected to bear instead of calling capital from the Partnership. If, upon termination of the Partnership, an unapplied balance of the Reduction Amount remains, the AIFM shall pay to each Electing Fee Partner (as defined in the Management Agreement) such Electing Fee Partner’s pro rata share of the unapplied balance of the Reduction Amount based on the amount such Partner would receive if such amounts were distributed pursuant to the distribution waterfall set forth above. The Partnership’s share of any Other Fees shall be disclosed in the quarterly reports of the Partnership. See Section 11 —“Risk Factors and Potential Conflicts of Interest— Fees Payable to Macquarie; Underlying Portfolio Investment Relationships.”
Offering and Organizational Expenses	Each Limited Partner generally will pay its pro rata share on the basis of the aggregate Capital Commitments of all Combined Limited Partners of all legal, accounting and filing expenses, consultant fees (including in respect of consulting services provided by Third Party Consultants) and other expenses incurred in connection with (i) organizing, establishing and registering the Partnership, each Parallel Fund, each Feeder Fund that is an affiliate of the General Partner, the AIFM, the Portfolio Manager, the Founder Partner, the General Partner, the Main Fund General Partner and the AIFM, and (ii) the marketing and offering of interests in the Partnership, any Parallel Funds and any Feeder Fund that is an affiliate of the General Partner (including, without limitation, travel, entertainment, meal and accommodation expenses determined in good faith by the General Partner to be reasonable), and (iii) U.S. and non-U.S. initial filing fees and expenses of the Partnership, the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager, the Founder Partner, the Main Fund General Partner or the AIFM (including expenses associated with the initial or preliminary notifications, registrations, filings, and compliance contemplated by the AIFMD, the Swiss Collective Investment Schemes Act dated June 23, 2006 (as amended) (“CISA”), the Swiss Financial Services Act 2018 (as amended) (“FINSA”), Regulation (EU) 2019/2088 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 27 November 2019 on sustainability - related disclosures in the financial services sector (“Sustainable Finance Disclosure Regulation”), Regulation (EU) 2020/852 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 18 June 2020 on the establishment of a framework to facilitate sustainable investment, and amending Regulation (EU) 2019/2088 (“Taxonomy Regulation”) or any similar law, rule or regulation), and (iv) printing costs, or other similar amounts, incurred by the General Partner or its affiliates (including, without limitation, the Portfolio Manager and the AIFM) with respect to the offering of and subscription for Interests in the Partnership or interests in any Parallel Fund or Feeder Fund that is an affiliate of the General Partner (collectively, “Organizational Expenses”); provided, that Organizational Expenses shall exclude (x) tax planning and tax structuring fees, costs and expenses, if any, incurred in connection with the organization, operation and investment activities of the Fund and costs or expenses incurred in connection with any most-favored nations process (which costs and expenses described in this clause (x) shall be Partnership Expenses and borne by the Fund) and (y) all expenses and costs of the Portfolio Manager or its affiliate in connection with updating the Form ADV of the Portfolio Manager or MAM Americas Inc. and the Portfolio Manager's internal policies and procedures. The aggregate amount of Organizational Expenses borne by the Combined Limited Partners that are not affiliates of Macquarie shall not exceed $6.0 million, provided, that Organizational Expenses in excess of such amount may, at the General Partner's election, either be borne by the General Partner and its affiliates, or be paid by the Partnership, with a corresponding dollar-for-dollar reduction in future Management Fees payable. Any commissions, fees, costs and expenses payable to any third-party (i.e., not Macquarie-related) placement agents or finders, which may be engaged in respect of the sale of Interests to Limited Partners, may, at the General Partner's election, either be borne by the General Partner and its affiliates, or be paid by the Partnership, with (other than indemnification costs and expenses) a corresponding dollar-for-dollar reduction in future Management Fees payable.

Lux GP Amount	The Partnership will pay to the General Partner or cause to be paid on its behalf an annual amount equal to the higher of (i) $10,000 or (ii) an amount equal to all out-of-pocket costs which are properly incurred by the General Partner in its capacity as General Partner to the Partnership during the applicable year (and that are not otherwise reimbursed pursuant to an intercompany agreement or otherwise) plus an arm's length net profit margin determined in accordance with the international transfer pricing standards established by the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (the "Lux GP Amount"). The Lux GP Amount will be payable quarterly in advance.
General Partner Expenses	The General Partner, the AIFM and the Portfolio Manager will generally be responsible for the compensation of the investment personnel of the General Partner, the AIFM and the Portfolio Manager involved in the business of the Partnership and the following costs and expenses: (i) the costs and expenses incurred by the General Partner in providing for its, the AIFM's and the Portfolio Manager's normal operating overhead, including rent, salaries of the General Partner's, the AIFM's and the Portfolio Manager's employees (it being understood that operating executives, senior advisors and Third Party Consultants who may be retained as consultants by the General Partner, the AIFM, the Portfolio Manager, the Partnership or their respective affiliates (including individuals engaged to serve on the investment committee of the Portfolio Manager with respect to the Fund (the "Investment Committee"), are generally not employees of the General Partner, the AIFM, the Portfolio Manager or their respective affiliates and their compensation is generally borne by the Partnership to the extent such compensation is incurred (a) in connection with services provided to, or for the benefit of, Portfolio Investments or the Fund or (b) by the Partnership or the Portfolio Manager for the benefit of the Partnership) and other expenses incurred in maintaining the General Partner's, the AIFM's and the Portfolio Manager's office overhead, (ii) other expenses in connection with General Partner and Portfolio Manager matters that do not relate to the Partnership and (iii) the costs and expenses of the Portfolio Manager's general compliance obligations as a relying adviser of a registered investment adviser under the U.S. Investment Advisers Act of 1940 (the

See Section 11—“Risk Factors and Potential Conflicts of Interest—Certain Potential Conflicts of Interest—Operating Executives, Consultants, Senior Advisors.”

For the avoidance of doubt, Partnership Expenses shall include any fees, costs and expenses incurred by the General Partner or its affiliates on behalf of the Partnership prior to the Initial Closing Date, including Broken Deal Expenses. Any of the foregoing services (including for greater specificity, fees, expenses, costs and other charges specifically allocated by the Portfolio Manager, the AIFM or their affiliates to provide in-house administrative, accounting, tax, compliance, leveraged purchasing, sustainability and legal services to the Partnership and expenses and other related costs incurred by the Partnership in connection with the provision of such services (including, in each case, technology and other administrative support therefor and allocable compensation and overhead of Macquarie personnel)) may be rendered by Macquarie, the General Partner, the AIFM, the Portfolio Manager or any of their respective affiliates, including internal staff counsel and finance, tax and compliance personnel, as the case may be, directly as a Partnership Expense if (i) the costs for such services are billed to the Partnership in accordance with standard cost reimbursement procedures established by Macquarie for the billing of such services to collective investment vehicles and portfolio companies of Macquarie collective investment vehicles, and (ii) such services are rendered on terms that are no less favorable to the Partnership than the terms on which the Partnership could obtain comparable services from an unaffiliated third party.
LPAC	On or before the Final Closing Date, a committee (the “LPAC”) shall be formed of representatives or designees of those Limited Partners and/or investors in the Parallel Funds or Feeder Funds making a capital commitment equal to or greater than $75 million (or such lesser amount, in the discretion of the General Partner). All or a majority of the LPAC members may be comprised of representatives of the Main Fund’s investors. No member of the LPAC may be an employee of Macquarie or its affiliates or an affiliate of the General Partner. The consent of the LPAC will be required to review and approve the appointment of replacement auditors of the Fund. The LPAC will have the authority to review and approve or disapprove certain issues involving conflicts of interest, valuation methodology and other matters presented to the LPAC by the General Partner, the AIFM or Portfolio Manager as provided for in the Partnership Agreement and agreements referred to therein. The LPAC will also be authorized to consent on behalf of the Partnership and the Limited Partners to any transaction provided for in Sections 205 or 206(3) of the Advisers Act.

Successor Funds	Unless consented to by the LPAC or at least a majority in interest of the Combined Limited Partners, the General Partner, the Founder Partner, the Portfolio Manager, the AIFM and any of their affiliates within MAM Solutions will not, directly or indirectly, commence the investment operations of another privately offered, pooled investment fund for multiple outside investors for which any of them act as the manager and primary source of transactions and that the Portfolio Manager and/or the AIFM has determined in good faith has investment guidelines, target return, strategy and scope substantially similar to those of the Fund (a “Successor Fund”) until the earlier of (i) the expiration or termination of the Investment Period and (ii) the first time at which at least 70% of the Capital Commitments of the non-defaulting Limited Partners have been invested in or used for payment of, called for contribution for investment in or payment of, or committed or allocated for investment by way of a legally binding commitment in or payment of (including a delayed equity contribution agreement or similar binding commitment (e.g., a capital commitment to an Underlying Fund)), Portfolio Investments (including Follow-On Investments and Pending Investments), fees and expenses of the Partnership and the repayment of indebtedness and funding of any guarantees or other credit support or reasonably reserved for, Follow-On Investments, fees and expenses of the Fund and the repayment of indebtedness and funding of any guarantees or other credit support (“Full Investment”).
Warehoused Investments	The Partnership shall be permitted in the General Partner’s sole discretion to directly or indirectly acquire equity interests in certain investments (each, a “Warehoused Investment”) from the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager, one or more of their respective affiliates and/or certain other Macquarie entities (collectively, the “Warehouse Group”). Any such Warehoused Investments will be identified in writing to the investors that become Limited Partners prior to the time of their admission to the Partnership. The purchase price for each Warehoused Investment, if any, will be equal to (i) the original cost of such Warehoused Investment, including the amount of any loans and follow-on investments in respect thereof, plus (ii) legal and out-of-pocket expenses related to such Warehoused Investment, minus (iii) the aggregate amount of net distributions received by the Warehouse Group in respect of such Warehoused Investment from the date of the Warehouse Group’s initial investment therein through the date of the acquisition of such Warehoused Investment by the Fund, plus (iv) an amount calculated at 8.0% per annum compounded rate (compounding daily) on the amount calculated from time to time under clauses

		(i) - (iii) above. By delivering a subscription agreement, each Limited Partner will be deemed to have consented to the transfer of any Warehoused Investments on the terms disclosed to the investors in this Memorandum (including, for the avoidance of doubt, any supplement hereto) or otherwise prior to the acceptance of its subscription by the General Partner. The Partnership may finance the cost of any Warehoused Investment by a combination of borrowings by the Partnership in accordance with the Partnership Agreement and drawdowns from the Limited Partners, as determined by the General Partner. As of the date of this Memorandum, no Warehoused Investments have been identified or are expected to be acquired by the Partnership. If any Warehoused Investments are identified and expected to be acquired by the Partnership, then relevant information regarding such Warehoused Investments and the terms (including expected acquisition costs) thereof will be set forth in a supplement to this Memorandum. Potential investors are invited to ask questions of and obtain further information from the Portfolio Manager regarding any Warehoused Investments.
Allocation Investment Opportunities	of	Except as permitted in the Partnership Agreement, during the Investment Period, all investment opportunities in the private equity secondary market falling within the scope of the Fund's purpose of which the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager, the AIFM and the MAPIF Team Members source shall be first referred to the Fund; provided that if, during the Investment Period, the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager, the AIFM or any of their respective affiliates shall organize or sponsor one or more Successor Funds, then any such investment opportunity shall be required to be allocated among the Fund, such Successor Funds, predecessor funds of the Fund and/or existing investment vehicles, on the basis set forth under "Successor Funds" above; provided that the foregoing shall not apply to: (A) passive personal investments, (B) any investment made by a predecessor fund, (C) any investment that constitutes compensation for providing financial advisory or other services provided by Macquarie, (D) investment opportunities arising from any preemptive rights, rights of first refusal or other pre-existing rights (E) any portion of an investment opportunity with respect to which the General Partner shall have determined in good faith that (i) the Partnership and the Parallel Funds lack the capacity (taking into account amounts committed to other Portfolio Investments and indebtedness to be repaid by Capital Contributions) to make the portion of such investment opportunity, (ii) the Partnership or any of the Parallel Funds is legally or contractually prohibited from making such Portfolio Investment, or (iii) it would not be in the best interests of the Partnership and the Parallel Funds to take such investment opportunity in view of, among other things, the diversification objectives of the Partnership and the Parallel Funds, the geographic and asset class concentration of the Portfolio Investments or other proposed Portfolio Investments, and the risk return and yield/cash flow characteristics of the Portfolio Investments or other proposed Portfolio Investments in the context of the Partnership's overall portfolio at the time such investment opportunity arises or (F) any investment opportunity that the MAPIF Team Members were not involved in sourcing that is available exclusively to a third party pursuant to a binding contractual agreement that the MAPIF Team Members were not involved in securing, which may be a MAM or Macquarie client, as reasonably determined by the Portfolio Manager.

	See Section 11 — “ Risk Factors and Potential Conflicts of Interest—Relationship with Macquarie and Other Funds Managed by Macquarie ” for a further discussion of these allocation principles, including the potential allocation of investment opportunities among MAM-managed or –sponsored funds, vehicles or accounts with overlapping mandates or competing priorities.
Co-investment alongside the Fund	The General Partner (in consultation with the Portfolio Manager) or the Portfolio Manager is permitted in its sole discretion, but is not required, to offer or give certain persons an opportunity to co-invest in one or more Portfolio Investments alongside the Fund. Subject to “Large Investor and Initial Closing Incentives” above, the terms of any such co-investment, including the fees and carried interest applicable to such co-investment, if any, and access to co-investment opportunities will be separately negotiated by the General Partner (or an affiliate thereof) and the potential co-investor, and such terms may vary with regard to subsequent rounds of available co-investment opportunities offered to potential co-investors that participated in an initial offer of co-investment and are then offered additional available amounts of the same opportunity. The Portfolio Manager may determine in its sole discretion what constitutes a co-investment opportunity alongside of the Fund. For more information, see Section 11 — “Risk Factors and Potential Conflicts of Interest” — “Co-investments”.
Syndication of Co-Investments	The General Partner, in its sole discretion (and without the consent of any other person) but subject to the provisions set forth in Section 10—“Detailed Term Sheet”—“Allocation of Investment Opportunities,” may cause the Partnership to consummate a Portfolio Investment with the intention of syndicating a portion of such Portfolio Investment to one or more co-investors (including any co-investment vehicle or other Macquarie-managed fund, vehicle or account) and, within 18 months thereafter, directly or indirectly transfer a portion of such Portfolio Investment to one or more such persons in accordance with the priorities described in the second paragraph of this Section 10—“Detailed Term Sheet”—“Co-investment alongside the Fund” at a price equal to or greater than the sum of (x) at least the Partnership’s acquisition cost for the transferred portion of such Portfolio Investment, including any allocable expenses relating thereto (based on the syndicated portion of the Portfolio Investment relative to the portion thereof retained by the Partnership) and (y) (i) if such transferred portion was funded with drawdowns from the Limited Partners, interest on such amount calculated from the relevant drawdown date, at a rate equal to 8.0% compounded annually or (ii) if such transferred portion was funded using the Partnership’s credit facility, interest on such amount, calculated from the date of drawdown on such credit facility, equal to the interest rate payable under the credit facility. For the avoidance of doubt, the foregoing shall in no way limit or restrict the Partnership’s ability to dispose of any Portfolio Investment (in whole or in part) to any person.
Term	The Partnership will be put into liquidation 10 years from the Effective Date, subject to extension (i) for up to two additional one-year periods by the General Partner, in its sole discretion, and (ii) thereafter, for up to two additional one-year periods, each with the consent of either the LPAC or a majority in interest of the Combined Limited Partners. The Partnership is subject to earlier liquidation and termination, including, for example: (A) by the General Partner if it determines in good faith, taking into account the interests of the Fund as a whole, that such earlier liquidation is necessary or advisable in light of applicable business considerations, or because, based on the advice of counsel it determines in good faith there has been a materially adverse change in applicable law or regulation or to avoid violations of (or registration under) the Investment Company Act of 1940, as amended (the “1940 Act”), the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, as amended (“ERISA”), the Code (as defined below), or the applicable provisions of any similar laws, (B) upon the legal incapacity, bankruptcy, liquidation or similar event of withdrawal of the General Partner or (C) as otherwise provided for in the Partnership Agreement. Following an event of liquidation, the Partnership will liquidate in an orderly manner and distribute all investments or proceeds in accordance with the Partnership Agreement.

Continuation Funds	The General Partner, the Founder Partner, the AIFM, the Portfolio Manager and their respective affiliates are permitted to establish one or more funds, vehicles, accounts or other arrangements (each, a “Continuation Fund”) for purposes of acting as a continuation vehicle with respect to one or more Portfolio Investments requiring capital that the Partnership is not able and/or willing to provide or that cannot otherwise be disposed of prior to the expiration of the Partnership’s term. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary herein and in the Partnership Agreement, the Partnership is permitted to sell (or otherwise structure the transfer of) one or more of its assets, including any blocker entities, to any Continuation Fund on such other terms that are determined by the General Partner to be fair and reasonable to the Partnership, so long as all of the following conditions have been met prior to the closing of such transaction: (A) the General Partner has submitted to the LPAC written materials describing such transaction and (B) the LPAC has affirmatively consented to the proposed transaction. In addition, the General Partner, the AIFM, the Portfolio Manager, the Founder Partner and their respective affiliates are permitted to receive carried interest, management fees and other compensation in connection with any Continuation Fund. Any such interests or compensation will not constitute Other Fees, will not reduce the Management Fee and will not otherwise accrue to the benefit of the Partnership or the Limited Partners. For further details, see Section 11—“Risk Factors and Potential Conflicts of Interest – Continuation Funds.”
Exclusion and Cancellation	A Partner may be excluded in certain circumstances from participating in one or more particular Portfolio Investments as set forth in the Partnership Agreement.
Transfer and Withdrawals	Generally, a Limited Partner may not sell, assign or transfer any Interest without the prior written consent of the General Partner, which may be granted or withheld in the General Partner’s sole discretion. In addition, generally, a Limited Partner may not withdraw any amount from the Partnership. A Limited Partner may be required to withdraw from the Partnership in certain circumstances as set forth in the Partnership Agreement, including to avoid subjecting the Partnership or any other Partner to any regulatory obligation to which it would not otherwise be subject.

Defaults	If a Limited Partner defaults in respect of its obligations to make capital contributions pursuant to the terms of the Partnership Agreement, such Limited Partner will be subject to the default provisions set forth in the Partnership Agreement, which may include forfeiture of up to 100% of such Limited Partner's interest in the Partnership.
Reports and Financial Information	The Partnership will furnish audited financial statements to all Partners after the end of each fiscal year. Each Limited Partner will also be furnished with the unaudited financial statements of the Partnership after the end of each of the first three fiscal quarters. All financial statements in respect of the Partnership will be prepared in accordance with U.S. generally accepted accounting principles. Additionally, the Partnership will furnish tax information necessary for the completion of U.S. tax returns (subject to delays in the event of the late receipt from any Underlying Fund or Operating Company of any necessary financial statements or other information necessary to prepare tax returns) after the end of each fiscal year. The fiscal year of the Partnership will begin on January 1st and end on December 31st of each year, except for the initial fiscal year which will begin on the formation date of the Partnership and will end on December 31, 2026. The AIFM or one of its affiliates will make available to the Limited Partners an annual report prepared in accordance with the requirements of the AIFM Law no later than six (6) months following the end of the fiscal year of the Partnership.
Exculpation and Indemnification	The Partnership will, to the maximum extent not prohibited by applicable law, indemnify and hold harmless Macquarie, the General Partner, the Founder Partner, the Portfolio Manager, the AIFM their affiliates and each of their respective members, officers, directors, managers, employees, stockholders, shareholders, partners, agents (to the extent such agents are approved for such purpose by the General Partner and without limitation to the General Partner's power to otherwise indemnify third-party agents of the Partnership), service providers, consultants, independent contractors, senior advisors and any other person who serves at the request of the General Partner on behalf of the Partnership (or with respect to the Main Fund, the Main Fund General Partner) as an officer, director, partner, senior advisor, member or employee of any other entity or as the partnership representative (or any corresponding "designated individual") and certain other persons from and against all claims, liabilities, costs, and expenses, including legal fees, judgments, and amounts paid in defense and settlement, as incurred by them, by reason of their activities on behalf of the Partnership or the Partners, other than for bad faith, willful malfeasance or other exceptions as set forth in the Partnership Agreement. The Partnership will similarly indemnify and hold harmless LPAC members (and the Limited Partners they represent) in connection with LPAC actions, other than as set forth in the Partnership Agreement.

	Limited Partners will be obligated to return amounts distributed to them to fund certain indemnity obligations, subject to certain limitations set forth in the Partnership Agreement. The General Partner may cause the Partnership to purchase, at the Partnership's expense, insurance to insure the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager, the Founder Partner, the AIFM or any other indemnitee against liability for any breach or alleged breach of their responsibilities under the Partnership Agreement, Management Agreement, alternative investment fund management agreement or investment advisory agreement or otherwise in connection with the Partnership, the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager, the Founder Partner or the AIFM. The liability of certain governmental plans for indemnification obligations may be limited as more fully described in the Partnership Agreement, although the liability of no other Limited Partner will be increased as a result thereof, and as such the liability of each such other Limited Partner shall be calculated as if such governmental plan had not been excused from making payments in respect of its indemnification obligations. Under the Partnership Agreement, to the fullest extent permitted by law, each Partner agrees to indemnify and hold harmless the Partnership and the other Partners from and against any liability (including, without limitation, any liability for taxes, penalties, additions to tax or interest) with respect to income attributable to or distributions or other payments to such Partner.
For Cause Removal of the General Partner	Upon a finding of "cause" with respect to the General Partner on the terms set forth in the Partnership Agreement, a majority in interest of the Combined Limited Partners may, at their option, vote to require the removal of the General Partner from the Partnership and the substitution of another person as general partner of the Partnership in lieu thereof.
No-Fault Removal of the General Partner	At any time after the second anniversary of the Effective Date, the Combined Limited Partners may, upon the percentage in interest vote specified in the Partnership Agreement, require the removal of the General Partner from the Partnership for any reason or for no reason, and upon the effectiveness of such removal, the Partnership shall dissolve.
Borrowings, Guarantees and Letters of Credit	The General Partner will have the right to cause the Partnership or one or more Aggregator Vehicles or other intermediate entities (as "qualified borrowers" or under any subscription credit facility, as applicable) to incur indebtedness and guarantee obligations, borrow money, obtain financings, obtain letters of credit, guarantee loans or other extensions of credit or provide other credit support to any person in connection with any current or prospective Portfolio Investment or to any affiliate or vehicle formed to effect the acquisition thereof or for any proper purpose relating to the activities of the Partnership, any Alternative Vehicles and/or any of the foregoing entities, each on a joint, several, joint and several or cross collateralized basis or otherwise, and may borrow money from any person (including, without limitation, from Macquarie, the General Partner, the Founder Partner, the AIFM, the Portfolio Manager and their respective affiliates), among other things: (i) for the purpose of covering Organizational Expenses, Partnership Expenses and Management Fees, (ii) to provide interim financing to consummate the purchase of Portfolio Investments prior to the receipt of Capital Contributions, (iii) to provide funds for the payment of amounts to withdrawing Limited Partners, (iv) for hedging transactions as described in the Partnership Agreement or other purposes, (v) for repaying Partnership indebtedness or (vi) for financing any or all investment-related activities of the Partnership. The General Partner shall have the right to cause the Limited Partners to make Capital Contributions in order to repay any borrowing, or fund any guarantee, whether of the Partnership or any person in which the Partnership holds an interest or for which it otherwise provides credit support, at any time through the dissolution, liquidation and winding-up of the Partnership. Without the approval of the LPAC or a majority in interest of the Combined Limited Partners, the outstanding principal amount of any cash borrowings and refinancings (without duplication of any prior indebtedness that was refinanced) (that are recourse to the Partnership and less cash and the value of marketable securities held by the Partnership at such time), will not, in the aggregate, exceed (a) 30% of total capital commitments of the Fund at such time, excluding for purposes of this clause (a), (i) borrowings between or among the Partnership, any Alternative Vehicle, Parallel Fund, intermediate holding entity and/or Feeder Fund, and (ii) borrowings secured by the Portfolio Investments of the Fund (“Asset-Based Facilities”), and (b) in the case of Asset-Based Facilities, 30% of the cumulative net asset value of the Fund’s Portfolio Investments; provided, further, that, with respect to any borrowing incurred prior to the Final Closing Date, the limitation set forth in clause (a) will be applied based on the Benchmark Commitments. The AIFM will make available to the Limited Partners up-to-date information regarding (i) the maximum level of leverage which the AIFM may employ on behalf of the Partnership, both under the gross method and the commitment method within the meaning of the AIFM Regulation, as well as any right of the reuse of collateral or any guarantee granted under the leveraging arrangement; and (ii) the total amount of leverage employed by the Partnership at its registered office and free of charge.

Valuations	Freely tradable securities held by the Fund will be valued at market value. The fair market value of any interest in an Underlying Fund will be the value of such interest as determined by the AIFM based on the valuation most recently determined and reported to the Partnership by the general partner (or similar managing entity) of such Underlying Fund as of the applicable date. Other assets of the Partnership will be valued by the AIFM in its reasonable discretion, taking into account prevailing industry practices and other factors as may be deemed relevant by the AIFM in its reasonable discretion.
Aggregator Vehicles	The General Partner expects to form one or more Aggregator Vehicles, which will be controlled by the General Partner or its affiliates, to hold all or a portion of each of the Fund’s Portfolio Investments and through which the Partnership and the Main Fund will directly or indirectly invest. The General Partner has the right to cause all or any portion of the Macquarie Commitment to be made directly to one or more Aggregator Vehicles, rather than through the Partnership or any Parallel Funds, and the Main Fund, General Partner, the Founder Partner or the other persons making the Macquarie Commitment, as applicable, shall be treated as satisfying a portion of their respective Commitments to the Fund equal to any such capital contributions made by such persons to such Aggregator Vehicles. Each of the General Partner, the Founder Partner and their respective designees shall be entitled to receive directly from one or more Aggregator Vehicles their respective shares of all distributions (including Carried Interest distributions) that would otherwise be payable to such persons by the Partnership and any Parallel Funds, and the economic provisions of the Partnership Agreement (including, without limitation, those relating to “Distributions” and “Founder Partner Clawback,” above) shall be interpreted and applied accordingly such that, to the maximum extent possible, each of the General Partner, the Founder Partner and their respective designees shall be entitled to receive from such Aggregator Vehicle the same amount of distributions they would have received had the relevant Portfolio Investment been held directly by the Fund rather than through such Aggregator Vehicle (or through any intermediate entities through which the Fund invests in such Aggregator Vehicle). Further, the General Partner shall have the right, in its sole discretion, to allocate a portion of the obligation to pay the Management Fee to one or more Aggregator Vehicles.

Alternative Vehicles	Subject to certain restrictions set forth in the Partnership Agreement, alternative investment vehicles in which one or more Limited Partners may be required to invest above, below or outside the Partnership may be used if the General Partner determines that for legal, tax, regulatory or other reasons, it is in the best interests of one or more of the Partners, taken individually or as a whole, that all or part of one or more Portfolio Investments (or group of multiple Portfolio Investments) be made or held through a separate limited partnership (or other vehicles) (each an “Alternative Vehicle”), including, as the case may be, structures that may not qualify as alternative investment funds under the AIFM Law and may be located outside of the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg and of the EEA. In addition, the General Partner may, in its good faith judgment, after a Portfolio Investment has been made by the Partnership or an Alternative Vehicle, restructure the ownership of all or any portion of such Portfolio Investment (including, for example, through a transfer of all or a portion of the Partnership’s ownership interest in such Portfolio Investment to an Alternative Vehicle and the accompanying distribution of ownership interests in such vehicle to one or more Partners).
Parallel Funds	In order to facilitate investment by certain investors, the General Partner (or an affiliate thereof) may create parallel investment entities (referred to herein as “Parallel Funds”, including the Main Fund) that will, subject to applicable legal, tax, accounting, regulatory or other similar considerations and as otherwise described herein, generally invest and divest proportionally in all Portfolio Investments on effectively the same terms and conditions as the Partnership on the basis of available capital and share proportionately all expenses related to each Portfolio Investment, on the basis of invested capital in such Portfolio Investment, other than organizational expenses, any interest and other costs of any Fund indebtedness, costs and expenses relating to annual meetings, audits, insurance and fund administration, general legal fees and expenses, and bank fees and charges, in each case which are shared on the basis of committed capital, unless the General Partner (or an affiliate thereof) determines in its reasonable discretion to charge such expenses to the Partnership or a particular Parallel Fund. Except as otherwise provided herein, the General Partner (or an affiliate thereof) shall cause each Parallel Fund not to sell or otherwise dispose of any portion of any Portfolio Investment prior to the disposition by the Partnership of a like proportion of such Portfolio Investment and then only on effectively the same terms and conditions in all material respects as the Partnership’s sale or disposition of such Portfolio Investment, in each case, subject to applicable legal, tax, accounting, regulatory, structural or other similar considerations; provided that a Parallel Fund investing through a Corporation may effectuate such disposition through a sale of shares of the applicable Corporation where the General Partner (or an affiliate thereof) so determines. The terms of Parallel Funds may differ from those of the Partnership including, without limitation, with respect to management fee and carried interest terms, co-investment rights, investment guidelines and limitations, and LPAC membership. The General Partner may require or, in its discretion, allow certain investors to invest in a Parallel Fund in lieu of or in addition to the Partnership, subject to the terms of the partnership agreement or similar governing document of such Parallel Fund. The voting rights of Limited Partners in the Partnership will generally be aggregated with those of investors in Parallel Funds, as provided for by the Partnership Agreement. This Memorandum does not constitute an offer of the interests in any such Parallel Fund and the decision as to whether to permit any investment through a Parallel Fund shall be in the sole discretion of the General Partner or AIFM (as the case may be).

Feeder Funds	If the General Partner reasonably determines in good faith that for legal, tax, regulatory or other reasons it is in the best interests of any or all the Partners, taken individually or as a whole, the General Partner may require or allow any Limited Partner to invest in the Partnership or an Alternative Vehicle directly or indirectly through one or more intermediate entities established by the General Partner (or an affiliate thereof) for the purpose of investing directly or indirectly in the Partnership, an Alternative Vehicle or a Parallel Fund, or disposing of, or restructuring the ownership of, a Portfolio Investment held by the Partnership, such Alternative Vehicle or such Parallel Fund (each such intermediate entity, a “Feeder Fund”) including, without limitation, requiring or permitting such Limited Partner to contribute its Interest in the Partnership, an Alternative Vehicle or a Feeder Fund to a Feeder Fund in exchange for an interest in such Feeder Fund. Certain Limited Partners may be designated as Feeder Funds in the General Partner’s sole discretion as provided for in the Partnership Agreement. Feeder Funds may be structured as corporations or pass-through vehicles, as determined by the General Partner in its sole discretion. Certain Feeder Funds may be permitted to hold “plan assets” subject to ERISA or Section 4975. In such cases, the General Partner’s and the Portfolio Manager’s discretion with respect to such Feeder Funds will be limited, and it is intended that while the General Partner and the Portfolio Manager may act as custodians with respect to such Feeder Funds, they will not be fiduciaries for purposes of ERISA or Section 4975 of the Code. Prospective investors should carefully review the ERISA matters discussed in Section 12—“Certain Legal, Tax and Regulatory Considerations” and should consult with their own advisers as to the consequences of making an investment indirectly in the Partnership through a Feeder Fund.

Non-U.S. Investors	Each prospective non-U.S. investor should consult its own advisers in determining the possible legal, tax, regulatory or other consequences to it under the laws of the jurisdictions of which it is a citizen, resident or domiciliary or in which it conducts business with respect to any investment in the Fund. See “UBTI/ECI/CAI Matters” below.
UBTI/ECI/CAI Matters	Each of the Partnership and the Main Fund is established for the purpose of investing directly or indirectly in one or more Aggregator Vehicles. The Partnership generally will hold its interests in one or more Aggregator Vehicles indirectly through one or more entities each of which is classified as a corporation for U.S. federal income tax purposes (each such entity, a “Corporation”) and may hold direct interests in an Aggregator Vehicle in certain cases. Accordingly, an investment in the Partnership is generally intended for investors seeking to minimize the incurrence of UBTI, ECI, or CAI as a result of their investment in the Fund. In general, the costs and expenses (including taxes) and reduction in proceeds that the General Partner (or an affiliate thereof) determines are attributable to the Corporations through which the Partnership invests, including those related to the structuring, formation, operation and liquidation of, and all taxes incurred in connection with, related to or imposed on, any such Corporation will be borne solely by the Limited Partners investing through the Partnership. Accordingly, due to the Corporations through which the Partnership invests, the investment returns of Partnership investors may differ, perhaps materially, from the returns of investors in the Partnership (including as a result of taxes and expenses applicable to Corporations through which the Partnership invests). See also Section 12—“Certain Legal, Tax and Regulatory Considerations—Certain U.S. Federal Income Tax Considerations.”
Additional Information	The Partnership Agreement provides that each Limited Partner shall comply promptly with reasonable requests for information made by the General Partner in order for the Partnership to satisfy any request for information about such Limited Partner, its Capital Commitment and other information regarding its Interest in the Partnership made by any U.S. federal, state, local or non-U.S. regulatory authority, agency, committee, court, exchange or self-regulatory organization, including, without limitation, the CSSF, the Committee on Foreign Investment in the United States, the Department of the Treasury, the Department of Defense, the Department of Commerce, the Department of Energy, the Department of Homeland Security, the Department of Justice, the Department of State, the Federal Trade Commission or the U.S. Internal Revenue Service (“IRS”) and similar state, local and non-U.S. tax authorities in connection with obtaining approvals necessary for the making, holding or disposition of any Portfolio Investment. The General Partner may, in connection with the foregoing, provide the Partnership Agreement and any agreements referred to therein or related thereto.
Tax Considerations	It is intended that each of the Partnership and the Main Fund will be treated as a partnership, and not an association taxable as a corporation, and will be operated in a manner such that it should not be treated as a “publicly traded partnership” for U.S. federal income tax purposes. Each prospective investor is advised to consult its own tax adviser as to the income tax consequences of an investment in the Partnership or the Main Fund.

ERISA Matters	The General Partner (or an affiliate thereof) intends to use reasonable best efforts to, with respect to each entity comprising the Fund (other than certain Feeder Funds, as discussed below), limit equity participation by “benefit plan investors” (within the meaning of Section 3(42) of ERISA) to less than 25% of the total value of each class of equity interests in such entity so that the underlying assets of each such entity should not constitute “plan assets” of “benefit plan investors” which invest in the Partnership. Prospective investors should carefully review the matters discussed under Section 12— “ Certain Legal, Tax and Regulatory Considerations ” and should consult with their own advisers as to the consequences of making investments in the Partnership.
Risk Factors and Potential Conflicts of Interest	Potential investors should be aware that an investment in the Partnership involves a high degree of risk, including the risk of loss of an investor’s entire value of investment or other amount of capital. There can be no assurance that the Partnership’s investment objective will be achieved, or that a Limited Partner will receive a return of its capital. In addition, there may be occasions when the General Partner or its respective affiliates will encounter potential conflicts of interest in connection with the Partnership. Please see Section 11— “ Risk Factors and Potential Conflicts of Interest. ”
Subscription Matters	Persons interested in investing in the Partnership are required to complete and return to the General Partner the subscription document for the Partnership, a copy of which will be made available to each prospective investor. Subscriptions may be rejected in whole or in part in the General Partner’s sole discretion and will be accepted only from accredited investors. In addition, each prospective purchaser generally will be required to represent that it is a “qualified purchaser,” in order for the Partnership to qualify for the exemption from the provisions of the 1940 Act set forth in Section 3(c)(7) thereof. Based on the subscription documents of certain investors, including prospective U.S. tax-exempt Limited Partners, non-U.S. Limited Partners and Limited Partners subject to ERISA, the General Partner may require, or in its discretion allow, such investors to subscribe for interests in one or more Parallel Funds or Feeder Funds. For avoidance of doubt, interests in the Partnership may only be offered to investors in the European Union and the European Economic Area who qualify as professional investors within the meaning of Annex II of Directive 2014/65/EU of the European Parliament and of the Council of 15 May 2014 on Markets in Financial Instruments, as amended. Accordingly, the distribution of this Memorandum is restricted to such persons. Persons of any other description may not receive and should not act or rely on this Memorandum or any other marketing materials relating to the Partnership.
Amendments; Entire Agreement	The Partnership or the General Partner, on its own behalf or on behalf of the Partnership, or affiliates of the General Partner, without any further act, approval or vote of any Partner, expects to enter into side letters or other writings with individual Limited Partners which have the effect of establishing rights under, or altering or supplementing, the terms of the Partnership Agreement and any Subscription Agreement. Any rights established, or any terms of the Partnership Agreement and any subscription agreement altered or supplemented, in a side letter or other writing with a Limited Partner will govern solely with respect to such Limited Partner or its affiliates, if applicable (but not any of such Limited Partner's assignees or transferees unless so specified in such side letter), notwithstanding any other provision of the Partnership Agreement or any subscription agreement.

Independent Auditor	PricewaterhouseCoopers Luxembourg, société coopérative has been appointed as the approved statutory auditor of the Partnership (the "Auditor") and will audit the Partnership's annual financial statements. The Auditor must carry out the duties provided by the AIFM Law.
Counsel for the Founder Partner the Portfolio Manager and the Fund	Kirkland & Ellis LLP

11. RISK FACTORS AND POTENTIAL CONFLICTS OF INTEREST

Potential investors should be aware that an investment in the Fund involves a high degree of risk and should carefully consider the following risk factors before making a decision to invest in the Fund. There can be no assurance that the Fund's investment objective will be achieved, or that a Limited Partner will receive a return of its capital. As well, if any of the risks described or contemplated below occurs, there could be a material adverse effect on the results and operations of the Fund or its Portfolio Investments, and the Limited Partners may experience a loss on their investment in the Fund. In addition, there will be occasions when the Sponsor and its affiliates may encounter potential conflicts of interest in connection with the Fund. The following are some, but not all, of the considerations regarding risk factors and potential conflicts of interest that should be carefully evaluated before making an investment in the Fund. Specifically, to the extent that any of the risk factors and potential conflicts of interest described herein are associated with the application of U.S. laws and regulations, or oversight by U.S. regulatory agencies, similar (and in some cases additional) risk factors and potential conflicts of interest may apply with respect to Direct Investments (as defined in the Partnership Agreement) and/or Underlying Portfolio Investments (as defined below) in non-U.S. jurisdictions under their applicable legal and regulatory regimes and such risk factors and potential conflicts of interest may adversely affect the Fund itself and/or the Underlying Funds in those jurisdictions.

Note that many of the risks described in this section also will be applicable to the Underlying Funds. References to the Fund, the General Partner and the Portfolio Manager throughout this section are deemed to include the Underlying Funds, the general partner of any Underlying Fund, and the managers of the Underlying Funds, respectively, where applicable.

CERTAIN RISK FACTORS GENERALLY APPLICABLE TO THE FUND

The Fund is expected to invest substantially all of its investable assets in the Underlying Funds. The overall success of the Fund depends on, among other factors, (i) the ability of the Fund to effectively allocate its capital among the Portfolio Investments and (ii) the ability of the managers of the Underlying Funds to successfully implement the investment programs of the respective Underlying Funds. Accordingly, the Fund will be highly dependent upon the expertise and abilities of MAM Solutions and its management personnel, as well as the managers of the Underlying Funds.

The level of risk associated with the Fund's direct and indirect investments varies depending on the particular investment programs of the Underlying Funds. Each of the risks and conflicts set forth herein may or may not relate to any particular Underlying Fund. Past performance information does not predict future results of the Fund or any Portfolio Investment, and there can be no assurance that the Fund or any Underlying Fund or Direct Portfolio Company will be able to implement its investment strategy, achieve its investment objectives or avoid substantial losses.

No Assurance of Investment Return. No assurance can be given as to the Fund's or any Underlying Fund's ability to choose, make and realize investments in any particular geography, industry sector, company or portfolio of companies or that the Fund will be able to implement its investment strategy or achieve its investment objective or otherwise achieve the same or similar performance to any predecessor Macquarie Funds (as defined below). There can be no assurance that the Fund will be able to generate returns for its investors or that the returns will be commensurate with the risks of investing in the types of funds, geographies, industries, companies and transactions described herein. With respect to actual direct or indirect investments, realization of an investment before the end of its projected life or base-case underwriting assumptions may materially alter the actual returns realized by the Fund. Actual returns to investors in the Fund may be materially different than the target returns for Portfolio Investments. The value of the Portfolio Investments may fall as well as rise, and a Limited Partner may not be repaid the total amounts previously drawn down from it. Investors in the Fund will bear the Management Fee and all expenses related to the Fund's operations. Such fees and expenses will reduce the actual returns to investors. Most of the fees and expenses will be paid regardless of whether the Fund produces positive investment returns. If the Fund does not produce significant positive investment returns, these fees and expenses could reduce the amount of the investment recovered by a Limited Partner to an amount less than the amount invested in the Fund by such Limited Partner. There can be no assurance that any Limited Partner will receive any distribution from the Fund. Accordingly, an investment in the Fund should only be considered by persons for whom a speculative, illiquid and long-term investment is an appropriate component of a larger investment program and who can afford a loss of their entire investment. Past performance of investment entities associated with Macquarie and/or entities associated with the Fund's investment professionals does not predict future results and provides no assurance of future results.

Lack of Operating History. The Partnership has not commenced operations and therefore has no operating history upon which prospective investors may evaluate its performance. The prior investment performance of Macquarie and the Macquarie Funds as described herein, as with all performance data, can provide no assurance of future results. Moreover, the Fund is subject to all of the business risks and uncertainties associated with any new fund, including the risk that it will not achieve its investment objective and that the value of an interest in the Fund could decline substantially. Accordingly, prospective investors should not expect the Fund to achieve results similar to prior Macquarie Funds.

Premature Termination. If the Investment Period is cancelled earlier than anticipated pursuant to the terms of the Partnership Agreement, there is a risk that the capital available for investment will be materially diminished and potentially affect the Fund's ability to consummate investment opportunities and, in turn, the degree of diversification of the Fund's investments. Similarly, if the investment period of one or more Underlying Funds is cancelled earlier than anticipated pursuant to the terms of the applicable Underlying Fund Agreement, there is a risk that the capital available for investment by such Underlying Fund will be materially diminished and potentially affect such Underlying Fund's ability to consummate investment opportunities. Moreover, it is possible that the Fund or one or more Underlying Funds may be dissolved and terminated or that the General Partner or one or more Underlying General Partners may be removed prematurely, and as a result, the Fund or any such Underlying Fund may not be able to accomplish its objectives and may be required to dispose of its investments at a disadvantageous time, or in the case of the Fund, without the involvement of Macquarie or make an in-kind distribution (resulting in the Fund and/or Limited Partners not having their capital invested and/or deployed in the manner originally contemplated).

Partnership Expenses. The Partnership will pay and bear all expenses related to its operations. The amount of these Partnership expenses will be substantial and will reduce the actual returns realized by Limited Partners on their investment in the Partnership (and, in certain circumstances, reduce the amount of capital available to be deployed by the Partnership in investments). Partnership expenses include recurring and regular items, as well as extraordinary expenses for which it may be hard to budget or forecast. As a result, the amount of Partnership expenses ultimately called or called at any one time may exceed expectations. As described further in the Partnership Agreement, Partnership expenses encompass a broad swath of expenses and include all expenses of operating the Partnership, including the cost of directors and officers and errors and omissions insurance to cover the General Partner and the Portfolio Manager against liability in connection with the Partnership. The Portfolio Manager and its affiliates will engage consultants (including Third Party Consultants), external subject matter experts, advisers or service providers on behalf of one or more clients of Macquarie (including those providing services related to sustainability investment considerations), and the costs thereof may be allocated to the Partnership as determined by the Portfolio Manager in good faith. In addition, the costs of organizing and operating Alternative Investment Vehicles or other structures shall be borne by all Limited Partners participating therein, even though such structures are implemented to address legal, tax, accounting, regulatory and other considerations of only certain Limited Partners (except to the extent such taxes are reimbursed by a Partner pursuant to the Partnership Agreement). (For further information, see Section 10 – “Detailed Term Sheet – Co-Investment Alongside the Partnership” and “Allocation of Investment Opportunities”). Although organizational expenses are separately categorized under the Partnership Agreement, ongoing Partnership expenses to be borne by the Partners and not classified as organizational expenses include costs that relate to certain ongoing aspects relating to the Partnership’s organizational matters, including travel, accommodation and related expenses of Macquarie, legal, audit and filing fees, costs for capital raising and investor related services, tax planning and tax structuring fees, costs and expenses, costs for conducting due diligence on potential investors, costs for conducting due diligence on and engaging placement agents, and other similar costs and expenses of administering side letters entered into with Limited Partners (including the process of distributing and implementing applicable elections pursuant to any “most-favored-nations” clauses in side letters). Moreover, the initial stages of certain expenses will be organizational expenses while the ongoing expenses are Partnership expenses. For example, organizational expenses may include the initial filing fees with respect to any initial or preliminary registrations, filings or licensing of the Fund, any Parallel Fund and any Feeder Fund for marketing under any national private placement or similar regime outside of the U.S. while the fees, costs and expenses associated with ongoing filings for any such registration or licensing are Partnership expenses. The General Partner will be required to decide how to allocate expenses, notwithstanding its interest in the outcome, and will make corrective allocations should it determine that such corrections are necessary or advisable. The General Partner and its affiliates are authorized to choose in their own discretion to pay expenses that are otherwise Partnership expenses (whether such expenses are enumerated under the Partnership Agreement or not) under the Partnership Agreement, and the General Partner can at any time in its sole discretion discontinue paying such expenses and cause the Partnership to pay them or seek reimbursement from the Partnership for any such expenses. See “Allocation of Expenses” below.

For the avoidance of doubt and for greater specificity, the Partnership Expenses described in Section 10 — “Detailed Term Sheet—Partnership Expenses” also include, among other things: (i) data providers (including related systems and/or services from such data providers and data management software), (ii) premiums, fees, costs and expenses (including any expenses or fees of insurance brokers) for insurance to insure the General Partner, the AIFM, the Portfolio Manager, their affiliates and/or their respective partners, directors, officers, employees, members of the LPAC and other indemnified parties (and, in certain circumstances, such person’s agents and representatives), against liability in connection with the Partnership and its activities, including all or a portion of any premiums, fees, costs and expenses for one or more “umbrella” or other insurance policies maintained by the AIFM, the Portfolio Manager or their affiliates that cover one or more of the Partnership, other funds, vehicles or accounts managed by the AIFM; the Portfolio Manager or their affiliates and/or the General Partner, the AIFM and the Portfolio Manager (including their respective partners, directors, officers, employees, members and other indemnified parties), (iii) legal, custodial, accounting, administrative, depository (including the Depository), auditing (including the Auditor), banking, consulting, appraisal, valuation, engineering and other expenses of advisors (including senior advisors), consultants, service providers or secondees to Macquarie of any of the foregoing, including fees, expenses, costs and other charges specifically allocated by the Portfolio Manager or its affiliates to provide in-house administrative, accounting, tax, compliance, leveraged purchasing, sustainability and legal services to the Partnership and expenses and other related costs incurred by the Partnership in connection with the provision of such services (including, in each case, technology and other administrative support therefor and allocable compensation and overhead of Macquarie personnel, (iv) communication and research expenses (including, in connection with software or online data portals, news and quotation equipment and services and market data and research utilized in connection with specific proposed or actual investments) and (v) the Lux GP Amount and costs and expenses associated with operating Luxembourg entities formed in connection with the Partnership’s activities. For greater certainty, Partnership Expenses do not include any costs and expenses incurred by Limited Partners in connection with any due diligence visits by the General Partner or Portfolio Manager described in Section 10 — “Detailed Term Sheet—Partnership Expenses.”

Moreover, travel, entertainment and related expenses as described in Section 10 —“Detailed Term Sheet—Partnership Expenses” include, without limitation, first class and/or business class airfare (and/or private charter, where appropriate), first class lodging, ground transportation, travel and premium meals (including, as applicable, closing dinners and mementos, cars and meals (outside normal business hours), and social and entertainment events with investors, prospective investors, members of the LPAC, Underlying Fund and/or Direct Investment management, customers, clients, borrowers, brokers and service providers).

Expenses to be borne by the General Partner, the AIFM, the Portfolio Manager, and their affiliates are limited only to those items specifically enumerated in the Partnership Agreement (such as rent for office space, office overhead and salaries of its employees) and all other costs and expenses in operating the Fund will be borne directly or indirectly by the Fund (and therefore indirectly by the Limited Partners).

Outsourcing. The General Partner is solely responsible for the General Partner’s internal administration, overhead or compensation for employees of the General Partner. However, the General Partner, the AIFM or the Portfolio Manager reserves the right to, without the consent of any Limited Partner or any other person, outsource any internally provided services, such as in-house administration, legal, accounting, investment sourcing, asset management or other services, by engaging third parties, including consultants (including Third Party Consultants), to provide such services in lieu of or in conjunction with the Portfolio Manager. The General Partner, the AIFM and the Portfolio Manager will have an incentive to outsource such services at the expense of the Fund. In the foregoing cases, the costs, fees and expenses associated with the provision of such services, including consulting services provided by consultants (including Third Party Consultants, including those providing services related to sustainability-related investment considerations, as well as those providing legal, tax, or other services to the Fund during the course of a secondment to the offices of MAM Solutions or an affiliate thereof), can be borne by the Fund instead of the General Partner or Portfolio Manager, thereby increasing the expenses borne by the Limited Partners.

Failure of Risk Management Procedures and Methods. The risk management techniques and strategies used by the Sponsor may not be effective in mitigating the Fund’s risk exposure in all economic market environments or against all types of risk, including risks that the Sponsor fails to identify or anticipate. Some of the qualitative tools and metrics for managing risk may fail to predict future risk exposures. These risk exposures could, for example, arise from factors the Sponsor did not anticipate or correctly evaluate in its models. In addition, any quantified modeling performed does not take all risks into account and could prove insufficient, exposing the Fund to material unanticipated losses. Other risk management methods depend upon evaluation of information that is publicly available or otherwise accessible by the Sponsor. This information may not in all cases be accurate, complete, up-to-date or properly evaluated.

Borrowings & Leverage. The Sponsor expects to cause the Fund, directly or indirectly through one or more special purpose vehicles, to use leverage in connection with the Fund’s operations (such as bridging capital calls, including to pay Management Fees) and that Underlying Funds will utilize significant leverage in connection with their operations (such as bridging capital calls) and investments (including infrastructure projects). Utilization of leverage will result in fees, expenses and interest costs to the Fund (including indirectly through its investment in the Underlying Funds). While investments in leveraged companies and the use of leverage in financing transactions offer the opportunity for capital appreciation, such investments also involve a higher degree of risk. Such leverage will increase the exposure of an investment to adverse economic factors such as rising interest rates, downturns in the economy or deteriorations in the condition of the investment and will constrain such investment’s ability to finance its future operations and capital needs and result in restrictive financial and operating covenants, including those that may prevent distributions to the Fund. These restrictive financial covenants may limit such investment’s flexibility to respond to changing business and economic conditions. These risks generally are expected to increase as interest rates rise, including in circumstances where the creditworthiness of a Portfolio Investment, Underlying Fund, or the portfolio investment of such Underlying Fund (the “Underlying Portfolio Investment”) is such that it must borrow at higher interest rates than are available to the Fund. While interest rate risk can generally be reduced through hedging, such as interest rate swaps or other mechanisms, there is sometimes residual exposure and, in any event, the Sponsor does not generally expect to hedge interest rate risk. Furthermore, the hedged debt only provides certainty for a specific time period, and there is no guarantee that future hedges will achieve the desired result. The Fund’s or an Underlying Fund’s assets, including any investments made by the Fund or such Underlying Fund, as applicable, and any capital held by the Fund or such Underlying Fund, will be available to satisfy all liabilities and other obligations of the Fund or such Underlying Fund, as applicable. If the Fund or such Underlying Fund or its portfolio investments cannot generate adequate cash flow to meet debt obligations or defaults on secured indebtedness, the lender may foreclose and the Fund or such Underlying Fund, as applicable, could lose its entire investment in the security for such loan. If the Fund itself becomes subject to a liability, parties seeking to have the liability satisfied may have recourse to the Fund’s assets generally and not be limited to any particular asset, such as the investment giving rise to the liability. Similarly, if an Underlying Fund becomes subject to a liability, parties seeking to have the liability satisfied may have recourse to such Underlying Fund’s assets generally (including the Fund’s capital commitment to such Underlying Fund) and not be limited to any particular asset, such as the Underlying Portfolio Investment giving rise to the liability. While Partnership-level borrowings generally are subject to certain limitations set forth in the Partnership Agreement regarding the amount thereof or the time such leverage may remain outstanding, leverage incurred by subsidiaries of the Fund generally will not be subject to any such limitations. Except where otherwise required by the Partnership Agreement, the Fund will not be obligated to borrow on behalf of a Portfolio Investment, Underlying Fund or Underlying Portfolio Investment, even in circumstances where the Fund’s creditworthiness would permit borrowing at a lower rate than is available to the relevant investment.

Fund borrowings and guarantees can be investment-by-investment or on a portfolio basis, and can be on a joint, several, joint and several or cross-collateralized basis (which may be on an investment-by-investment or portfolio wide basis) from or to any Person (including from Macquarie, the Sponsor and their respective affiliates, any co-investment vehicles, other Macquarie Funds, and joint venture partners and managers of such joint venture partners). Such arrangements will not necessarily impose joint and several obligations on such other vehicles that mirror the obligations of the Fund (e.g., the Fund may provide credit enhancement through recourse to assets outside of a loan pool, whereas other vehicles may not provide such enhancement). The interest expense of any such borrowings will generally be allocated among the Fund and the co-investment vehicles and other Macquarie Funds pro rata (and therefore indirectly to the Limited Partners pro rata) based on principal amount outstanding; provided, that any such interest expense and other fees and expenses, including upfront fees and origination costs, could be allocated by a different methodology, including entirely to the Fund. Furthermore, in the case of indebtedness on a joint and several or cross-collateralized basis, the Fund could be required to contribute amounts in excess of its pro rata share of the indebtedness, including additional capital to make up for any shortfall if the other joint and several obligors are unable to repay their pro rata share of such indebtedness. Certain co-investors (potentially including service providers (including lenders and law firms), third parties, current or former Underlying Portfolio Investment management or personnel, sellers or members of management that have rolled their interest or reinvested proceeds in the Underlying Portfolio Investment and/or other owners) are not expected to share in incurring such leverage or the related costs and as a result the Fund or the relevant Underlying Fund, as applicable, will disproportionately bear the risk and/or costs of leveraged arrangements.

Because the Fund is permitted to engage in portfolio financings where several of its investments are cross-collateralized, multiple investments may be subject to the risk of loss. As a result, the Fund could lose its interests in several or all performing investments in the event such investments are cross-collateralized with poorly performing or nonperforming investments. Accordingly, a Limited Partner could find its interest in the Fund’s assets adversely affected by a liability arising out of a single investment, even if the Limited Partner did not participate in such investment because, for example, the Limited Partner was excluded or excused from such investment. Similar considerations apply in the event a Limited Partner defaults on a drawdown in respect of an investment. In addition, there can be no guarantee that debt facilities will be available at commercially attractive rates throughout the term of the Fund or when due for refinancing, such that the Fund will be exposed to less favorable terms or rates upon a refinancing, or that any facilities negotiated will be fully utilized by the Sponsor.

As described in Section 10 —“Detailed Term Sheet—Borrowings, Guarantees and Letters of Credit,” the Fund is authorized to, at any time before and after the end of the Investment Period, borrow funds to finance its operations (including by bridging capital calls) and investment activities and is permitted to withhold from distributions to the Partners amounts necessary to repay such borrowings or to fund any guarantees (or other credit support obligations). An Underlying Fund may borrow funds to make its investments on a leveraged basis and may withhold from distributions to the Fund amounts necessary to repay such borrowings or to fund any guarantees (or other credit support obligations). Such debt exposes the Fund or such Underlying Fund to refinancing, recourse and other risks. With respect to any Asset-Based Facility entered into by the Fund, a decrease in the market value of one or more Portfolio Investments would increase the effective amount of leverage and could result in the possibility of a violation of certain financial covenants pursuant to which the Fund must either repay the borrowed funds to the lender, which could require the Limited Partners to make additional capital contributions in respect of such borrowings, or suffer foreclosure or forced liquidation of the pledged assets. Liquidation of Portfolio Investments at an inopportune time in order to satisfy financial covenants could adversely impact the performance of the Fund and could, if the value of the Portfolio Investments had declined significantly, cause the Fund to lose all or a substantial amount of its capital. Moreover, if additional capital contributions were required to satisfy such financial covenants, this would effectively reduce the amount of capital available for other Portfolio Investments and could adversely affect the diversification of the Fund’s portfolio. In addition, the interest expense and other costs incurred in connection with such borrowings may not be recovered by income from investments purchased by the Fund. If investment results fail to cover the cost of borrowings, the value of the portfolio held by the Fund would decrease faster than if there had been no such borrowings. Additionally, if the Fund’s investments fail to perform to expectations, the interests of the Limited Partners in the Fund will be subordinated to such leverage, which will compound any such adverse consequences. Further, to the extent income received from investments is used to make interest and principal payments on such borrowings, Limited Partners may be allocated income, and therefore tax liability, in excess of cash received by them in distributions.

In addition, in certain circumstances, the General Partner shall have the right to cause the Fund to borrow money for the purpose of paying operational expenses, subject to the limitations described in the Partnership Agreement. The interest expense and other costs incurred in connection with such borrowings may not be recovered by appreciation in the Fund’s investments. Conflicts of interest have the potential to arise in that the use of fund-level borrowing typically delays the need for Limited Partners to make contributions to the Fund, or results in short-term gains to the Fund, which in certain circumstances enhances the Fund’s internal rate of return calculations and thereby may be deemed to benefit the marketing efforts of the General Partner and its affiliates and increases the likelihood that the hurdle or the Preferred Return component in the Fund’s Carried Interest arrangements will be met. In other circumstances the use of fund-level borrowing can increase the base of the Management Fee calculation, such as during periods where Management Fees are based in whole or in part on invested capital that includes a borrowing component. The use of fund-level borrowing arrangements, and the repayment or non-repayment thereof, can also influence the determination of the end of the Investment Period, and cause or defer a related change in the basis of the Management Fee calculation under the Management Agreement.

For the avoidance of doubt, there is no obligation to repay amounts outstanding under any Fund credit facility prior to making distributions other than any repayments that are required with respect to any cash control event or event of default under such credit facility.

Borrowings may be secured by assignment of the obligations of the Limited Partners to make capital contributions to the Fund and a security interest in the Fund's Portfolio Investments. Similarly, borrowings by an Underlying Fund may be secured by assignment of the obligations of the Fund to make capital contributions to such Underlying Fund and a security interest in Underlying Portfolio Investments. Any inability of the Fund or the Underlying Funds, respectively, to repay borrowings secured by an assignment of the obligations of the Limited Partners or the Fund, respectively, to make capital contributions could enable a lender to call capital from the Limited Partners or the Fund, respectively, and to take action against the Limited Partners and their interests in the Fund or the Fund and its interests in the Underlying Funds, respectively, to the extent that such Limited Partners or the Fund, respectively, fail to fund any such capital call. In connection with the foregoing, the General Partner or the general partner of an Underlying Fund, respectively, will have the right to agree (i) to subordinate distributions to the Limited Partners or the Fund, respectively, to payments required in connection with any borrowings, guarantees or other extensions of credit and (ii) that during the term of any borrowings or guarantees, the Fund or such Underlying Fund will not initiate bankruptcy, insolvency, liquidation, reorganization, dissolution proceedings or any analogous proceedings without the consent of any lender to the Fund or such Underlying Fund.

In addition, in the event that the lenders require investors whose Capital Commitments have been pledged to fund their Capital Commitment to repay indebtedness, the failure of certain of those investors to honor their Capital Commitments could result in the remaining investors' repayment obligations exceeding their pro rata share of the indebtedness. Such borrowings may limit the Partners' ability to pledge their interests in the Fund as collateral for other indebtedness and their ability to transfer their Interests, assuming the General Partner has permitted a Partner to pledge such interests, which remains within the General Partner's sole discretion. In addition, the terms of a subscription credit facility may restrict the General Partner's ability to consent to a pledge by a Limited Partner of its interest in the Fund. A subscription credit facility may require lender consent for a Limited Partner to transfer its interest, the inclusion of the transferee in the borrowing base, or a repayment of the transferring Limited Partner's pro rata share of the Fund's indebtedness or other similar obligations.

If an investment appreciates in value and is disposed of prior to repayment of any borrowings, the Fund generally would apply disposition proceeds to repay the borrowing and related interest and expenses, and the absence of invested capital funded by Limited Partners potentially will result in a distribution of net proceeds without a Preferred Return accrual on the amount invested. Accordingly, borrowings have the potential to support the distribution of proceeds to Limited Partners and increase the potential Carried Interest for the General Partner, as reduced by the interest incurred by the Fund. Subject to any limitations in the Partnership Agreement, this scenario potentially incentivizes the General Partner to permanently fund the acquisition and ongoing capital needs of the Fund's investments and related expenses with the proceeds of such borrowings in lieu of drawing down Capital Contributions on an as-needed basis, and, accordingly, Capital Contributions to repay such borrowings may be required only at the time of the disposition of an investment (or never, if the principal and interest on such borrowings are always repaid out of disposition proceeds).

U.S. tax-exempt investors should note that the use of leverage by the Partnership or certain subsidiaries through which the Partnership invests (and/or by the Underlying Funds) may result in UBTI (as defined in Section 10 —“Detailed Term Sheet”) and should refer to the discussion in Section 12 —“Certain Legal, Tax and Regulatory Considerations—Certain U.S. Federal Income Tax Considerations—U.S. Tax-Exempt Investors.”

Borrowing; Co-Investment Vehicles. The Fund expects to utilize its subscription facility and/or an Asset-Based Facility and/or enter into other similar arrangements and extensions of credit for the benefit of co-investors, joint venture partners and/or other Macquarie Funds, including co-investment vehicles that invest alongside the Fund in one or more Portfolio Investments. For example, the Fund can be expected to borrow to fund a joint venture partner's, co-investor's or other Macquarie Fund's pro rata share of a Portfolio Investment or expense related to an Investment. In such circumstances, Sponsor generally intends to disclose such arrangements as part of the periodic reporting or other appropriate communications relating to the Fund and to cause any such co-investors, joint venture partners and other Macquarie Funds to bear (or reimburse the Fund for) their pro rata share of any interest expenses (but not necessarily origination and other costs) allocable to such extensions of credit. However, any such co-investors, joint venture partners and/or other Macquarie Funds, although they benefit from the Fund's credit facility, will not bear any portion of the costs of establishing and maintaining such credit facility, which will be borne entirely by the Fund. Additionally, conflicts of interest also have the potential to arise to the extent that a Fund credit facility is used to make an investment that is later sold in part to joint venture partners, co-investors or other Macquarie Funds, as to the extent co-investors are not required to act as guarantors under the relevant facility or pay related costs or expenses, co-investors nevertheless stand to receive the benefit of the use of the credit facility and neither the Fund nor the Limited Partners generally will be compensated for providing the relevant guarantee(s) or being subject to the related costs, expenses and/or liabilities. The Sponsor will, in certain circumstances, receive direct and indirect benefits from such uses as well, including as a result of the facilitation of co-investment by other Macquarie Funds. The Fund will pay interest expenses and other expenses incurred in relation to the line of credit.

Investment- and Intermediate Entity-Level Borrowing. Subject to the Partnership Agreement, the Fund is authorized to incur indebtedness that is secured by any assets of the Fund (e.g., asset-based borrowing, as well as "back leverage" and net asset value (NAV) facilities), and is permitted directly or indirectly through one or more intermediate entities (e.g., special purpose vehicles) to incur indebtedness, including to borrow money from any person, to make guarantees or provide other credit support to any person or to incur any other obligation (including other extensions of credit). Indebtedness is permitted to be incurred for any purpose relating to the activities of the Fund, including without limitation to: finance any investment-related activities of the Fund; increase the buying power of the Fund; provide interim financing to the extent necessary to consummate the purchase of investments prior to the receipt of permanent financing or capital contributions or distributions (as applicable); pay for Fund expenses or fund the payment of Management Fees or other amounts; make, hold or dispose of investments; provide financing or refinancing to portfolio companies; fund the payment of amounts to withdrawing limited partners; fund distributions to the partners; and/or provide collateral to secure outstanding letters of credit or to create reserves, in each case in accordance with the Partnership Agreement. Further, the Fund is permitted to provide credit support (including letters of credit) or guarantee the obligations of one or more intermediate entities or portfolio companies that are joined as borrowers under the Fund's subscription line facility for the purpose of providing financing to one or more of such entities in support of one or more investments. Other investors or owners of such intermediate entities (or portfolio companies) generally will not share in the risk and/or cost of such financing, or the guarantees or other credit support the Fund provides in respect thereof under a subscription facility. As a result, in a situation where additional credit support is required, the Fund and not such other investors or owners would be obligated to provide such amounts. However, these other investors or owners have the potential to benefit indirectly therefrom, to the extent the financing improves portfolio company performance. Although the Partnership Agreement imposes limits on borrowings at the Fund level, Portfolio Investments and intermediate entities generally do not have such limits on their ability to engage in borrowings or incur leverage with respect to all or a portion of the relevant investments, including with respect to the amount of time such leverage is permitted to remain outstanding.

Reliance on Key Personnel Risk. The success of the Fund depends in substantial part upon the skill and expertise of the members of the Portfolio Manager's investment team and others providing investment advice with respect to the Fund, as well as the managers and investment professionals of the Underlying Funds. In the event of the death, disability or departure of any key personnel of the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager or their respective affiliates or of the Underlying Funds, the business and the performance of the Fund can be adversely affected. There is ever-increasing competition among alternative asset firms, financial institutions, private equity firms, financial sponsors, investment managers and other industry participants for hiring and retaining qualified investment professionals and there can be no assurance that these key investment professionals will continue to be associated with the Portfolio Manager or MAM Solutions throughout the life of the Fund or that such persons or any replacements will perform well. In addition, investment professionals may be replaced or added at any time, and the roles and responsibilities within MAM Solutions of certain investment professionals, including Key Persons (as defined in the Partnership Agreement), are likely to be modified and are expected to evolve during the life of the Fund, including modifications that result in less time devoted to the Fund. Moreover, certain investment advisory professionals, including Key Persons, may be promoted, take on additional responsibilities, or take on more managerial/supervisory roles within their current role. Accordingly, although their overall responsibility may remain consistent, they may spend less time on Fund matters. For the avoidance of doubt, devoting such time that is consistent with a person's roles and responsibilities in MAM Solutions is consistent with the active involvement required under the Partnership Agreement. For instance, the standard for a given Key Person's Required Involvement (as defined in the Partnership Agreement) will be different and will involve more or less time for certain Key Persons than others, depending on the role of each Key Person, particularly in regards to activities with respect to the Fund's investment committee, which may constitute a Key Person's primary responsibility with regards to the Fund.

Reliance on the Portfolio Manager. The Portfolio Manager will have responsibility for the Fund's investment activities, and Limited Partners will not be able to make investment or any other decisions in the management of the Fund. Limited Partners have no rights or powers to take part in the management of the Fund or make investment decisions and will not have the opportunity to evaluate or receive the amount of any direct or indirect Underlying Fund's or Direct Portfolio Company's financial and other information that is generally available to the Portfolio Manager. The Portfolio Manager will generally have sole and absolute discretion in structuring, negotiating and purchasing, financing and eventually divesting investments on behalf of the Fund (subject to specified exceptions). Changes in Macquarie's broader business and financial condition, whether due to a significant general economic downturn or legal or regulatory factors or other circumstances, could have a material adverse effect on the Fund. No assurance can be given that the Fund will be successful in obtaining suitable investments or that, if such investments are made, the objectives of the Fund will be achieved.

Reliance on Underlying Portfolio Investment Management. Although the Portfolio Manager will monitor and supervise the performance of each Portfolio Investment, and it is expected that the respective Underlying Fund managers will monitor and supervise the performance of their respective Underlying Portfolio Investments, it will primarily be the responsibility of each Underlying Portfolio Investment's management team to operate such Underlying Portfolio Investment's business on a day-to-day basis. Further, it will be the responsibility of the respective Underlying Fund Managers to ensure compliance with each Underlying Fund's governing documents and each Underlying Fund's compliance with the governing documents of its Underlying Portfolio Investments. There can be no assurance that the management of such companies will operate their respective businesses successfully or that such Underlying Fund managers will be able to operate the Underlying Funds successfully. Limited Partners will not have the opportunity to evaluate the relevant economic, financial and other information which will be utilized by any Underlying Fund manager in selecting, structuring, monitoring, supervising and disposing of Underlying Portfolio Investments.

Broad Investment Mandate. Subject to the limitations set forth in Section 10 —“Detailed Term Sheet,” the Fund has broad flexibility as to the Underlying Funds in which the Fund is authorized to invest and the specific investment strategies that may be employed by such Underlying Funds. The Fund will be permitted to invest (and may actually invest) in any number of Underlying Funds operating in a wide range of industries or activities. The Fund's portfolio may be concentrated at various points in time, including, for example, with respect to the number of investments included in the portfolio (which will be particularly limited when the Fund commences its investing activities), the nature of such investments and the geographies or industry sectors represented by the Underlying Funds in which the Fund invests. The Portfolio Manager intends generally to apply the managed infrastructure investment strategy and investment process described herein to the Fund's investments; however, the Portfolio Manager is permitted to modify or depart from the managed infrastructure investment strategy and investment process described herein on an opportunistic basis if it identifies managed infrastructure investment opportunities that it believes are sufficiently attractive on a risk/reward basis. For example, while the Portfolio Manager expects to focus on investments in Underlying Funds that focus on the target sectors identified in this Memorandum, the Fund could potentially, directly or indirectly, invest in Underlying Funds focusing on other sectors that are not discussed as target sectors in this Memorandum. The Fund is authorized to also employ other investment techniques and invest in other instruments that the Portfolio Manager believes will help achieve the Fund's investment objective or hedge unforeseen risks, whether or not such investment techniques or instruments are specifically described herein. Consistent with its investment objectives, the Fund is permitted to invest in financial instruments of any and all types, which exist now or are hereafter created. Such investments may entail risks not described herein, any of which may adversely affect the Fund.

General Economic and Market Conditions. The success of the Fund will be affected by general economic and market conditions in the U.S. and global economies, such as interest rates, availability and spreads of credit, credit defaults, inflation rates, economic uncertainty, changes in laws and regulations (including laws relating to taxation of the Fund's Portfolio Investments), trade barriers, currency exchange controls and national and international political, environmental and socioeconomic circumstances (including pandemics, wars, terrorist acts or security operations) in respect of the countries in which the Fund is permitted to invest. A worsening of general and market conditions would likely affect the level and volatility of securities and other asset prices and the liquidity of the Fund's Portfolio Investments, which could impair the Fund's profitability, result in losses and impact investment returns. In addition, general fluctuations in the market prices of securities and interest rates may affect the Fund's investment opportunities and the value of the Fund's Portfolio Investments. Macquarie's financial condition is likely to be adversely affected by a significant general economic downturn, and it may be subject to legal, regulatory, reputational and other unforeseen risks that could have a material adverse effect on Macquarie's business and operations and thereby could impact the Fund. Recent volatility in the global financial markets and political systems of certain European countries (for example, the UK) may have adverse spill-over effects into the global financial markets generally and the U.S. markets in particular. Moreover, a depression, recession, slowdown and/or sustained downturn in the U.S. or global economy (or any particular segment thereof) or weakening of credit markets (including a perceived increase in counterparty default risk) could adversely affect the Fund's profitability, impede the ability of the Fund's Portfolio Investments to perform under or refinance their existing obligations and impair the Fund's ability to effectively exit Portfolio Investments on favorable terms. Any of the foregoing events could result in substantial or total losses to the Fund in respect of certain investments, which losses will likely be exacerbated by the presence of leverage in a portfolio entity's capital structure. Should interest rates continue to rise, demand for the infrastructure asset class may fall as investors seek to obtain current income from other alternative assets. In addition, economic problems in a single country are increasingly affecting other markets and economies. A continuation of this trend could adversely affect global economic conditions and world markets and, in turn, could adversely affect the Fund's performance.

The Fund's investment strategy and the availability of opportunities satisfying the Fund's and/or the Underlying Funds' risk-adjusted return parameters rely in part on the continuation of certain trends and conditions observed in the financial markets and in some cases the improvement of such conditions. Trends and historical events do not imply, forecast or predict future events and, in any event, past performance does not predict future results. There can be no assurance that the assumptions made or the beliefs and expectations currently held by the Portfolio Manager will prove correct and actual events and circumstances may vary significantly. An economic downturn could adversely affect the Fund's investments, will likely impair the Fund's ability to consummate transactions and may cause the Fund to enter into transactions on less attractive terms than those enjoyed by Macquarie's other funds.

Prospective investors should note that numerical information contained in this Memorandum, including without limitation, market data, have not been updated through the date hereof. For example, Macquarie believes that certain market data and information is likely to have recently changed from that included herein, but is not yet available.

Financial Market Fluctuations. General fluctuations in the market prices of securities will likely affect the value of the Fund's investments. Instability in the securities markets is also expected to increase the risks inherent in such investments. The ability of Portfolio Investments, intermediate entities or Underlying Portfolio Investments to refinance debt securities may depend on their ability to sell new securities in the public high-yield debt market or otherwise, or to raise capital in the leveraged finance debt markets, which historically have been cyclical with regard to the availability of financing. Infrastructure assets are often highly leveraged and as a result are potentially exposed to adverse interest rate movements and increasing cost of debt. In addition, the regulatory regimes governing regulated infrastructure assets often use prevailing market interest rates in determining the allowed revenue that can be generated from these assets. As a result, revenue fluctuates with interest rate movements. Movements in interest rates are expected to also affect the appropriate discount rate to be used to value investments, resulting in fluctuations in valuation.

Infrastructure assets are vulnerable to local, national and worldwide economic cycles. This could affect the cash flow from Underlying Portfolio Investments as well as the prices at which the Fund, directly or indirectly, sells its Portfolio Investments. These risks are expected to increase as interest rates rise, including in circumstances where a Portfolio Investment's creditworthiness is such that it must borrow at higher interest rates than are available to the Fund.

Any deterioration of the global debt markets, any possible future failures of certain financial services companies and a significant rise in market perception of counterparty default risk and/or increases in interest rates and/or taxes will likely significantly reduce investor demand and liquidity for investment grade, high-yield and senior bank debt, which in turn is likely to lead some investment banks and other lenders to be unwilling or significantly less willing to finance new investments or to only offer committed financing for investments on less favorable terms than had been prevailing in the recent past. The Fund's ability to generate attractive investment returns for its Limited Partners can be adversely affected to the extent the Fund or any Underlying Fund is unable to obtain favorable financing terms for investments. Any market turmoil, as well as a perceived increase in counterparty default risk, is likely to have an adverse impact on the availability of credit to businesses generally and may lead to an overall weakening of the global economies, which in turn may adversely affect or restrict the ability of the Fund to sell or liquidate investments at favorable times or at favorable prices or otherwise have an adverse impact on the business and operations of the Fund.

Inflation Risks. High rates of inflation and rapid increases in the rate of inflation generally have a negative impact on financial markets and the broader economy. In an attempt to stabilize inflation, governments may impose wage and price controls or otherwise intervene in a country's economy. Speculation about possible future governmental measures and actual governmental efforts to curb inflation, including by increasing interest rates, intervention in foreign exchange markets, actions to adjust or fix currency values, or reducing fiscal or monetary stimuli, often create general economic uncertainty and have negative effects on the level of economic activity. Future governmental economic measures, may trigger or exacerbate increases in inflation, and consequently have an adverse impact on the Fund's returns. In the past, high levels of inflation have adversely affected the economies and financial markets of some countries and the ability of their governments to create conditions that stimulate or maintain economic growth. Certain countries, including the U.S., have recently seen significantly increased levels of inflation. Continued increases in government spending levels are likely to result in even higher debt levels and further increases in inflation. Persistently high levels of inflation could have a material and adverse impact on the Fund's investments and its aggregated returns. For example, unanticipated inflation in the cost of fuel, labor, resources and other inputs can also adversely affect the returns associated with investments. If a Portfolio Investment was unable to increase its revenue while the cost of relevant inputs was increasing, the company's profitability would likely suffer. Likewise, to the extent a Portfolio Investment has revenue streams that are slow or unable to adjust to changes in inflation, including by contractual arrangements or otherwise, the Portfolio Investment could increase revenue by less than its expenses increase. Conversely, as inflation declines, a Portfolio Investment may see its competitors' costs stabilize sooner or more rapidly than its own. Further, depending on the inflation assumptions relating to anticipated cash flows from an infrastructure project and their escalation factors, as well as the manner in which asset revenue is determined with respect to such project, returns from an investment may vary from those projected as a result of changes in the rate of inflation. Additionally, because the preferred return is not linked to the rate of inflation, as the rate of inflation increases, the proportion of real returns (i.e., the normal rate of return less the rate of inflation) treated as preferred return decrease and the proportion of real returns subject to performance-based compensation increases. There can be no assurance that high rates of inflation will not have a material adverse effect on the investments of the Fund.

Counterparty Risk. The Fund is exposed to the risk that third parties that owe the Fund, any Underlying Fund, any Direct Portfolio Company or any Underlying Portfolio Investment money, investments, securities or other assets will not perform their obligations. These parties include government entities, trading counterparties, clearing agents, exchanges, clearing houses, custodians, prime brokers, administrators and other financial intermediaries. These parties may default on their obligations to the Fund and its investments due to bankruptcy, lack of liquidity, operational failure or other reasons. This risk may arise, for example, from entering into swap or other derivative contracts under which counterparties have long-term obligations to make payments to the Fund, any Underlying Fund, any Direct Portfolio Company or any Underlying Portfolio Investment, or executing securities, futures, currency or commodity trades that fail to settle at the required time due to non-delivery by the counterparty or systems failure by clearing agents, exchanges, clearing houses or other financial intermediaries. Also, any practice of re-hypothecation of securities of the Fund, any Underlying Fund, any Direct Portfolio Company or any Underlying Portfolio Investment held by counterparties could result in the loss of such securities upon the bankruptcy, insolvency or failure of such counterparties.

Enhanced Scrutiny and Potential Regulation of the Private Investment Fund Industry and the Financial Services Industry. The Fund's and the Underlying Funds' ability to achieve their investment objectives, as well as the ability of the Fund to conduct its operations, are based on laws and regulations that are subject to change through legislative, judicial or administrative action. There have been significant legislative developments affecting the private investment fund industry and there continues to be discussion regarding enhancing governmental scrutiny and/or increasing the regulation of the private investment fund industry. It is difficult to determine what impact, if any, any increased regulatory scrutiny or initiatives will have on the private investment fund industry generally or on Macquarie, the Fund or any Underlying Funds specifically. Future legislative, judicial or administrative action could adversely affect the Fund's and the Underlying Funds' ability to achieve their investment objectives, as well as the ability of the Fund to conduct its operations. Macquarie is subject to extensive regulation, including periodic examinations, by governmental agencies and self-regulatory organizations in the jurisdictions in which it operates around the world. These authorities have regulatory powers dealing with many aspects of financial services, including the authority to grant, and in specific circumstances to cancel, permissions to carry on particular activities. Many of these regulators, including U.S. and foreign government agencies and self-regulatory organizations, as well as state securities commissions in the U.S., are also empowered to conduct investigations and administrative proceedings that can result in fines, suspensions of personnel, changes in policies, procedures or disclosure or other sanctions, including censure, the issuance of cease-and-desist orders, the suspension or expulsion of an investment adviser from registration or memberships or the commencement of a civil or criminal lawsuit against Macquarie or its personnel.

The effects of regulatory changes could also be indirect. The regulatory environment for private investment funds is evolving, and changes in the regulation of private investment funds may adversely affect the value of investments held by the Fund and the ability of the Fund to effectively employ its investment and trading strategies. Increased scrutiny and newly proposed legislation applicable to private investment funds and their sponsors may also impose significant administrative burdens on Macquarie and may divert time and attention from portfolio management activities. In addition, the Fund will be required to register under certain additional non-U.S. laws and regulations, and will need to engage additional distributors or other agents in certain non-U.S. jurisdictions in order to market Interests to potential investors. The effect of any future regulatory change on the Fund and the Underlying Funds could be substantial and adverse. For example, the market for private equity transactions has been adversely affected by a decrease in the availability of senior and subordinated financing for transactions, in part in response to regulatory pressures on providers of financing to reduce or eliminate their exposure to such transactions. In addition, the securities and futures markets are subject to comprehensive statutes, regulations and margin requirements. The SEC, other regulators and self-regulatory organizations and exchanges are authorized to take extraordinary actions in the event of market emergencies.

Financial services regulation has increased significantly in recent years, and will likely in the future be subject to further enhanced governmental scrutiny and/or increased regulation, including resulting from changes in U.S. executive administration or Congressional leadership. There continues to be significant discussion regarding enhancing governmental scrutiny and/or increasing the regulation of the alternative asset management industry. On July 21, 2010, the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act (the “Dodd-Frank Act”) was signed into law. A key feature of the Dodd-Frank Act is the potential extension of prudential regulation by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System (the “Federal Reserve”) to U.S. nonbank financial companies that are not currently subject to such regulation but that are determined to pose risk to the U.S. financial system. The Dodd-Frank Act defines a “nonbank financial company” as a company that is predominantly engaged in activities that are financial in nature. The Financial Stability Oversight Council (the “FSOC”), an interagency body created by the Dodd-Frank Act to monitor and address systemic risk, has the authority to subject such a company to supervision and regulation by the Federal Reserve (including capital, leverage and liquidity requirements) if the FSOC determines that such company is systemically important, in that it poses a risk to the U.S. financial system. The Dodd-Frank Act does not contain any minimum size requirements for such a determination by the FSOC, and it is possible that it could be applied to private funds, particularly large, highly leveraged funds.

The Dodd-Frank Act also imposes a number of restrictions on the relationship and activities of banking organizations with certain private funds and hedge funds and other provisions that will affect the alternative asset management industry, either directly or indirectly. Included in the Dodd-Frank Act is the so-called “Volcker Rule,” which takes the form of Section 13 of the Bank Holding Company Act of 1956, as amended. Among other things, the Volcker Rule prohibits any “banking entity” (generally defined as any insured depository institution, subject to certain exceptions including for depository institutions that do not have, and are not controlled by a company that has, more than $10 billion in total consolidated assets and significant trading assets and liabilities, any company that controls such an institution, a non-U.S. bank that is treated as a bank holding company for purposes of U.S. banking law and any affiliate or subsidiary of the foregoing entities) from sponsoring or acquiring or retaining an ownership interest in a private fund or hedge fund that is not subject to the provisions of the 1940 Act in reliance upon either Section 3(c)(1) or Section 3(c)(7) of the 1940 Act. The Volcker Rule also permits the Federal Reserve to require, by rule, that certain nonbank financial companies that have been determined to be systemically important by the FSOC and subject to supervision and regulation by the Federal Reserve (as discussed above) comply with additional capital requirements for, and additional quantitative limits with regards to, such activities, although such nonbank financial companies are not expressly prohibited from engaging in sponsoring or investing in such funds. Prospective investors in the Fund that are banking entities should consult their bank regulatory counsel prior to making an investment.

The Dodd-Frank Act, as well as future related legislation, may have an adverse effect on the private equity industry generally and/or on Macquarie, the Fund or any Underlying Funds, specifically. Therefore, there can be no assurance that any continued regulatory scrutiny or initiatives will not have an adverse impact on Macquarie or otherwise impede the Fund's activities. Other Macquarie divisions becoming subject to such regulations may also adversely affect the Fund. The current regulatory environment in the U.S. may be impacted by future legislative developments, such as amendments to key provisions of the Dodd-Frank Act. For example, on May 24, 2018, the Economic Growth, Regulatory Relief and Consumer Protection Act (the "Reform Act") was signed into law. Among other regulatory changes, the Reform Act amends various sections of the Dodd-Frank Act, including by modifying the Volcker Rule to exempt depositary institutions that do not have, and are not controlled by a company that has, more than $10 billion in total consolidated assets and significant trading assets and liabilities. In July 2019, U.S. federal regulatory agencies adopted amendments to the Volcker Rule regulations to implement the Volcker Rule amendments included in the Reform Act, and also in 2019 such U.S. federal regulatory agencies adopted certain targeted amendments to the Volcker Rule regulations to simplify and tailor certain compliance requirements relating to the Volcker Rule. In June 2020, federal regulatory agencies adopted additional revisions to the Volcker Rule's current restrictions on banking entities sponsoring and investing in certain covered hedge funds and private funds, including by proposing new exemptions allowing banking entities to sponsor and invest without limit in credit funds, venture capital funds, customer facilitation funds and family wealth management vehicles (the "Covered Fund Amendments"). The Covered Fund Amendments also loosen certain other restrictions on extraterritorial fund activities and direct parallel or co-investments made alongside covered funds. The Covered Fund Amendments therefore should expand the ability of banking entities to invest in and sponsor private funds. The ultimate consequences of the Reform Act and such regulatory developments on the Fund and its activities remain uncertain, and it remains unclear whether any other legislative or regulatory proposals will be enacted or adopted. In addition, it is not possible to determine the full extent of any impact on the Fund or any of the Fund's Portfolio Investments of any such potential financial reform legislation, or whether any such proposal will become law. More generally, the private investment fund industry, as well as the infrastructure space, could in the future be subject to further enhanced governmental scrutiny and/or increased regulation, including as a result of the recent federal, state and local political developments and events. The SEC has proposed, and is expected to continue to propose, significant rules that will impact Macquarie's business and the business of the Fund. Such current and future rulemaking is expected to impact Macquarie and its affiliates, the Fund and/or its investments, and the Fund has the potential to bear significant increased costs as a result of such rules. Any significant changes in governmental policies, laws, rules, regulations, regulatory interpretations or enforcement activity levels, including those relating to, among other things, economic policy (including with respect to interest rates, foreign trade and inflation), the regulation of the financial services industry in general and the asset management industry in particular, tax law, immigration policy, public health policy, infrastructure spending, environmental protection and/or climate change policies or regulations, aviation and other transportation regulations and unemployment benefit programs and/or government entitlement programs could have a material adverse impact on the Fund and/or its Portfolio Investments, and increase their expenses, and thereby decrease returns to investors.

Enactment of these reforms and/or other similar legislation could nonetheless have an adverse effect on the private investment funds industry generally and on Macquarie and/or the Fund or any Underlying Funds specifically, and may impede the Fund's ability to effectively achieve its investment objectives. The Portfolio Manager, as a registered investment adviser under the Advisers Act, will be required to comply with a variety of periodic reporting and compliance-related obligations under applicable federal and state securities laws (including, without limitation, the obligation of the Portfolio Manager and its affiliates to make regulatory filings with respect to the Fund and its activities under the Advisers Act (including, without limitation, Form PF by the Portfolio Manager)). In light of the heightened regulatory environment in which the Fund and the Portfolio Manager operate and the ever-increasing regulations applicable to private investment funds and their investment advisors, it has become increasingly expensive and time-consuming for the Fund and the Portfolio Manager and their affiliates to comply with such regulatory reporting and compliance-related obligations, including, without limitation, Form PF, Form BE-13, reports to be filed in connection with the requirements of the U.S. Commodity Futures Trading Commission and reports and/or any initial compliance or further administrative or other filings (including preparation, distribution or filing of any filings or reports) contemplated by the AIFMD or any similar law, rule or regulation and/or other U.S. and non-U.S. regulatory filings of the Portfolio Manager and its affiliates relating to the Fund's activities or a Limited Partner's jurisdiction. For example, Form PF requires that the Portfolio Manager report the regulatory assets under management of the Fund, and because the Fund will be required to bear the Fund's expenses relating to compliance-related matters and regulatory filings, the Fund will bear the costs and expenses of initial and ongoing Form PF compliance applicable to the Fund, including costs and expenses of collecting and calculating data and the preparation of such reports and filings. Such expenses are likely to be material, including on a cumulative basis over the life of the Fund. This enhanced scrutiny of private fund advisers may lead to further regulatory investigations and enforcement actions across the private investment funds industry generally, which will likely require the devotion of additional compliance-related resources by private fund advisers and make it increasingly costly for funds like the Fund to conduct their business. Any further increases in the regulations applicable to private investment funds generally or the Fund and/or the Portfolio Manager in particular may result in increased expenses associated with the Fund's activities and additional resources of the Portfolio Manager being devoted to such regulatory reporting and compliance-related obligations, which may reduce overall returns for the Limited Partners and/or have an adverse effect on the ability of the Fund to effectively achieve its investment objective.

Furthermore, various federal, state and local agencies have been examining the role of placement agents, finders and other similar service providers in the context of investment by public pension plans and other similar entities, including investigations and requests for information, and in connection therewith, new and/or proposed rules and regulations in this arena may increase the possibility that the General Partner and its affiliates, including those affiliates who provide fund placement services, may be required to make additional registrations and filings and may be exposed to claims and/or actions that could require a Limited Partner to withdraw from the Fund, particularly in light of the extensive marketing of the Fund by the General Partner and its affiliates to governmental pension plans and investments in public infrastructure projects. Relatedly, it is likely that Macquarie will be required to provide certain information regarding some of the investors in the Fund to regulatory agencies and bodies in order to comply with applicable laws and regulations. In addition, as a global alternative asset manager whose broad range of businesses includes the management of direct and secondary private funds, hedge funds, real estate funds, credit-oriented funds, mutual funds, and other private investment funds, as well as the provision of various financial advisory, restructuring and fund placement services, Macquarie is expected to be subject to litigation and claims relating to its businesses, as well as governmental and/or regulatory inquiries, investigations and/or proceedings. While it is difficult to predict what impact, if any, the foregoing may have, there can be no assurance that any of the foregoing, whether applicable to Macquarie generally and/or the Fund and/or the Portfolio Manager specifically, would not have a material adverse effect on the Fund and its ability to achieve its investment objectives.

Title VII of the Dodd-Frank Act establishes a general framework for systemic regulation that has imposed and will impose mandatory clearing, exchange trading and margin requirements on many OTC derivatives transactions. The Dodd-Frank Act also created new categories of regulated market participants, such as “swap dealers” (“SDs”) and “security-based swap dealers” (“SBSDs”) that are subject to significant new capital, registration, recordkeeping, reporting, disclosure, business conduct and other regulatory requirements, a large number of which have been implemented. This regulatory framework has increased the costs of entering into derivatives transactions for end-users of derivatives, such as the Fund. In particular, new margin requirements and capital charges, even when not directly applicable to the Fund, have increased the pricing of derivatives transacted by the Fund. Potential additional clearing and exchange trading requirements, trade reporting requirements and position limits may lead to changes in the liquidity of derivative transactions and higher pricing.

Other similar regulations throughout the globe may increase the Fund’s cost of pursuing its activities even if not directly binding on the Fund. See Section 12—“Certain Legal, Tax and Regulatory Considerations—Regulatory Environment vis-à-vis Derivatives.”

Pay-to-Play Laws, Regulation and Policies. A number of U.S. states and municipal pension plans have adopted so-called “pay-to-play” laws, regulations or policies which prohibit, restrict or require disclosure of payments to (and/or certain contacts with) state officials by individuals and entities seeking to do business with state entities, including those seeking investments by public retirement funds. The U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (the “SEC”) has adopted rules that, among other things, prohibit an investment adviser from providing advisory services for compensation to a government client for two years after the advisor or certain of its executives, employees or agents makes a contribution to certain elected officials or candidates. If Macquarie, any of their employees or affiliates or any service provider acting on their behalf fails to comply with such laws, regulations or policies, such non-compliance could have an adverse effect on the Fund.

Absence of U.S. Regulatory Oversight. Although the Portfolio Manager is a relying adviser of a registered investment adviser under the Advisers Act, and the Fund may be considered similar in some ways to an investment company, the Fund is not required and does not intend to register under the 1940 Act. The 1940 Act provides certain protection to investors in registered investment companies and imposes certain restrictions on registered investment companies (including, for example, limitations on the ability of registered investment companies to incur leverage), none of which will be applicable to the Fund. Consequently, investors in the Fund will not be afforded these protections.

Compliance with Rules and Regulations of the Federal Communications Commission. In connection with a Direct Investment or an Underlying Fund’s investment in an entity that is regulated by the U.S. Federal Communications Commission (an “FCC Regulated Entity”), in addition to the Partnership Agreement, the terms of the applicable governing agreement of any applicable Alternative Investment Vehicle, AIV Aggregators (as defined in the Partnership Agreement), blocker corporations, other Intermediate Entities or Feeder Funds may contain such provisions (the “Insulation Provisions”) as may be necessary or advisable to provide, to the extent possible, that the investors therein will be insulated in accordance with applicable rules, regulations and policies of the U.S. Federal Communications Commission (the “FCC”) from any material involvement, direct or indirect, in the management or operation of the media or common carrier activities of the Fund, that such investors will not be attributed with an ownership interest in such FCC Regulated Entity for purposes of the FCC’s “cross-ownership,” “multiple-ownership” or similar rules, or otherwise to ensure compliance with applicable rules of the FCC. The Insulation Provisions may be included in the terms of AIV Aggregators that indirectly hold multiple Portfolio Investments, including investments in Underlying Funds or Direct Portfolio Companies that are not FCC Regulated Entities. The Insulation Provisions would restrict certain Limited Partner rights with respect to such “insulated” entities (such as, for example, elimination of the ability of the Limited Partners to vote to wind up and dissolve the applicable entities, elimination of “no cause” removal of the general partner or manager of such entities, and limiting the right to vote for the removal of the general partner or manager of such entities to instances in which “cause” removal is justified on a finding by an independent party and/or in other specified circumstances).

U.S. Presidential Administration. Donald J. Trump took office as President of the United States in January 2025. The Trump administration has sought, and is expected to continue to seek, to enact changes to numerous areas of law and regulations currently in effect. Any such changes could significantly impact the Fund and/or its Portfolio Investments. Specific legislative and regulatory proposals discussed during the election campaigns that might materially impact the Fund and/or its Portfolio Investments include, but are not limited to, changes to climate policies, trade agreements, immigration policy, import and export regulations, tariffs and customs duties, energy regulations, income tax regulations and the federal tax code, public company reporting requirements and antitrust enforcement. Changes in U.S. federal policies, including tax policies, and at regulatory agencies occur over time through policy and personnel changes following elections, which lead to changes involving the level of oversight and focus on the financial services industry or the tax rates paid by corporate entities. The nature, timing and economic effects of potential changes to the current legal and regulatory framework affecting financial institutions under the Trump administration remain highly uncertain. None of the General Partner, the Fund or their respective affiliates can predict the ultimate impact of the foregoing on the Fund, its business and investments, or the private fund industry generally. Such changes, whether enacted by the current administration or a future administration, may adversely affect the Fund's operating environment and therefore the Fund's activities, operating costs, financial condition and results of operations. There can be no assurance that any changes in laws, regulations or governmental policy will not have an adverse impact on the Fund and its investments, including the ability of the Fund to execute its investment objectives and to receive attractive returns. In addition, any changes in U.S. social, political, regulatory and economic conditions or in laws and policies governing the financial services industry, infrastructure, foreign trade, manufacturing, outsourcing, development and investment in the territories and countries or types of investments in which the Fund is permitted to invest, and any negative sentiments towards the United States as a result of such changes, could adversely affect the performance of the Fund's investments. Changes in the control of the U.S. federal legislative and executive branches during the Fund's term could result in potential changes in laws and regulations affecting the private equity industry. The likelihood of occurrence and the effect of any such change is highly uncertain and could have an adverse impact on the Fund and the Fund's investments. Moreover, media (including social media) has the potential to influence public sentiment and escalate tensions both within the U.S. and in international relations, which could cause social unrest and could negatively impact stock markets and economics around the globe as well as the Portfolio Investments.

International Conflicts and Geopolitical Events. Wars and other international conflicts, such as the Israeli-Palestinian conflict, U.S. intervention in Venezuela and the ongoing military conflict between Russia and Ukraine, have caused disruption to global financial systems, trade and transport, among other things. In response, multiple other countries have put in place sanctions and other severe restrictions or prohibitions on certain of the countries involved, as well as related individuals and businesses. However, the ultimate impact of these conflicts (and other geopolitical events, including national referenda, elections, interest rates, political movements, humanitarian crises, national and international policy changes, actual or perceived trade wars, import or export controls, executive orders, laws, legal systems and regulatory regimes) and their effect on global economic and commercial activity and conditions, and on the operations, financial condition and performance of the Fund or any particular industry, business or investee country and the duration and severity of those effects, is impossible to predict.

These matters are expected to have a significant adverse impact and result in significant losses to the Fund. This impact may include reductions in revenue and growth, unexpected operational losses and liabilities, supply chain disruptions and reductions in the availability of capital. It may also limit the ability of the Fund to source, diligence and execute new investments and to manage, finance and exit investments in the future. Developing and further governmental actions (military or otherwise) may cause additional disruption and constrain or alter existing financial, legal and regulatory frameworks and systems in ways that are adverse to the investment strategy which the Fund intends to pursue, all of which could adversely affect the Fund's ability to fulfill its investment objectives.

Trade Policy. The U.S. government has imposed, and may in the future further increase, tariffs on certain foreign goods, including from China, such as steel and aluminum. Some foreign governments, including China, have instituted retaliatory tariffs on certain U.S. goods. Most recently, the current U.S. Presidential administration has imposed or sought to impose significant increases to tariffs on goods imported into the U.S., including from China, Canada and Mexico. Tariffs on goods imported from China and other countries could further increase costs, decrease margins, reduce the competitiveness of products and services offered by a Portfolio Investment. This could materially adversely affect the revenues and profitability of a Portfolio Investment, and therefore the Fund's profitability, due to a Portfolio Investment's reliance on goods imported from countries that are subject to significant tariffs. Further governmental actions related to the imposition of tariffs or other trade barriers or changes to international trade agreements or policies in respect of other jurisdictions could also have a similar adverse impact.

The U.S. has also implemented a number of economic sanctions programs and export controls that specifically target Chinese entities and nationals on national security grounds. Moreover, the U.S. has implemented additional sanctions against entities participating in China's military industrial complex and providing support to the country's military, intelligence, and surveillance apparatuses. These sanctions impose certain restrictions on U.S. persons and entities buying or selling publicly traded securities of these designated entities. A "trade war" between the U.S. and China (and possibly with other nations), the countries' inability to reach further trade agreements, or the continued use of reciprocal sanctions by each country, may negatively impact opportunities for investment as well as the rate of global growth, particularly in China, which has and continues to exhibit signs of slowing growth. Such slowing growth could adversely affect the revenues and profitability of the Fund's Portfolio Investments.

Alternative Investment Fund Managers Directive. The AIFMD regulates the activities of certain private fund managers undertaking fund management activities or marketing fund interests to investors in the EEA and the UK respectively.

As the Fund is managed in the EEA, and the AIFM intends to actively market the Fund to investors domiciled or having their registered office in the EEA or the UK: (i) the Fund and the AIFM will be subject to certain reporting, disclosure and other compliance obligations under the AIFMD, which will result in the Fund incurring additional costs and expenses; (ii) the Fund and the AIFM may become subject to additional regulatory or compliance obligations arising under national law in certain EEA jurisdictions or the UK, which would result in the Fund incurring additional costs and expenses or may otherwise affect the management and operation of the Fund; (iii) the AIFM will be required to make detailed information relating to the Fund and its investments available to regulators and third parties; and (iv) the AIFMD will also restrict certain activities of the Fund in relation to EEA or UK portfolio companies, including, in some circumstances, the Fund's ability to recapitalise, refinance or potentially restructure a portfolio company within the first two years of ownership, which may in turn affect operations of the Fund generally.

The EU is implementing a Directive to amend AIFMD ("AIFMD II"). AIFMD II imposes obligations including: (i) minimum substance considerations that EU regulators will need to take into account during the AIFM authorization process; (ii) enhanced requirements around delegation, including additional reporting requirements in relation to delegation arrangements; (iii) new requirements applying to AIFMs managing funds that originate loans, irrespective of whether loan origination forms a core part of the relevant fund's strategy, or is merely incidental or occasional (including in respect of (a) policies and procedures for lending, (b) limits on lending exposure to a financial institution, (c) prohibitions on lending to certain associated persons, (d) a ban on 'originate-to-distribute' strategies, (e) risk retention requirements and (f) mandatory disclosures and reporting); (iv) increased investor pre-contractual disclosure requirements, notably around fees and charges; (v) additional requirements in respect of liquidity management for "open-ended" funds (within the meaning of AIFMD); and (vi) a prohibition on non-EU AIFMs and AIFs established in jurisdictions identified as "high risk" countries under the European Anti-

Money Laundering Directive (as amended) or the revised EU list of non-cooperative tax jurisdictions. The final text of AIFMD II was published in the Official Journal of the European Union in March 2024, with AIFMD II being implemented by EU Member States from 2026. It is possible that AIFMD II may require additional costs, expenses and/or resources, as well as restricting or prohibiting certain activities, including in relation to funds that originate loans and managers or funds established in jurisdictions outside the EU identified as having anti-money laundering and/or tax failings.

Macquarie Alliance Partners Management, LLC is a non-EEA alternative investment fund manager of Macquarie Alliance Partners Infrastructure Fund II, L.P. Non-EEA AIFMs managing funds which are registered for marketing in the EEA, are expected to be subject to reporting and disclosure requirements under AIFMD II as well as the prohibition in respect of “high risk” jurisdictions for anti-money laundering and tax purposes. The application of other AIFMD II requirements may depend on how far individual Member States elect to apply AIFMD II to non-EEA AIFMs. This may affect the Fund’s implementation of its strategy, and/or lead to increased legal and compliance costs, in one or more EEA Member States. Specifically, as Macquarie Alliance Partners Management, LLC is the non-EEA AIFM of Macquarie Alliance Partners Infrastructure Fund II, L.P, whereas Macquarie Asset Management Europe S.à r.l. is the EEA AIFM of the Partnership, it is possible that the implementation of AIFMD II could result in differing compliance requirements being applicable as between Macquarie Alliance Partners Infrastructure Fund II, L.P and the Partnership. The extent to which Macquarie Alliance Partners Management, LLC and/or Macquarie Asset Management Europe S.à r.l. will be subject to AIFMD II is uncertain, cannot be easily predicted, and it is possible that the implementation of any future regulation may impact both Macquarie Alliance Partners Management, LLC and/or Macquarie Asset Management Europe S.à r.l. (and, as a result, the respective funds they manage) in the same manner or, in the alternative, may place additional burdens on Macquarie Asset Management Europe S.à r.l. relative to Macquarie Alliance Partners Management, LLC or vice versa.

United Kingdom Withdrawal from the European Union. On January 31, 2020, the UK formally withdrew from the EU (“Brexit”). After this, the UK entered into a transition period during which the majority of the existing EU rules continued to apply in the UK. Following the end of the transition period, on December 31, 2020, EU rules ceased to apply in the UK. Although the terms of the UK’s future relationship with the EU were agreed in a trade and cooperation agreement signed on December 30, 2020, this did not include an agreement on financial services. In the absence of a formal agreement on this issue, UK firms in the financial sector have more limited access to the EU market than prior to Brexit and EU firms similarly have more limited access to the UK, owing to the loss of passporting rights under applicable EU and UK legislation. Alternative arrangements and structures may allow for the provision of cross-border marketing and services between the EU and UK, but these are subject to legal uncertainty and the risk that further legislative and regulatory restrictions could be imposed in the future.

As a result of the onshoring of EU legislation in the UK, UK firms are currently subject to substantially many of the same rules and regulations as prior to Brexit. However, the UK Government has begun the process of revising certain areas of onshored EU legislation as part of UK financial services legislation and regulation, which could result in substantive changes to regulatory requirements in the UK. It remains to be seen to what extent the UK may elect to diverge from the current EU-influenced regime over time, either by actively legislating to replace onshored EU rules or by passively not implementing or mirroring EU legislative changes. It is possible that the EU may respond to UK initiatives by restricting third-country access to EU markets. If the regulatory regimes for EU and UK financial services change or diverge further, this could have an adverse impact on the Fund and its investments, including the ability of the Fund to achieve its investment objectives in whole or in part (for example, owing to increased costs and complexity and/or new restrictions in relation to cross-border access between the EU and non-EU jurisdictions).

The legal, political and economic uncertainty and disruption generally resulting from Brexit may adversely affect both EU- and UK-based businesses, including Macquarie and the Fund's Portfolio Investments, as applicable. Brexit has already led to disruptions in trade as businesses attempt to adapt cross-border procedures and rules applicable in the UK and in the EU to their activities, products, customers, and suppliers. Continuing uncertainty and the prospect of further disruption may result in an economic slowdown and/or a deteriorating business environment in the UK and in one or more EU Member States.

Eurozone Risks. There are significant and persistent concerns regarding the debt burden of certain Eurozone countries and their ability to meet future financial obligations, the overall stability of the Euro and the suitability of the Euro to function as a single currency given the diverse economic and political circumstances in individual Eurozone countries. The risks and prevalent concerns about a credit crisis in Europe could have a detrimental impact on global economic recovery as well as on sovereign and non-sovereign debt in the Eurozone countries. There can be no assurance that the market disruptions in Europe will not spread to other countries, nor can there be any assurance that future assistance packages will be available or, even if provided, will be sufficient to stabilize affected countries and markets in Europe or elsewhere. These and other concerns could lead to the re-introduction of individual currencies in one or more Eurozone countries, or, in more extreme circumstances, the possible dissolution of the Euro entirely. Should the Euro dissolve entirely, the legal and contractual consequences with respect to the Fund and the Combined Limited Partners could be determined by laws in effect at such time.

Alternative Investment Vehicles. The Sponsor is authorized to establish Alternative Investment Vehicles to make investments due to legal, tax, regulatory, accounting; structural or other similar considerations relating to specific investment opportunities or relating to certain Limited Partners. While the terms and conditions of any such Alternative Investment Vehicles are expected to be generally comparable to those of the Partnership (taking into consideration such legal, tax, regulatory, accounting or other considerations), the rights of the Limited Partners in, and the obligations and duties of the Sponsor in respect of, the Alternative Investment Vehicles may differ from those applicable to the Fund by virtue of the specific terms, or jurisdiction of establishment, of the Alternative Investment Vehicles. In addition, the structural attributes of certain Alternative Investment Vehicles may result in divergent return characteristics for certain Limited Partners. For example, the Sponsor is permitted to elect to structure an Alternative Investment Vehicle that may result in favorable tax treatment for one set of Limited Partners but less favorable tax attributes for another, or the structure may be dictated by such result but not otherwise benefit all Limited Partners. Additionally, the Sponsor is permitted to elect to not use an Alternative Investment Vehicle due to any additional legal, tax, regulatory, accounting, structural or other similar requirements such structure would place on the Fund, the General Partner, the Sponsor, MAM Solutions, or one or more Limited Partners, even where such structure would be advantageous for a Limited Partners or group of Limited Partners. Depending on the particular terms, jurisdiction or other characteristics of an Alternative Investment Vehicle a Limited Partner's participation therein may have adverse consequences to it that would not have occurred had the Partnership been utilized. The expenses related to the liquidation and winding-up of any such Alternative Investment Vehicles will be expenses of the Fund and not necessarily only the Limited Partners participating in such structure.

Joint Ventures; Third Party Involvement. The Fund reserves the right to co-invest through consortiums of other financial investors, partnerships, joint ventures or other similar arrangements with one or more other persons as a co-venturer or partner, including with the seller (or an affiliate thereof) of a Portfolio Investment, a person involved in the selling or acquisition of the investment, an investor in the Fund (or another Macquarie Fund) or other third parties, including strategic partners. Such investments involve risks not present in investments where a third party is not involved, including the possibility that: (a) the Fund and such co-venturer or partner could reach an impasse on a major decision that requires the approval of both parties; (b) a co-venturer or partner of the Fund could at any time have economic or business interests or goals that are inconsistent with those of the Fund; (c) the co-venturer or partner could have financial, legal or regulatory difficulties, including liquidity or insolvency issues, resulting in a negative impact on such investment; (d) the co-venturer or partner could be in a position to take (or block) action in a manner contrary to the Fund's investment objective or narrow the array of potential exit strategies for the Fund; (e) the co-venturer or partner could take actions that subject the investment to liabilities in excess of, or other than, those contemplated; or (f) the co-venturer could cause the investment to be reviewable by CFIUS or another U.S. or other national security investment clearance regulator. Consortium transactions generally entail a reduced level of control by the Fund over the investment because governance rights must be shared with the other consortium sponsors. Accordingly, the Fund may not be able to control decisions relating to a consortium investment, including the timing and nature of any exit. In addition, the Fund may in certain circumstances be liable for the actions of its third-party partners or co-venturers. Furthermore, if a co-venturer defaults on its funding obligations, the Fund may be required to make up the shortfall. Investments made with third parties through consortiums of private equity investors, partnerships, joint ventures or other similar arrangements may involve incentive compensation and/or other fees payable to such third-party partners or co-venturers. In addition, the Fund reserves the right to co-invest with non-affiliated co-investors or partners whose ability to influence the affairs of the Portfolio Investments in which the Fund invests could be significant, and even greater than that of the Fund and as such, the Fund could be required to rely upon the abilities and expertise of such co-venturer or partner. It also often is more difficult for the Fund to sell its interest in any joint venture, partnership or entity with other owners than to sell its interest in other types of investments (and any such investment would often be subject to a buy-sell right). The Fund in certain circumstances is expected to grant co-venturers or partners approval rights with respect to major decisions concerning the management and disposition of the investment, which would increase the risk of deadlocks or unanticipated exits from an investment. A deadlock could delay the execution of the business plan for the investment or require the Fund to engage in a buy-sell of the venture with the co-venturer or partner or conduct the forced sale of such investment or require alternative dispute resolution in order to resolve such deadlock. As a result of these risks, there can be no assurance that the Fund will be able to fully realize its expected return on any such investment. Further, to the extent that the Fund offers any co-investment opportunity to any Limited Partners or third parties, some or all of the risks described above have the potential to apply to such co-investments.

Holding Vehicles, Aggregator Vehicles and Special Purpose Vehicles. The General Partner and its affiliates reserve the right to establish one or more Aggregator Vehicles, holding vehicles or special purpose vehicles beneath the Partnership to hold directly or indirectly one or more Portfolio Investments. Proceeds received by such Aggregator Vehicles, holding vehicles or special purpose vehicles from one Portfolio Investment which it holds may be applied to satisfy obligations in respect of one or more other Portfolio Investments held by such Aggregator Vehicle, holding vehicle or special purpose vehicle. Proceeds may also be used to pay (directly or indirectly via the Partnership) costs and expenses, including the Partnership's obligations under its revolving credit facility (including the payment of principal, interest, fees and expenses related thereto), and thereafter such Aggregator Vehicle, holding vehicle or special purpose vehicle may re-borrow (directly or indirectly via the Partnership) from the facility to satisfy obligations in respect of the Portfolio Investment that generated such proceeds or one or more other Portfolio Investments. The receipt, use and recontribution by such Aggregator Vehicle, holding vehicle or special purpose vehicle of any such proceeds shall not be considered distributions received by, or contributions made by, the Partnership or the Partners for certain purposes under the Partnership Agreement (including, for example, that such proceeds would not reduce or increase, as the case may be, the Undrawn Capital Commitment of any Partner or be subject to any preferred return or be subject to any requirements under the Partnership Agreement with respect to the timing of distribution of proceeds) and may result in higher or lower reported multiples than if such proceeds had otherwise been distributed (or deemed distributed) to the Partnership or the Partners.

Advance Funding; Capital Calls. As described in Section 10 – “Detailed Term Sheet – Borrowings, Guarantees and Letters of Credit,” the General Partner is permitted to fund the making of investments and other capital needs with proceeds from drawdowns under one or more credit facilities (the collateral for which can be, for example, one or more assets of the Fund, i.e., asset-backed facilities, or the Undrawn Capital Commitments of investors, i.e., subscription lines) prior to calling Capital Commitments. There is no limitation on the amount of time any such borrowing may remain outstanding, and the interest expense and other costs of any such borrowings will be Fund expenses including the cost of borrowings for vehicles in which only some Partners participate, and, accordingly, may decrease net returns of the Fund. It is expected that interest will accrue on any such outstanding borrowings at a rate lower than the Preferred Return, which will begin accruing when Capital Contributions to fund such investments, or repay borrowings used to fund such investments, are actually made to the Fund.

In addition, calculations of Net IRR and Gross IRRs as reported to Limited Partners from time to time, in respect of investments and with respect to the Fund, are based on the payment date of Capital Contributions received from Limited Partners. Use of a subscription-based credit facility (or other long-term leverage) with respect to investments will result in higher reported Net IRRs and Gross IRRs than if the facility had not been utilized and instead the Limited Partners' capital had been contributed at the inception of an investment and may present conflicts of interest as a result of certain factors, including the interest rate on such borrowings typically being less than the rate of the Preferred Return and that such Preferred Return does not accrue on such borrowings, and only accrues on Capital Contributions when made. As a result, use of such long-term leverage arrangements with respect to investments may reduce or eliminate the Preferred Return received by the Limited Partners and accelerate or increase distributions of Carried Interest to the Founder Partner (which is an affiliate of the General Partner), providing the General Partner an incentive to fund investments with the proceeds of such borrowings in lieu of drawing down Capital Commitments on a just-in-time basis, and, accordingly, Capital Contributions to repay such borrowings may be required significantly after acquisition of an investment (or never if principal and interest on such borrowings are repaid out of investment proceeds). Additionally, the General Partner expects that borrowings for Management Fees will be based on gross Management Fee amounts, rather than taking into account any rebates Limited Partners may receive at the time such borrowing is incurred. As such, the Fund will incur additional interest expense on the difference between gross and rebated Management Fee amounts. Subject to the limitations in the Partnership Agreement, the use of a subscription-based credit facility by the Fund is within the General Partner's discretion.

To the extent that the Fund is unable to obtain a subscription line or an asset-backed facility, the General Partner determines that the terms of such facility would not be appropriate for the Fund or otherwise determines not to use such facility or access to such facility otherwise becomes unavailable, the General Partner is authorized to determine to draw down Capital Commitments in advance and hold them in reserve in order to make investments, satisfy fees and expenses and other capital needs as such needs arise in the future. See Section 10 — “Detailed Term Sheet – Drawdowns” and “–Investment Period.”

Faster Drawdown of Capital Commitments. There is no limit on the speed at which the Fund may draw down Capital Commitments. In addition, because the Fund expects to acquire interests in Underlying Funds that are at least partially invested, the Fund may have a faster Capital Commitment drawdown rate than a fund focused exclusively on other types of investments.

Dollar Denomination of the Fund Interests. The Interests are denominated in Dollars. Limited Partners subscribing for Interests in any country in which Dollars are not the local currency should note that changes in the value of exchange between Dollars and such currency may have an adverse effect on the value, price, or income of the investment to such Limited Partner. Furthermore, contributions to the Fund and distributions from the Fund will be denominated in Dollars, and Limited Partners may incur transaction costs associated with the conversion of Dollars in their local currency. There may be foreign exchange regulations applicable to investments in foreign currencies in certain jurisdictions where this Memorandum is being issued. The fees, costs and expenses incurred by Limited Partners in converting their local currency to U.S. dollars (if applicable) in order to meet drawdowns will be borne solely by such Limited Partner and will be in addition to the amounts required by such drawdowns (and will not be part of or otherwise reduce their Capital Commitments and/or Undrawn Capital Commitments, as applicable). Each prospective investor should consult with its own counsel and advisors as to all legal, tax, financial and related matters concerning an investment in the Fund.

Currency and Exchange Rate Risks. Certain of the Underlying Funds and Underlying Portfolio Investments and the income received by the Fund with respect to all such investments, are expected to be denominated at least in part in currencies other than Dollars. However, the books of the Fund will be maintained, and capital contributions to and distributions from the Fund, including in respect of Carried Interest, generally will be made in Dollars. Accordingly, changes in currency exchange rates, costs of conversion and exchange control regulations may adversely affect the dollar value of investments, interest and dividends received by the Fund, gains and losses realized on the sale of investments and the amount of distributions, if any, to be made by the Fund. For example, any significant depreciation in the exchange rate of the Canadian Dollar, or any other currency in which the Fund makes direct or indirect investments, against the Dollar, could adversely affect the value of distributions or proceeds on investments denominated in Canadian Dollars, or such other currencies. In addition, certain countries in which the Fund is permitted to invest have implemented or may implement strict controls on foreign exchange which may result in artificially pegged exchange rates that may distort the results of and returns on investments in such countries. Moreover, the Fund will incur costs and may experience substantial delays when, or be prohibited from, converting one currency into another. While the Portfolio Manager or the manager of an Underlying Fund is authorized, but is not required to, enter into hedging transactions designed to reduce such currency risks, there can be no assurance that any such transactions would happen and/or achieve their intended results. Further, such hedging transactions could result in diminished returns (or increased losses on capital) to the extent overall returns are less than the Fund's or the Underlying Fund's costs or losses associated with such hedging transactions. See also "No Assurance of Investment Return" above and "Hedging Policies" below. The Fund may also experience gains attributable solely, or in large part, to favorable movements in exchange rates as of any date of valuation or realization of an investment, even despite a relatively adverse performance of the relevant investment.

Changes to Benchmark Rates. To the extent any of the Fund's investments (whether made, acquired or otherwise) or credit facilities (including subscription lines or working capital lines) is subject to a variable interest rate based on or referencing benchmark or reference rates, including the Secured Overnight Financing Rate ("SOFR"), the Euro Interbank Offered Rate ("EURIBOR"), the Sterling Overnight Index Average ("SONIA"), the Canadian Dollar Offered Rate ("CDOR") or other rates (including in each case, any credit spread adjustments or other similar adjustments thereto, collectively, "Benchmark Rates"), the Fund will be subject to certain material risks, including the risk that a Benchmark Rate is terminated, fluctuates more or more unpredictably than a prior Benchmark Rate, ceases to be published or otherwise ceases to be broadly used by or a standard for the market. Transitions to new Benchmark Rates have the potential to: increase volatility or illiquidity in markets; cause delays in or reductions to financing options for the Fund the Underlying Funds and the Underlying Portfolio Investments and Direct Portfolio Companies; increase the cost of borrowing; reduce the value of certain instruments or the effectiveness of certain hedges; cause uncertainty under applicable legal documentation; or otherwise impose costs and administrative burdens relating to factors that include document amendments and changes in systems.

Forward-Looking Statements; Opinions and Beliefs. Statements contained in this Memorandum (including those relating to current and future economic or market conditions and trends, and the expertise or experience of the Sponsor or the investment team in respect thereof and analyses of past events and conclusions drawn therefrom) are based on current expectations, estimates, projections, opinions and/or beliefs of the AIFM. Such statements are not facts and involve known and unknown risks, uncertainties and other factors, and reliance should not be placed thereon. Moreover, certain information contained in this Memorandum (including, without limitation, those relating to current or future market conditions and trends in respect thereof) constitutes “forward-looking” statements, which can be identified by the use of forward-looking terminology such as “may,” “can,” “will,” “would,” “seek,” “should,” “expect,” “anticipate,” “project,” “estimate,” “potential,” “intend,” “continue,” “target,” “plan,” or “believe” or the negatives thereof or other variations thereon or comparable terminology. Trends and forward-looking statements with respect to economic and market conditions and outlook described herein are based on the AIFM’s opinion and belief. Statements regarding current conditions and analysis of historical trends and events are also based on opinion and belief. No assurance can be given that the views, conditions or trends described herein will occur or continue, since this will depend upon future events and factors outside the control of Macquarie. These trends may not be indicative of future results. Due to various risks and uncertainties, including those set forth herein, actual events or results or the actual performance of the Fund and its investments may differ materially from those reflected or contemplated in such forward-looking statements. No statements contained herein constitute a guarantee, projection or prediction of the future and actual events may differ significantly.

Certain information contained herein (including certain forward-looking statements and financial, economic and market information) has been obtained from published and non-published sources and from third parties, some of which may have been published in the context of marketing certain products, such as legal, accounting, financial advisory and/or consulting services and in certain cases have not been updated through the date hereof. In addition, certain information contained herein has been obtained from third parties, including entities in which investments have been made by Macquarie, its affiliates and predecessor funds of the Fund. While such information is believed to be reliable for the purposes used herein, none of Macquarie, the Fund, the Sponsor, any predecessor Macquarie Fund, any of their respective affiliates or any of their respective directors, managers, officers, employees, members, partners, shareholders, affiliates or any other person, has taken any steps to verify, or assumes any responsibility for, the accuracy or completeness of such information or the methodologies or assumptions on which such information is based. Certain economic, financial, market and other data and statistics produced by governmental agencies or other sources set forth herein or upon which Macquarie’s and/or the Sponsor’s analysis and decisions rely may prove incomplete or inaccurate. Different publications and third-party sources may have a different understanding of what constitutes “managed infrastructure” and/or “secondaries” investments such that any statistical references or generalizations regarding “managed infrastructure” and/or “secondaries” investments may not necessarily refer to the types of investments that the Fund will seek to make.

Other Statements. The General Partner and its affiliates and employees have made, and are expected to in the future make, oral and written statements or expressions of intent or expectation to investors in the Fund or their affiliates or acknowledge statements by such persons (“Other Statements”) regarding the Fund or MAM Solutions’ activities pertaining thereto. These may include, for example, the anticipated or expected allocation and terms of co-investment opportunities, the anticipated or expected allocation of investment opportunities to the Fund generally and other topics often addressed in legally binding side letters. Although such Other Statements are not legally binding, such Other Statements may influence allocation and other decisions of the General Partner and its affiliates and employees with respect to the operations and investment activities of the Fund and may influence a prospective investor’s decision as to whether to invest in the Fund. By virtue of not being legally binding obligations, such Other Statements will not be considered side letters for purposes of any most-favored-nation’s provisions in actual side letters of the Fund. There can be no assurance that the arrangements spelled out in Other Statements will not have an adverse effect on the Fund or any Limited Partner.

Lack of Liquidity for the Interests; No Market for Limited Partnership Interests; Restrictions on Transfers. The Interests represent highly illiquid investments. The Interests have not been registered and are not expected to be registered under the 1933 Act, the securities laws of any state or the securities laws of any other jurisdiction and, therefore, cannot be resold unless they are subsequently registered under the 1933 Act and other applicable securities laws or an exemption from such registration is available. Registration of the Interests under the 1933 Act or other securities laws may never be effected. An investment in the Fund is a long-term commitment. There is no public market for the Interests and one is not expected to develop. Accordingly, it may be difficult to obtain reliable information about the value of the Interests. Each Limited Partner will be required to represent that it is a qualified investor under applicable securities laws and that it is acquiring its Interests for investment purposes and not with a view to resale or distribution and that it will only sell and transfer its Interest to a qualified investor under applicable securities laws or in a manner permitted by the Partnership Agreement and consistent with such laws. A Limited Partner will not be permitted to assign, sell, exchange, mortgage, pledge or transfer any of their interest, rights, or obligations with respect to their Interests without the prior written consent of the General Partner, which may be given or withheld in the General Partner's sole and absolute discretion. Except in extremely limited circumstances, voluntary withdrawals from the Fund will not be permitted. Limited Partners must be prepared to bear the risks of owning Interests and contributing capital for an extended period of time. Further, any stock or common equity interest offered in a listing or other liquidity event may be subject to restrictions on transfer, and in this regard a Limited Partner may be restricted from transferring any interests acquired in connection with such a listing or liquidity event to a "benefit plan investor" within the meaning of Section 3(42) of ERISA or a person who has discretionary authority or control with respect to the Fund's assets or who provides investment advice for a fee (direct or indirect) with respect to such assets, or any affiliate of such person.

Illiquid Investments of the Underlying Funds. Generally, investments of the Underlying Funds will be subject to legal or other restrictions on transfer (including approval requirements from such Underlying Fund's general partner in its sole discretion) or will be investments for which no liquid market exists. Such restrictions may result in the Fund being limited or otherwise prohibited in its ability to sell all or some of its investment in the Underlying Funds at the times, or in the amounts and on the terms and/or conditions preferred by the Fund. These limitations, in turn, may limit the ability of the Limited Partners to liquidate their investments in the Fund. Further, there can be no assurance that any Underlying Funds will be able to dispose of their investments in a timely manner or on favorable terms. In addition, investments (direct or indirect) in private equity are highly illiquid and subject to macro-economic issues, industry cycles, downturns in demand, market disruptions and the lack of available capital from potential lenders or investors (whether to finance or refinance an Underlying Fund's investments or for potential purchasers of such investments). As a consequence, an Underlying Fund may not be able to sell its investments when it desires to do so or to realize what it perceives to be the fair value of the investment in the event of a sale.

Restrictions on Transfer and Withdrawal. Participation in the Fund will generally be an illiquid investment. The Interests are not freely transferable and no market for such interests currently exists and none is expected to develop. Although the Partnership Agreement provides for a transfer process through which Interests may be assigned or otherwise transferred under limited circumstances, there can be no assurance that there will be any (or a sufficient number of) willing buyers to enable the Limited Partners to dispose of their interests in such a process, or that the price offered for a Limited Partner's interests will be acceptable to it. In addition, Limited Partners generally will not be permitted to withdraw from the Fund prior to its termination, although the Partnership Agreement may specify certain circumstances under which a Limited Partner may be entitled, or required, to withdraw from the Fund. A withdrawn Limited Partner may not be entitled to immediate payment for its Interest. Any withdrawal of a Limited Partner may reduce the amount of Fund capital available for investment or other activities. As the Fund has no obligation to purchase or redeem the Limited Partner interests at any time before the end of the term of the Fund except as otherwise provided for in the Partnership Agreement, Limited Partners may not be able to liquidate their investments prior to the end of the Fund's term and should therefore be prepared to bear the economic risk of an investment for an indefinite period.

Secondary Transfers. In certain cases, the General Partner will have opportunity (but, subject to any applicable restrictions or procedures in the Partnership Agreement or any side letters, no obligation) to identify one or more secondary transferees of interests in the Fund. In such cases, the General Partner is not expected to receive compensation for identifying such transferees and will use its discretion to select such transferees based on suitability and other factors, and unless required by the Partnership Agreement or any side letter, will determine in its sole discretion whether the opportunity to receive a transfer of interests should be offered to one or more existing Limited Partners.

Available Information. Private funds and their privately-held portfolio investments are not subject to the same types of disclosure requirements compared with public companies. For example, private companies are not subject to the Exchange Act and other regulations that govern public companies, and, therefore, provide little information to the public. Private funds and their privately-held portfolio investments generally maintain less comprehensive financial records than listed companies. Therefore, the Portfolio Manager may make investment decisions, and monitor Portfolio Investments, after analyzing information which is less comprehensive than that available to an investor in a listed public company. Underlying Funds and Underlying Portfolio Investments often do not have third-party debt ratings. Limited Partners, therefore, must rely on the ability of Macquarie to obtain adequate information through due diligence to evaluate the creditworthiness and potential returns from investing in Underlying Funds. Additionally, Underlying Funds and Underlying Portfolio Investments and their financial information will not generally be subject to the Sarbanes-Oxley Act and other rules that govern public companies. If Macquarie is unable to uncover all material information about Underlying Funds and Underlying Portfolio Investments, it may not make a fully informed investment decision, and the Limited Partners may lose money on the Fund's investments.

Limited Access to Information. Limited Partners' rights to information regarding the Fund will be limited. In particular, it is anticipated that the General Partner or Portfolio Manager will obtain certain types of material information from Underlying Funds and Direct Portfolio Companies that will not be disclosed to Limited Partners because such disclosure is prohibited for contractual, legal or similar obligations which may be outside of the General Partner's or Portfolio Manager's control or for other reasons deemed reasonable by the General Partner or Portfolio Manager. Decisions by the General Partner, the AIFM or the Portfolio Manager to withhold information may have adverse consequences for Limited Partners in a variety of circumstances. For example, a Limited Partner that seeks to transfer its Interests may have difficulty in determining an appropriate price for such Interests. Decisions to withhold information also may make it difficult for a Limited Partner to monitor the General Partner, Manager and their performance. Additionally, it is expected that Limited Partners who designate representatives to participate on the LPAC may, by virtue of such participation, have more information about the Fund and its Portfolio Investments in certain circumstances than other Limited Partners generally and may be able to disseminate information in advance of communication to other Limited Partners generally. The General Partner or the Portfolio Manager may provide information, or make representations and warranties, to certain Limited Partners, which are not provided to all Limited Partners.

Furthermore, in response to questions and requests and in connection with due diligence meetings, side letter compliance and other communications, the Fund and the General Partner are permitted to provide additional information to certain Limited Partners and prospective Limited Partners that is not distributed to other Limited Partners and prospective Limited Partners. Such information may affect a prospective Limited Partner's decision to invest in the Fund or take actions or make decisions with regards to the Fund as a Limited Partner or otherwise.

Limited Availability of Information. Due to confidentiality considerations, certain potential and/or actual Underlying Funds may not permit the Fund to fully disclose information regarding such Underlying Fund's investment strategies, risks, prior performance or other information. In addition, certain potential and/or actual Underlying Funds may provide limited or no information regarding their respective investment strategies or investments. Additionally, information received from the general partners or the investment managers of the Underlying Funds may not always be accurate or timely. This lack of access to, or the untimeliness or inaccuracy of, information provided by the general partners or investment managers may make it more difficult for the Portfolio Manager to select, allocate among and evaluate the Underlying Funds.

Confidentiality Constraints. In the course of sourcing investments and of its investment process, Macquarie or the Fund will be required to enter into confidentiality agreements with third party firms or Underlying Funds that will prohibit the Fund and the Limited Partners from publicly disclosing sensitive information relating to the third party firm, their investments and these Underlying Funds. These arrangements could either restrict the information that the Fund is permitted to share with the Limited Partners or could possibly result in liabilities for the Fund where a Limited Partner that is required or compelled to publicly release information regarding its investments, publicly discloses such information in response to an information request or otherwise. Macquarie or the Fund may choose, but are not required, to decline such investment opportunities in order to avoid the risk of exposing the Fund to these categories of liability. As a result, the Fund's investment flexibility may be constrained, which may adversely impact the aggregate returns realized by the Fund.

Public Disclosure Obligations. The Fund may be required to disclose confidential information relating to the Fund's investors, its investments and its financial results to third parties that may request such information pursuant to federal, state or local law or regulation (either U.S. or non-U.S.) applicable to the Fund or any of its Limited Partners, including those Limited Partners that are public agencies or governmental bodies. There has been a recent increase in the number of requests under such laws for contracts (including partnership agreements, subscription agreements and side letters) that investors in private funds have in place with such funds. The Fund may incur expenses in connection with responding to any such disclosure requests, even if the Fund ultimately succeeds in asserting confidentiality for any requested documentation. Any such disclosure may affect the ability of the Fund to dispose of a Portfolio Investment, may affect a Portfolio Investment's sale price or may otherwise adversely affect the Fund. The General Partner also reserves the right, in certain circumstances, in an effort to protect any such potential disclosure, to withhold all or any part of the information otherwise to be provided to such a Limited Partner, as more fully described in the Partnership Agreement. Such disclosure obligations may adversely affect certain Limited Partners, particularly Limited Partners who are not otherwise subject to public disclosure of information relating to the private holdings of funds in which they invest.

FOIA and Similar Laws. To the extent that the General Partner determines in good faith that, as a result of FOIA, any U.S. or non-U.S. governmental public records access law, any state or other jurisdiction's laws similar in intent or effect to FOIA, or any other similar statutory or regulatory requirement, a Limited Partner or any of its affiliates may be required to disclose information relating to the Fund, its affiliates or any entity in which an investment is made (other than certain fund-level, aggregate historical performance information as described in the Partnership Agreement), the General Partner is permitted, to prevent any such potential disclosure, to withhold all or any part of the information otherwise to be provided to such Limited Partner or, if disclosed to a Limited Partner, require or request such Limited Partner not to further disclose due to trade secret protections under FOIA.

Certain ERISA Considerations. The General Partner intends to avoid having the assets of the Partnership be deemed to constitute "plan assets" of any plan subject to Title I of ERISA or Section 4975 of the Code and intends to limit investment in the Partnership by "benefit plan investors" (within the meaning of Section 3(42) of ERISA) to less than 25% of the total value of each class of equity interest in the Partnership. Under the Partnership Agreement, the General Partner will have the power to take certain actions to avoid having the assets of the Partnership characterized as "plan assets" including, without limitation, the right to cause any Limited Partner that is a “benefit plan investor” to withdraw from the Partnership. If the assets of the Partnership were deemed to constitute “plan assets” under ERISA, this would result, among other things, in (i) the application of the prudence and other fiduciary responsibility standards of ERISA to investments made by the Partnership and (ii) the possibility that certain transactions in which the Partnership might seek to engage could constitute non-exempt “prohibited transactions” under ERISA and Section 4975 of the Code. If a prohibited transaction occurs for which no exemption is available, the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager and/or any other fiduciary that has engaged in the prohibited transaction could be required to (i) restore to the ERISA Plan (as defined below) any profit realized on the transaction and (ii) reimburse the ERISA Plan for any losses suffered by the ERISA Plan as a result of the investment. In addition, each disqualified person (within the meaning of ERISA and Section 4975 of the Code) involved could be subject to an excise tax equal to 15% of the amount involved in the prohibited transaction for each year the transaction continues and, unless the transaction is corrected within statutorily required periods, to an additional tax of 100%. ERISA Plan fiduciaries who decide to invest in the Partnership could, under certain circumstances, be liable for prohibited transactions or other violations as a result of their investment in the Partnership or as co-fiduciaries for actions taken by or on behalf of the Partnership or the General Partner. With respect to an IRA that invests in the Partnership, the occurrence of a prohibited transaction involving the individual who established the IRA, or his or her beneficiaries, would cause the IRA to lose its tax-exempt status.

Risk Arising from Potential Control Group Liability. Under ERISA, upon the termination of a tax-qualified single employer defined benefit pension plan, the sponsoring employer and all members of its “controlled group” will be jointly and severally liable for 100% of the plan’s unfunded benefit liabilities whether or not the controlled group members have ever maintained or participated in the plan. In addition, the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation (the “PBGC”) may assert a lien with respect to such liability against any member of the controlled group on up to 30% of the collective net worth of all members of the controlled group. Similarly, in the event a participating employer partially or completely withdraws from a multiemployer (union) defined benefit pension plan, any withdrawal liability incurred under ERISA will represent a joint and several liability of the withdrawing employer and each member of its controlled group. A “controlled group” includes all “trades or businesses” under 80% or greater common ownership. This common ownership test is broadly applied to include both “parent-subsidiary groups” and “brother-sister groups” applying complex exclusion and constructive ownership rules. However, regardless of the percentage ownership that the Fund holds in one or more Underlying Funds and/or Direct Portfolio Companies, the Fund itself cannot be considered part of an ERISA controlled group unless the Fund is considered to be a “trade or business.”

While there are a number of cases that have held that managing investments is not a “trade or business” for tax purposes, the PBGC Appeals Board ruled that a private fund was a “trade or business” for ERISA controlled group liability purposes, and at least one Federal Circuit Court has similarly concluded that a private fund could be a trade or business for these purposes based upon a number of factors, including the fund’s level of involvement in the management of its portfolio investments and the nature of any management/advisory fee arrangements.

If the Fund were determined to be a trade or business for purposes of ERISA, it is possible, depending upon the structure of the investment by the Fund and/or its affiliates and other co-investors in a Direct Portfolio Company and their respective ownership interests in the Direct Portfolio Company, that any tax-qualified single employer defined benefit pension plan liabilities and/or multiemployer plan withdrawal liabilities incurred by the Direct Portfolio Company could result in liability being incurred by the Fund, with a resulting need for additional capital contributions, the appropriation of Fund assets to satisfy such pension liabilities and/or the imposition of a lien by the PBGC on certain Fund assets. Moreover, regardless of whether or not the Fund were determined to be a trade or business for purposes of ERISA, a court might hold that one of the Fund’s Direct Portfolio Companies could become jointly and severally liable for another Direct Portfolio Company's unfunded pension liabilities pursuant to the ERISA "controlled group" rules, depending upon the relevant investment structures and ownership interests as noted above.

Misconduct of Personnel and of Third-Party Service Providers. There have been a number of highly publicized cases involving fraud or other misconduct by personnel in the financial services industry in recent years, and there is a risk that employee misconduct could occur with respect to the Fund. Misconduct by personnel or by third-party service providers could cause significant losses to the Fund. Employee misconduct may include binding the Fund to transactions that exceed authorized limits or present unacceptable risks and other unauthorized activities or concealing unsuccessful investments (which, in either case, may result in unknown and unmanaged risks or losses). In addition, employees and third-party service providers may improperly use or disclose confidential information, which could result in litigation or serious financial harm, including limiting the Fund's business prospects or future activities. Furthermore, because of Macquarie Group's diverse businesses and the regulatory regimes under which they operate and the Portfolio Manager expects to conduct the business of the Fund, misdeeds by a Macquarie Group entity may result in foreclosing the Fund's ability to conduct its activities in the manner otherwise intended (e.g., a "bad act" within the meaning of Rule 506 under Regulation D promulgated under the 1933 Act by another Macquarie entity could foreclose the Fund's ability to engage in a private placement under Regulation D). It is not always possible to deter misconduct by personnel or service providers, and the precautions the General Partner takes to detect and prevent this activity may not be effective in all cases.

Cyber Security Breaches and Identity Theft. Macquarie's business is dependent on its and third parties' communications and information systems. Cyber security incidents and cyber-attacks have been occurring globally at a more frequent and severe level and will likely continue to increase in frequency in the future. The information technology systems of Macquarie, the Fund, Underlying Funds and other related parties, such as third party service providers, may be subject to damage or interruption from computer viruses and other malicious code, network failures, information technology and telecommunication failures, data corruption, software errors, infiltration by unauthorized persons and security breaches, human usage errors, power outages and catastrophic events such as fires, global pandemics and natural disasters as well as termination of an agreement with third party service providers. Although Macquarie has implemented, and Underlying Funds will likely implement, various measures to manage risks relating to these types of events these may not be sufficient to prevent occurrence of these risks and if these systems are compromised, become inoperable for extended periods of time, cease to function properly or fail to adequately secure private information, Macquarie, the Fund and/or an Underlying Fund may suffer costs and disruption or a reduction in the efficient operations (such as financial, accounting, data processing, portfolio monitoring, backup or other operating systems and facilities) and Macquarie, the Fund and/or an Underlying Fund may have to make a significant investment to fix or replace them. In addition, Macquarie, the Fund and/or an Underlying Fund may have to upgrade their existing information technology systems or choose to incorporate new technology systems from time to time in order for such systems to support the needs of their business. Costs and potential problems and interruptions associated with the implementation of new or upgraded systems and technology or with maintenance or adequate support of existing systems could also disrupt or reduce the efficiency of Macquarie, the Fund and/or an Underlying Fund's operation. Macquarie, the Fund and/or an Underlying Fund's vendors and service providers, may experience cyber security incidents and cyber-attacks on their information technology systems, potentially with increasing frequency and sophistication, and which may involve a broader range of devices and modes of attack, all of which will increase the difficulty of detecting and preventing or limiting the effects of the same. Macquarie does not control the cyber security plans and systems put in place by such third party vendors and service providers, and such third party vendors and service providers may have limited or no indemnification obligations to Macquarie, the Fund and/or an Underlying Fund, each of whom could be negatively impacted as a result of any cyber security incidents and cyber-attacks on such third party vendors and service providers. Further, third parties with which Macquarie, the Fund and/or an Underlying Fund do business may also be sources of technological risk. Macquarie may outsource certain functions and these relationships allow for the storage and processing of Macquarie's information, as well as client, counterparty, employee, and borrower information. While Macquarie, the Fund and/or an Underlying Fund may have implemented various security controls that seek to both meet their security compliance obligations and defend against constantly evolving security threats, cyberbreaches such as those involving covertly introduced malware, impersonation of authorized users, and industrial or other espionage may not be identified by these systems, potentially resulting in further harm and preventing any cyberbreach from being addressed appropriately. The failure of Macquarie, the Fund and/or an Underlying Fund, or their respective vendors and service providers, security systems and/or of disaster recovery plans for any reason could cause significant interruptions in Macquarie's, the Fund's and/or an Underlying Fund's operations and result in a failure to maintain the security, availability, confidentiality, integrity or privacy of sensitive data, including personal information relating to investors (and the beneficial owners of investors), material nonpublic information in possession of and the intellectual property and trade secrets and other sensitive information of Macquarie, the Fund, and/or an Underlying Fund. To the extent that the Macquarie, the Fund and/or an Underlying Fund are subject to a cyber-attack, or unauthorized access is gained to its or their systems, substantial losses are expected to occur in the form of stolen, lost or corrupted: (i) data or payment information, (ii) financial information, (iii) software, contact lists or other databases, (iv) proprietary information or trade secrets or (v) other items. The result of these incidents are expected to include disrupted operations, including the ability to make distributions, misstated or unreliable financial data, failure to maintain the security, confidentiality or privacy of sensitive data, including personal information relating to investors (and the beneficial owners of investors), liability for stolen assets or information, regulatory penalties, increased cyber security protection and insurance costs, litigation and damage to business relationships, reputational damage, and increased costs associated with mitigation of damages and remediation. As Macquarie, the Fund and/or an Underlying Fund's reliance on technology increases, including internet or cloud-based programs, so will the risks posed to its or their internal and third-party information systems, including increased risks resulting from remote working. Such a failure could harm Macquarie's, the Fund's and/or an Underlying Fund's reputation, subject any such entity and their respective affiliates to legal claims, regulatory action or enforcement arising out of applicable privacy or other laws and adverse publicity and otherwise affect their business and financial performance. In addition, the SEC has made cyber security an area of regulatory focus. Among items that are expected to be reviewed by the SEC inspection staff are advisers' policies and procedures designed to address information technology security, identity theft and business resiliency. The growing threat posed by cyber security breaches, coupled with expanding regulatory oversight, may increase expenses associated with the Fund's activities and reduce overall returns for the Limited Partners.

Privacy and Data Protection Law Compliance Risk. The adoption, interpretation and application of consumer protection, data protection and/or privacy laws and regulations ("Data Protection Laws") in the United States, Europe and other jurisdictions could significantly impact current and planned privacy and information security related practices, the collection, use, sharing, retention and safeguarding of personal data and current and planned business activities of the Portfolio Manager, the General Partner, the Fund and/or its Portfolio Investments, and increase compliance costs and require the dedication of additional time and resources to compliance for such entities. A failure to comply with such Data Protection Laws by any such entity or their vendors or service providers could result in fines, sanctions or other penalties or litigation, which could materially and adversely affect the results of operations and overall business, as well as have a negative impact on reputation and Fund performance. As Data Protection Laws are implemented, interpreted and applied, compliance costs for the Portfolio Manager, the General Partners, the Fund and/or its Portfolio Investments, are likely to increase, particularly in the context of ensuring that adequate data protection and data transfer mechanisms are in place. For example, California has passed the California Consumer Privacy Act of 2018 ("CCPA"), as amended, and the California Privacy Rights Act of 2020 ("CPRA"); the EU has enacted the General Data Protection Regulation (EU 2016/679) (the "EU GDPR"); the UK has implemented the Data Protection Act 2018 and the GDPR as it forms part of the laws of England and Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland by virtue of section 3 of the European Union (Withdrawal) Act 2018 ("UK GDPR"); and Luxembourg has enacted the Luxembourg law of 1 August 2018 on the organization of the National Data Protection Commission and the general data protection framework, as amended, each of which broadly impacts businesses that handle various types of personal data, including private fund managers and their funds and investments.

Such Data Protection Laws impose stringent legal and operational obligations on businesses, as well as the potential for fines, sanctions, or other penalties, which could materially and adversely affect the result of operations and overall business, as well as have an impact on the reputation, of Macquarie, the Fund, the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager and the Portfolio Investments. The CCPA and CPRA will upon its effective date, provide for civil penalties for violations enforceable by the California Attorney General as well as a private right of action and statutory damages for certain data breaches that result in the loss of personal information. This private right of action is expected to increase the likelihood of, and risks associated with, data breach litigation. Statutory damages range from $100 to $750 per consumer per incident, or actual damages, whichever is greater. The Attorney General also may impose civil penalties ranging from $2,500 to $7,500 per violation. Under the CPRA, which became effective on January 1, 2023, California established a new state agency focused on the enforcement of its privacy laws, likely leading to greater levels of enforcement and greater costs related to compliance with the CCPA and CPRA. Separately, failure to comply with the EU GDPR and the UK GDPR, depending on the nature and severity of the breach, could attract regulatory penalties of up to the greater of: (i) €20 million in respect of the EU GDPR; and (ii) £17.5 million in respect of each of the UK GDPR, or, in each case, 4% of an entire group's total annual worldwide turnover, as well as the possibility of other enforcement actions (such as suspension of processing activities and audits), liabilities from third-party claims and reputational damage. Notably, the EU GDPR and UK GDPR has extra-territorial reach and governs the processing of personal data by businesses with an establishment in the EU, as well as those which offer goods or services to EU/UK data subjects or which monitor EU/UK data subjects' behavior within the EU/UK.

Other jurisdictions, including other U.S. states, have passed, adopted, proposed or are considering enacting similar Data Protection Laws, which impose similarly significant costs, potential liabilities and operational and legal obligations. Such Data Protection Laws vary from jurisdiction to jurisdiction, thus increasing costs, operational and legal burdens, and the potential for significant liability on regulated entities.

Prospective Limited Partners should note that it is expected that they will provide Personal Data (as defined in the EU GDPR and which may include special categories of Personal Data pursuant to Article 9 thereof), as part of their subscription to the Partnership and in their interactions with the Partnership, its affiliates, and/or delegates. The Partnership may obtain Personal Data concerning Limited Partners and prospective Limited Partners from internal and external sources.

The Partnership has prepared a data privacy notice for Limited Partners (the "DPN"), which is attached as an exhibit to the Subscription Documents. Before subscribing to the Partnership, all prospective Limited Partners are encouraged to carefully review the DPN, which includes detailed information concerning the control and processing of their personal data.

Artificial Intelligence and Machine Learning. Recent technological advances in artificial intelligence and machine learning technologies (collectively, "AI Technologies") pose risks to Macquarie, the Fund and its Portfolio Investments. AI Technology presents risks and challenges, including privacy concerns, that could subject Macquarie and its respective affiliates to legal liability, and brand or reputational harm. AI Technologies are highly reliant on the accuracy, adequacy, completeness and objectivity of their underlying data, and any inaccuracies, deficiencies or biases in this data could lead to errors affecting Macquarie's decision-making and investment processes. AI Technologies have the potential to result in significant and disruptive changes in companies, sectors or industries, including those in which the Fund invests, and any such changes could render Macquarie's underwriting models obsolete or create new and unpredictable operational, legal and/or regulatory risks. To the extent competitors of Macquarie, the Fund and its Portfolio Investments make more efficient or extensive use of AI Technologies, there is a possibility that such competitors will gain a competitive advantage. Macquarie intends to periodically evaluate and/or adjust internal policies governing its use of AI Technology. Notwithstanding any such policies, Macquarie personnel, portfolio managers, senior executives, industry specialists, and other associated persons or any affiliates could, unbeknownst to Macquarie, utilize AI Technology in contravention of such policies. Macquarie, the Fund and its Portfolio Investments could be further exposed to the risks of AI Technologies if third-party service providers or any counterparties, whether or not known to Macquarie, use AI Technologies in their business activities. Macquarie will not be able to control the use of AI Technologies in third-party products or services, including those provided by Macquarie's and its affiliates' service providers. Additionally, Macquarie and its personnel reserve the right to use AI Technologies in connection with Macquarie's business activities, including to support Macquarie's due diligence and investment activities. Use of AI Technology by any of the persons or entities described in the previous paragraph could include the input of confidential information, including material non-public information, either by third parties in contravention of non-disclosure agreements, or by Macquarie personnel, advisors and affiliates in contravention of Macquarie policies, contractual or other obligations or restrictions to which any of the foregoing or any of their affiliates or representatives are subject to, or otherwise in violation of applicable laws or regulations relating to treatment of confidential and/or personally identifiable information (including material non-public information). By inputting data into AI Technology, such confidential information may become part of a dataset that is accessible by other third-party AI Technology applications and users. Further, some AI Technology scenarios may present ethical issues. For example, if Macquarie uses, enables or offers AI Technology that is controversial because of its impact (or perceived impact) on human rights, privacy, employment or other social issues, it may incur legal liability or experience brand or reputational harm.

Intellectual property ownership issues, licensing and privacy rights surrounding AI Technology are evolving, which may expose Macquarie, the Fund or its Portfolio Investments to claims of intellectual property infringement or misappropriation or privacy rights violations, or result in inquiries by government bodies or agencies. For example, the U.S. Federal Trade Commission initiated multiple AI-related inquiries in 2023 and 2024 and sent requests to technology companies seeking additional information about their AI usage and policies. In addition, many jurisdictions have passed laws and implemented regulations, or are considering the same, related to the use and development of AI Technology, which could adversely affect Macquarie, the Fund, its Portfolio Investments and/or their respective affiliates and their businesses. For example, the EU Artificial Intelligence Act, which came into force on August 1, 2024 and will become (in the most part) fully effective starting August 2, 2026, has extra-territorial application and imposes significant potential maximum penalties for non-compliance: in the worst cases, up to the greater of: (i) €35 million; and (ii) 7% of an entire group's total annual worldwide turnover.

Electronic Delivery of Certain Documents. Pursuant to the subscription agreement entered into by each Limited Partner, as well as the Partnership Agreement, such Limited Partner will (a) consent to the electronic delivery of investor communications, investor reports, proposed amendments or waivers, privacy notices and any other documents or information to be provided to such Limited Partner that relate to the Fund or a Portfolio Investment therein (collectively, the "Investment Documents") and (b) agree that such electronic delivery will be in place of delivery of such documents in paper form. The term of this consent will be indefinite, but none of the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager or their affiliates will be obligated to deliver communications, reports or other documents electronically. This consent to electronic delivery will extend to delivery of Investment Documents now and in the future, whether such delivery is (now or in the future) required by law, or is not required but is made by the Fund to provide a Limited Partner with additional information. Investment Documents may be delivered (i) via one or more designated websites (access information for which is provided to Limited Partners), (ii) by e-mail to the address provided by such Limited Partner in its subscription agreement or (iii) via other electronic means. There are certain costs (e.g., internet access) and possible risks (e.g., slow downloading time and system outages) associated with electronic delivery. Moreover, neither the General Partner nor the Portfolio Manager can provide any assurance that these communication methods are secure, and neither they nor their affiliates will be responsible for any computer viruses, problems or malfunctions resulting from any computer viruses or related problems that may be associated with the use of an internet based system. See Section 11—“Risk Factors and Potential Conflicts of Interest—Cyber Security Breaches and Identity Theft” above.

Handling of Mail. Mail addressed to the Fund and received at its registered office will be forwarded unopened to the forwarding address supplied by the Fund. None of the Fund, the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager or any of its or their directors, officers, advisors or service providers will bear any responsibility for any delay howsoever caused in mail reaching the forwarding address. In particular, the directors of the General Partner and/or the Portfolio Manager may only receive, open or deal directly with mail which is addressed to them personally (as opposed to mail which is addressed just to the Fund).

Broken Deal Expenses. The Portfolio Manager and/or Macquarie will expend significant resources and may incur significant costs in relation to potential investments for the Fund or any vehicles formed for co-investors, including any reverse break-up, termination and other similar fees and any deposits or down payments of cash or other property (including costs and expenses incurred by Macquarie or other Macquarie investment funds, vehicles or accounts prior to the Initial Closing of the Fund) that are forfeited in connection with such potential investments (including any co-investor’s share of any such expenses to the extent not paid by such co-investor, including negotiating with co-investors, and any co-investment vehicles that fail to close) (as discussed in more detail in Section 11—“Risk Factors and Potential Conflicts of Interest—Co-Investments” below). Such Broken Deal Expenses (including any related value-added taxes) will be considered Partnership Expenses to be borne by the Fund and will generally not be recoverable, particularly if the Fund’s bid for any such investment is unsuccessful or if such investment is not completed in full for any other reason.

Non-Compete Arrangements. Situations may arise in which the Fund, the Portfolio Manager and/or other members of MAM Solutions or other divisions of Macquarie may be required to enter into certain non-compete or similar exclusivity arrangements with third parties in order to avoid the acquisition of investments which could compete with Underlying Funds and/or Underlying Portfolio Investments held by the Fund or by either the Fund or other funds, vehicles and accounts managed (currently or in the future) by the Portfolio Manager and its affiliates. While appropriate protections will typically be sought to limit the scope of such non-compete or exclusivity arrangements (for example, by limiting any non-compete or similar exclusivity arrangements by duration, to specifically identified companies and/or according to specific criteria such as business sector or industry, geographical scope of business operations and/or size of business operations etc.), such arrangements may materially restrict the investment flexibility of the Fund and/or its affiliates and make it more difficult for the Fund and/or its affiliates to consummate attractive investment opportunities and effectively achieve their investment objectives.

No Minimum Size for Initial Closing. The Sponsor has not established a minimum size for the Fund as of its Initial Closing, and as a result, there can be no assurance that the aggregate Capital Commitments of the Combined Limited Partners will equal or exceed the Fund’s targeted offering size. The Fund may not be able to raise sufficient additional Capital Commitments to effectively execute on its investment strategy. Consequently, the Fund may make fewer investments and thus be less diversified, and a Combined Limited Partner’s exposure to one or more Portfolio Investments may be significantly more concentrated than anticipated. In addition, subject to the diversification restrictions described herein, to the extent the Fund makes fewer investments, the likelihood of its profitability being affected by the performance of any one of its investments will increase, and an investment in the Interests will be subject to greater risk. Furthermore, to the extent the Fund is not able to raise its targeted amount of Capital Commitments, its expenses may increase in proportion to its assets, which may result in diminished returns with respect to the Interests. Furthermore, if the aggregate Capital Commitments of the Combined Limited Partners are less than the Fund's targeted offering size, then the Capital Commitments of each Combined Limited Partner may represent a larger percentage of aggregate Capital Commitments than anticipated. The performance of the Fund would therefore have a more significant impact on each Combined Limited Partner and could materially adversely affect each such Combined Limited Partner's anticipated returns.

Dilution from Subsequent Closings. Limited Partners subscribing for Interests at Subsequent Closings will participate in existing investments of the Partnership, diluting the interest of existing Limited Partners therein. Although such Limited Partners will contribute their pro rata share of previously made capital draws (plus an additional amount thereon), unless the General Partner in its discretion determines that a pro rata Capital Contribution from Limited Partners at a Subsequent Closing would not appropriately reflect a material change in the value of the investments then held by the Partnership and it adjusts the Capital Contribution required, there can be no assurance that this payment will reflect the fair value of the Partnership's existing investments at the time such additional Limited Partners subscribe for Interests. Similar risks exist with respect to other investors participating in subsequent closings of the Underlying Funds after the Partnership's initial capital commitment to such Underlying Fund.

Minority Investor Risk. In accordance with the Partnership Agreement, investors may be required to vote in order to take decisions in relation to the Fund, including, but not limited to, amending the Partnership Agreement. As such votes are governed by majority rules and may be taken on a Fund-wide basis, it may happen that a decision taken by a majority of investors will not be in the interest of some of the investors (or all of the investors in a particular vehicle constituting the Fund) who have not voted in favor of such decision.

Indemnification; Exculpation. The Partnership Agreement will include exculpation, indemnification and other provisions that will limit the circumstances under which the General Partner, the Founder Partner, the AIFM, the Portfolio Manager and others can be held liable to the Partnership. The Partnership will be required to indemnify and exculpate Macquarie, the General Partner, the Founder Partner, the AIFM, the Portfolio Manager, their affiliates and each of their respective members, officers, directors, managers, employees, stockholders, shareholders, partners, agents, consultants, independent contractors, senior advisors and certain other persons who serve at the request of the General Partner on behalf of the Partnership, including the partnership representative (or any corresponding "designated individual"), for liabilities incurred in connection with the affairs of the Partnership. See Section 10—"Detailed Term Sheet—Exculpation and Indemnification." Such liabilities may be material. The indemnification obligation of the Partnership would be payable from the assets of the Partnership, including the Undrawn Capital Commitments of the Limited Partners. If the assets of the Partnership are insufficient, the General Partner or Portfolio Manager is permitted to recall distributions previously made to the Limited Partners, subject to certain limitations set forth in the Partnership Agreement. Moreover, the General Partner and the Portfolio Manager will, notwithstanding any actual or perceived conflict of interest, be the beneficiary of any decision by it to provide indemnification (including advancement of expenses). This may be the case even with respect to settlement of actions where any indemnitee was alleged to have engaged in conduct that disqualifies any such person from indemnification or exculpation so long as such General Partner or Portfolio Manager (and/or their legal counsel) have determined that such disqualifying conduct did not occur. The Partnership Agreement contains provisions that, subject to applicable law, (i) reduce or eliminate the duties to which the General Partner, the AIFM or the Portfolio Manager would otherwise be subject; (ii) waive duties or consent to the conduct of the General Partner that might not otherwise be permitted pursuant to such duties and (iii) limit the remedies of Limited Partners with respect to breaches of such duties. As long as the General Partner acts in accordance with the provisions of the Partnership Agreement (with the understanding that references to "good faith" refer to subjective good faith), the General Partner will be deemed to be in compliance with its duties. This includes, for example, matters regarding conflicts which are approved by the LPAC, wherein the approval of the LPAC will be binding on all Limited Partners. Certain service providers to the Partnership, the General Partner, the AIFM, the Portfolio

Manager, their respective affiliates and other persons, including, without limitation, the members of the LPAC, may be entitled to exculpation and indemnification (in certain cases, on terms more favorable to them than those available to indemnified parties generally). As a result, the Partnership and Limited Partners may have a more limited right of action in certain cases than they would in the absence of such limitations. It should be noted that the General Partner intends to cause the Partnership to purchase insurance for the Partnership, the General Partner, the AIFM, the Portfolio Manager, their affiliates and their employees, agents and representatives. In addition, because the General Partner may cause the Partnership to advance the costs and expenses of an indemnitee pending the outcome of the particular matter (including determination as to whether or not the person was entitled to indemnification or engaged in conduct that negated such person's entitlement to indemnification), there may be periods where the Partnership is advancing expenses to an individual or entity with whom the Partnership is not aligned or is otherwise an adverse party in a dispute.

Availability and Adequacy of Insurance. It is expected that Underlying Portfolio Investments will typically maintain insurance to protect against certain risks, where available on reasonable commercial terms, such as business interruption insurance that is intended to offset loss of revenues during an operational interruption. Such insurance would typically be subject to customary deductibles and coverage exclusions and/or limits and may not be sufficient to recoup all of an Underlying Portfolio Investment's losses. There can be no assurance that insurance would cover liabilities resulting from claims relating to the design, construction, maintenance or operation of the Underlying Portfolio Investments in which an Underlying Fund may invest, lost revenues or increased expenses resulting from such damage. Moreover, any loss from such events may not be recoverable under relevant insurance policies or may involve costly dispute resolution proceedings with insurers to obtain recoveries. Business interruption insurance is not always available, or economical, to protect the business from these risks. There can be no assurance that all Underlying Portfolio Investments will be insured against all risks inherent to their business. Certain losses of a catastrophic nature, such as wars, natural disasters, terrorist attacks, or other similar events, may be either uninsurable or, insurable at such high rates that to maintain such coverage would cause an adverse impact on the related Underlying Portfolio Investments. In general, losses related to terrorism are becoming harder and more expensive to insure against. Most insurers are excluding terrorism coverage from their all-risk policies. In some cases, the insurers are offering significantly limited coverage against terrorist acts for additional premiums which can greatly increase the total costs of casualty insurance for an Underlying Portfolio Investment. In general, the managers of the Underlying Funds will have discretion as to the type and level of coverage to obtain, or whether to obtain insurance at all, and the Portfolio Manager and the Fund will not be able to influence such decisions.

Recycling; Reinvestment. Undrawn Capital Commitments may be increased by the amount of any distribution made to the Partners (i) in respect of the Underlying Funds, to the extent that such amounts are subject to recall pursuant to the documentation of the Underlying Funds, (ii) to the extent such distribution represents a return of capital in connection with a syndication of a portion of a Portfolio Investment, (iii) to the extent such amounts represent investment proceeds, subject to the limitations set forth in the Partnership Agreement, and (iv) as otherwise described in the Partnership Agreement. In addition, any amount drawn down to pay the Management Fee, Partnership Expenses or Organizational Expenses will reduce Undrawn Capital Commitments but, to the extent Limited Partners receive or are deemed to receive subsequent distributions, such amounts will (without duplication) be added back to Undrawn Capital Commitments and will be subject to recall. Accordingly, during the term of the Fund, Limited Partners may be required to make Capital Contributions in excess of their Capital Commitment and to the extent such recalled amounts are reinvested in investments, a Limited Partner will remain subject to investment and other risks associated with such investments. As a general matter, recycling and reinvestment have the effect of amplifying the Fund's IRR, either positive or negative depending on the performance of the Fund's investments.

Underlying Funds May Make Commitments in Excess of Their Capital Commitments. Underlying Funds may make commitments to Underlying Portfolio Investments in excess of the total capital committed to such funds. As a result, in certain circumstances, an Underlying Fund may need to retain distributions from its investments or recall distributions or liquidate certain of its investments prematurely at potentially significant discounts to market value if such Underlying Fund does not generate sufficient cash flow from its investments to meet these commitments. Likewise, the Fund may also be exposed to these risks if the Fund does not generate sufficient cash flow to satisfy its recall obligations to its Underlying Funds.

Liability for Return of Distributions. Any Partner's interest in the Fund is susceptible to risk of loss as a result of any liability of the Fund irrespective of whether such liability is attributable to a Portfolio Investment to which such Partner contributed any capital. If the Fund is otherwise unable to meet its obligations, the Limited Partners may, under applicable law, be obligated to return, with interest, cash distributions previously received by them to the extent such distributions are deemed to constitute a return of their capital contributions wrongfully paid to them. In addition, a Limited Partner may be liable under applicable U.S. Federal, U.S. state and other jurisdictions' bankruptcy or insolvency laws to return a distribution made during the Fund's insolvency. Limited Partners may be required to return amounts distributed to them to fund indemnity obligations or as may be required by applicable law (without regard to their Capital Commitments), subject to certain limitations as described in the Partnership Agreement. The General Partner has unlimited liability for all debts and obligations of the Fund but the General Partner has, and is expected to continue to have, only a nominal net worth.

In-Kind Distributions. Investors should be aware that dispositions may also take the form of in-kind distributions to the Limited Partners. When securities or other assets are distributed to the Limited Partners, such Limited Partners generally would be unable to protect their interests as effectively as the Fund. In certain circumstances provided for in the Partnership Agreement, securities or other assets of the Fund may be distributed that are not marketable or are otherwise illiquid. The risk of loss and delay in liquidating securities or other assets distributed in-kind will be borne by the recipient Limited Partners, with the result that such Limited Partners may receive less cash than was reflected in the fair value of such securities or other assets as determined by the General Partner pursuant to the Partnership Agreement.

Risks Associated with Exclusion. Certain Limited Partners may be excluded by the General Partner from certain investments to be made by the Partnership as provided by the Partnership Agreement or in a Limited Partner's side letter; provided, however, that no Limited Partner will have the right to be excused from a follow-on investment unless a Limited Partner was excused from any and all obligations to make capital contributions in respect of the original investment to which such follow-on investment relates. For example, the General Partner is permitted to exclude a particular Limited Partner or particular category of Limited Partners from participating in all or any part of a Portfolio Investment, including an existing Portfolio Investment, to the extent the General Partner determines in good faith that a significant delay, extraordinary expense or material adverse effect on the Fund, the General Partner, any Parallel Fund, such Limited Partner or category of Limited Partners, any alternative investment vehicle, any Portfolio Investment or any of their respective affiliates or any potential future investment of the Fund, any Parallel Fund or any Alternative Vehicle, or the Fund's, any Parallel Fund's or any Alternative Vehicle's ability to successfully acquire, hold, continue to hold, operate, sell, transfer, exchange, pledge or dispose of all or any portion of any Portfolio Investment or potential future investment of the Fund, is reasonably likely to result from such Limited Partner's participation, including continued participation (as applicable), in such Portfolio Investment (including as a result of the application of a national security (including the Committee on Foreign Investments in the United States) or other regulatory review framework or a change in law, regulatory requirement or the imposition of new or revised conditions by any governmental authority). See Section 10—“Detailed Term Sheet—Exclusion and Cancellation.” In the event any Limited Partner is excluded from any investment to be made by the Fund in accordance with the provisions in the Partnership Agreement or a Limited Partner's side letter, (i) such Limited Partner will not participate in such investment (or any expenses specifically attributable thereto) and the allocable share of the other non-excluded Limited Partners (and their related capital contribution obligations) in respect of such investment and expenses specifically attributable thereto will be increased; and (ii) since investment opportunities are generally allocated among the Partners on the basis of Undrawn Capital Commitments, such excluded Limited Partner's will generally receive an increased share of future investments by the Fund (and consequently the non-excluded Limited Partner's share of future investments by the Fund will be reduced). To the extent a significant portion of the Fund's Limited Partners are excluded from certain of the Fund's Portfolio Investments in accordance with the Partnership Agreement, such exclusion may have a significant impact on the overall participation of the other Limited Partners in the Fund's investments. There can be no assurance that the foregoing will not have an adverse impact on the Interests of certain Limited Partners.

Withdrawals. Limited Partners may be compulsorily withdrawn from the Fund if: (i) in the reasonable judgment of the General Partner based upon advice of counsel to the Fund, all or any portion of the assets of the Fund would be reasonably likely to be characterized as assets of an employee benefit plan or other plan account, fund, program or arrangement, for purposes of ERISA, Section 4975 of the Code or any Similar Law (whether or not such Limited Partner is subject to ERISA, the Code or any Similar Law) without such withdrawal, or the Fund or any Partner is reasonably likely to be subject to any requirement to register under the 1940 Act; (ii) in the reasonable judgment of the General Partner, a significant delay, extraordinary expense or material adverse effect on the Fund, an Underlying Fund or any of their respective affiliates, any Person in which the Fund holds a Portfolio Investment or any prospective investment is reasonably likely to result without such withdrawal; (iii) in the reasonable judgment of the General Partner such Limited Partner has breached certain obligations or representations as specified in the Partnership Agreement; (iv) the Fund would otherwise be required to withdraw from an Underlying Fund due to such Limited Partner's indirect investment in such Underlying Fund; or (v) the General Partner determines, in its good faith discretion based on advice of counsel to the Fund, that the continued participation of a Limited Partner in the Fund would be reasonably likely to result in a violation of FATCA as a result of such Limited Partner's non-compliance with its obligation to provide cooperation and assistance for the Fund to satisfy any applicable tax reporting or compliance requirements or to qualify for an exception from or reduced rate of tax or other tax benefit or be relieved of liability for any tax (as described in more detail in the Partnership Agreement), and upon any such compulsory withdrawal, such Limited Partner may receive a subordinated note bearing an annual fixed rate of interest in lieu of cash.

Failure to Make Capital Contributions. If a Limited Partner fails to pay installments of its Capital Commitment to the Fund when due, and the Capital Contributions made by non-defaulting Limited Partners and borrowings by the Fund are inadequate to cover the defaulted Capital Contribution, the Fund may be unable to pay its obligations when due. As a result, the Fund may lose opportunities and/or be subjected to significant penalties that could materially and adversely affect the returns to the Limited Partners (including non-defaulting Limited Partners). Underlying Funds typically require that capital contributions be made over an extended period of time. Failure by a Limited Partner to meet a capital call of the Fund could result in the Fund defaulting on all or a portion of a capital call for an Underlying Fund or reduce the number of Portfolio Investments which the Fund may make. If a Limited Partner defaults, it may be subject to various consequences, including, without limitation, a mandatory transfer and/or forfeiture of its Interests, preclusion from further investment in the Fund and participation in further investments by the Fund, reductions in its capital account balance and a forced sale of its Interest at a discount. A default by a Limited Partner may also limit the Fund's ability to incur borrowings and avail itself of what would otherwise have been available credit. The General Partner is permitted to, subject to certain limitations, require an additional funding of Capital Contributions from the non-defaulting Limited Partners to fund the shortfall caused by the defaulting Limited Partner(s). A default by a Limited Partner may also limit the Fund's ability to incur borrowings and avail itself of what would otherwise have been available credit. See Section 10—"Detailed Term Sheet—Defaults." Termination of the Fund's Interest in an Underlying Fund. The Fund may fail to satisfy one or more capital calls made by an Underlying Fund if a Limited Partner in the Fund fails to make required fundings under the Partnership Agreement when due and such shortfall cannot be made up by the other Limited Partners, a new Limited Partner, the Fund's borrowings, the General Partner, or otherwise. In the event that the Fund fails to make any such capital call, among other things, the Fund's interests in that Underlying Fund may be terminated or reduced, the Fund may be assessed penalties or other fees, the Fund may lose its voting and other rights that it has with respect to such Underlying Fund and the Fund may be precluded from making further investments in such Underlying Fund. In addition, an Underlying Fund may terminate the Fund's interest in an Underlying Fund if the general partner or investment manager of that Underlying Fund determines that the continued participation of the Fund in the Underlying Fund would have an adverse effect on such Underlying Fund or its assets or is prohibited by applicable law or under circumstances similar to the foregoing. The occurrence of any of these events could adversely affect the Fund's performance and operations.

Failure by Other Investors to Meet Capital Calls of Underlying Funds. The Fund is expected to be one of many investors in the respective Underlying Funds, many of which typically will have capital contribution obligations over an extended period of time. Failure by one or more other investors to meet a capital call of an Underlying Fund could have adverse consequences for the Fund. The Underlying Fund may be permitted to require the Fund and other investors in the Underlying Fund to contribute additional capital to satisfy the shortfall. If the Underlying Fund is unable to raise sufficient capital to consummate the proposed investment, the Underlying Fund's manager may not be able to, among other things, diversify its portfolio, which could adversely affect the performance of such Underlying Fund and could also result in such Underlying Fund's investments being concentrated in relatively few industries and regions. Furthermore, such Underlying Fund may not have sufficient capital to contribute capital to existing Underlying Portfolio Investments necessary to ensure their ongoing financial stability. If multiple investors fail to meet capital calls from a particular Underlying Fund, such Underlying Fund could default on its obligations, which could result in the termination of such Underlying Fund, causing a lower return, or potentially a loss, on the Fund's investments.

Commitments May Not Be Fully Drawn Down. Limited Partners generally will be required to fund their Capital Commitments for investments based on their Undrawn Capital Commitments. There can be no assurance as to when capital will be invested or that all of the Capital Commitments will be called by the Fund.

Termination of an Underlying Fund. The governing documents of the Underlying Funds are expected to include provisions that would enable the general partner, the investment manager, or a majority in interest (or higher percentage) of their investors, under certain circumstances, to terminate such Underlying Funds prior to the end of their respective stated terms. Termination of an Underlying Fund may result in a portfolio of immature and illiquid securities being distributed to the Fund.

Prevention of Money Laundering. As part of the AIFM's responsibility for the prevention of money laundering under applicable laws, the Partnership is authorized to require a detailed verification of a prospective investor's identity and the source of such prospective investor's Capital Commitment. In the event of delay or failure by a prospective investor to produce any such information required for verification purposes, the AIFM is permitted to refuse to admit such prospective investor to the Partnership. As a result, the AIFM and/or the General Partner are permitted to request (outside of the subscription process), and the Limited Partner will be obligated to provide to the AIFM and/or the General partner (as applicable) upon such request, additional information as may be required for the AIFM and the Partnership to satisfy their respective obligations under these and other laws that may be adopted in the future. Also, the AIFM could be obligated to file reports with regulatory authorities in various jurisdictions with regard to, among other things, the identity of the Limited Partners and suspicious activities involving the Partnership's interests. In the event it is determined that any Limited Partner, or any direct or indirect owner of any Limited Partner, is a person identified in any of these laws as a prohibited person, or is otherwise engaged in activities of the type prohibited under these laws, the General Partner may be obligated, among other actions to be taken, to withhold distributions of any funds otherwise owing to such Limited Partner or to cause such Limited Partner's interests to be cancelled or otherwise redeemed (without the payment of any consideration in respect of those interests).

No Independent Advice. The terms of the agreements and arrangements under which the Partnership is established and will be operated have been or will be established by the General Partner and are not the result of arm's-length negotiations or representations of the Limited Partners by separate counsel. Prospective investors should therefore seek their own legal, tax and financial advice before making an investment in the Partnership. Kirkland (as defined below) and Elvinger Hoss (as defined below) may be removed by the General Partner at any time without the consent of, or notice to, the Limited Partners. Representation by Kirkland and Elvinger Hoss of the Partnership, the General Partner and their affiliates is limited to specific matters as to which they have been consulted by such persons. There may exist other matters which could have a bearing on the Partnership, the General Partner and/or their affiliates as to which Kirkland and Elvinger Hoss have not been consulted. In addition, Kirkland and Elvinger Hoss do not undertake to monitor the compliance of the Partnership, the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager and their affiliates with the investment program, investment strategies, investment restrictions and other guidelines and terms set forth in this Memorandum and the Partnership Agreement, nor do Kirkland and Elvinger Hoss monitor compliance with applicable laws. Kirkland and Elvinger Hoss have not investigated or verified the accuracy and completeness of any information set forth in this Memorandum.

Registration under the U.S. Commodity Exchange Act. Registration with the U.S. Commodity Futures Trading Commission (the "CFTC") as a "commodity pool operator" or any change in the Partnership's operations necessary to maintain the General Partner's ability to rely upon an exemption from registration (including as described in Section 12—"Certain Legal, Tax and Regulatory Considerations—Certain Securities Law Considerations—U.S. Commodity Exchange Act") could adversely affect the Partnership's ability to implement its investment program, conduct its operations and/or achieve its objectives and subject the Partnership to certain additional costs, expenses and administrative burdens. Furthermore, any determination by the General Partner to cease or to limit holding or investing in interests which may be treated as "commodity interests" in order to comply with the regulations of the CFTC may have a material adverse effect on the Partnership's ability to implement its investment objectives and to hedge risks associated with its operations.

Risks Associated with the Removal of the General Partner of an Underlying Fund. It is expected that the Partnership will invest in Underlying Funds managed by Macquarie ("Macquarie-Managed Underlying Funds"), and the general partners of such Underlying Funds are expected to be affiliates of Macquarie. Pursuant to the governing documents of the Underlying Funds, under certain circumstances, the limited partners of an Underlying Fund may vote to remove its general partner and consequently, appoint a new general partner (who also generally would be expected to replace such Underlying Fund's manager), which replacement general partner may or may not be affiliated with Macquarie. The Partnership may not be permitted to participate in votes to remove a Macquarie-Managed Underlying Fund's general partner under the terms of such Macquarie-Managed Underlying Fund's governing agreements. The Limited Partners of the Partnership will not have any ability to participate or effect the outcome of any such vote. In such case, the Partnership would continue to be invested in and/or alongside such Underlying Fund and may, in furtherance of its investment objectives, continue to seek co-investment opportunities with such Underlying Funds. However, because the Partnership will not have any right to co-investment opportunities that may be made available by an Underlying Fund (which opportunities may be made available in each such Underlying Fund's sole discretion), the Partnership may find it more difficult to access to co-investment opportunities alongside an Underlying Fund if such Underlying Fund's general partner is no longer affiliated with Macquarie. Furthermore, the Partnership's success would continue to rely on the management of each Underlying Fund to manage the Partnership's investments in and/or alongside such funds.

Tax Liabilities and Related Considerations. If the Partnership makes investments that have or that develop operations in a jurisdiction outside the U.S., the Partnership or the Limited Partners may be subject to income or other tax in that jurisdiction. Additionally, withholding taxes or branch taxes may be imposed on earnings of the Partnership from its investments (whether in such non-U.S. jurisdictions or in the U.S.). In addition, local tax incurred in U.S. or non-U.S. jurisdictions by the Partnership or vehicles through which it invests may not entitle Limited Partners to either (i) a credit against tax that may be owed in the U.S. or their respective local tax jurisdictions or (ii) a deduction against income taxable in the U.S. or such local jurisdictions. Withholding tax may also be imposed on payments (for example interest payments) from such jurisdictions to 'non-cooperative' or 'blacklist' jurisdictions. In addition, local tax incurred in such jurisdictions may not be creditable to, or deductible by, the investors in their respective jurisdictions. Accordingly, an investment in the Partnership may result in certain taxes borne (directly or indirectly) by investors that materially and adversely impact an investor's returns from the Partnership. In particular, non-residents of Canada that dispose of "taxable Canadian property" for purposes of the Income Tax Act (Canada) may be taxable in Canada on any gain realized. Non-residents of Canada who dispose of "taxable Canadian property" may also be required to apply for a certificate of compliance pursuant to section 116 of the Income Tax Act (Canada) and/or file Canadian income tax returns reporting the disposition. Property generally will be "taxable Canadian property" at the time of its disposition if, at any time in the sixty (60) months prior to the disposition more than 50% of the fair market value of the property derived directly or indirectly from one or any combination of: real or immovable property situated in Canada, "Canadian resource properties," "timber resource properties" (each as defined in the Income Tax Act (Canada)), and options in respect of, or interests in or for civil law rights in, such properties. Infrastructure investments in Canada may constitute "taxable Canadian property," depending on how the investment is structured. Accordingly, Limited Partners could be taxable in Canada to the extent the Partnership (or any partnership of which the Partnership is itself a partner) disposes of an investment that constitutes "taxable Canadian property." While it is not expected that interests in the Partnership itself will constitute "taxable Canadian property," no assurances can be provided in that regard; if interests in the Partnership did constitute "taxable Canadian property," Limited Partners could be subject to taxation and compliance obligations referred to above in connection with any disposition or deemed disposition (for purposes of the Income Tax Act (Canada)) of an interest in the Partnership. Even if an investment of the Partnership, or an interest in the Partnership, constitutes "taxable Canadian property," Limited Partners may be exempt from tax under the Income Tax Act (Canada) on the disposition of such investments or interest by virtue of an applicable income tax treaty or convention. Limited Partners that are non-residents of Canada should consult with their own advisors in respect of the potential Canadian income tax implications of investing in the Partnership.

There may be changes in the tax laws or interpretations of tax laws (possibly with retrospective effect) in any jurisdiction in which the Partnership or any Underlying Fund, Direct Portfolio Company or Underlying Portfolio Investment operates, is managed, is advised or invests (including at a time after a particular investment has been made in such jurisdiction), or in which any of the Limited Partners is resident, that are adverse to the Partnership or any Underlying Fund, Direct Portfolio Company or Underlying Portfolio Investment or the Limited Partners. In particular, both the level and basis of taxation may change. Changes to taxation treaties or other intergovernmental agreements or interpretations of taxation treaties or other intergovernmental agreements between one or more such jurisdictions and countries through which the Partnership or any Underlying Fund, Direct Portfolio Company or Underlying Portfolio Investment holds investments or in which a Limited Partner is resident may adversely affect the Partnership's ability to efficiently realize income or gains, including by reason of additional withholding taxes imposed by such jurisdictions. Consequently, it is possible that the Partnership or any Underlying Fund, Direct Portfolio Company or Underlying Portfolio Investment or the Limited Partners may face unfavorable tax treatment in such jurisdictions that may materially adversely affect the value and/or returns of the Partnership's Portfolio Investments or the feasibility of making investments in certain countries. This could significantly affect returns to investors.

Reporting Regimes and FATCA Withholding Tax with Respect to Parallel Funds, Feeder Funds and Alternative Investment Vehicles that Involve Non-U.S. Entities. Under U.S. federal income tax law, the Foreign Account Tax Compliance Act (commonly referred to as “FATCA”), requires all entities in a broadly defined class of foreign financial institutions (“FFIs”) to comply with a reporting regime or be subject to a 30% withholding tax on certain payments. In addition, the OECD has published a global Common Reporting Standard (“CRS”) for the exchange of information pursuant to which many countries have now signed multilateral agreements. In the EU, a mandatory exchange of information regime has been implemented under Council Directive 2011/16/EU on administrative co-operation in the field of taxation (as amended) (the “Directive on Administrative Co-Operation” or the “DAC”). The DAC, which effectively implements (amongst other items) the OECD’s CRS, requires EU Member States to obtain detailed account information from financial institutions and exchange that information automatically with other jurisdictions annually. One or more of these information exchange regimes are likely to apply to the Partnership, Parallel Funds (including the Main Fund), Feeder Funds, and Alternative Investment Vehicles and may require the General Partner to collect and share with applicable taxing authorities information concerning the investors in such entity (including identifying information and amounts of certain income allocable or distributable to them), as discussed further below. Non-U.S. entities that are not FFIs are required to either certify they have no substantial U.S. beneficial ownership or to report certain information with respect to their substantial U.S. beneficial ownership or be subject to a 30% withholding tax on certain payments.

The reporting requirements imposed under FATCA require an FFI to enter into agreements with the Internal Revenue Service (the “IRS”) to obtain and disclose information about certain of its U.S. investors or account holders to the IRS, or, if subject to an Intergovernmental Agreement (“IGA”), register with the IRS. The U.S. and Luxembourg entered into an IGA on March 28, 2014, which was ratified and implemented into Luxembourg law on July 24, 2015. IGAs are generally intended to result in the automatic exchange of tax information through reporting by an FFI to the government or tax authorities of the country in which such FFI is domiciled, followed by the automatic exchange of information with the IRS. The General Partner intends to cause any non-U.S. Fund entity (including the Partnership) to comply, to the extent reasonably practicable, with the reporting requirements to avoid the imposition of the withholding tax (where applicable), but if it does not do so (because, for example, investors fail to provide the General Partner with the required information), certain payments made to such non-U.S. Fund entity or by such non-U.S. Fund entity may be subject to a U.S. withholding tax, which would reduce the cash available to investors. Further, these reporting requirements may apply to underlying entities in which the Partnership invests, and the General Partner may not have control over whether such entities comply with the reporting regime. Such withheld amounts that are allocable to a Limited Partner may, in accordance with the Partnership Agreement, be deemed to have been distributed to such Limited Partner. Prospective investors should consult their own tax advisors regarding all aspects of FATCA as it affects their particular circumstances.

In addition, the CRS requires extensive information reporting. Jurisdictions in which the Partnership may invest, or in which alternative investment vehicles may be organized, are likely to have adopted CRS. Pursuant to the Luxembourg law of December 18, 2015, as amended, implementing CRS in Luxembourg (“CRS Law”) and any associated regulation and guidance, the Partnership may be required to identify, and report information in respect of, specified persons who are resident in jurisdictions which sign and implement CRS. The CRS rules are particularly complex, and although the Partnership will attempt to satisfy any obligations imposed on it to avoid the imposition of a penalty or fine under the CRS Law, no assurance can be given that the Partnership will be able to satisfy these obligations. If the Partnership becomes subject to a penalty or fine under the CRS Law, the value of interests held by all investors may be materially affected. Further, the CRS reporting requirements may apply to underlying entities in which the Partnership invests, and the Partnership may not have control over whether such entities comply with the reporting regime.

It is also possible that the Partnership or an Alternative Vehicle may be required to provide information about the Limited Partners to an entity in which the Partnership invests or a governmental authority in a jurisdiction in or through which a portfolio company is held in order for Limited Partners to be eligible for the benefits of an applicable income tax treaty or preferential tax regime in a particular jurisdiction. As a result, Limited Partners may be required to provide additional information to the Partnership for purposes of complying with these rules or being eligible for certain benefits and this information will be disclosed to various governmental authorities as required under applicable law.

To the extent a Limited Partner (or the intermediaries through which such Limited Partner receives payments) fails to comply with such reporting regimes (including FATCA or CRS, as discussed above) or to provide information necessary to allow such Limited Partner to benefit from an applicable income tax treaty or preferential tax regime and thereby exposes the Partnership to a significant tax or compliance burden, the General Partner may exclude such investor from the Partnership or take any other action as provided in the Partnership Agreement. See Section 12 —“Certain Legal, Tax and Regulatory Considerations—Certain Luxembourg Tax Considerations” for more information.

U.S. Federal Income Tax Liability Resulting from a U.S. Federal Income Tax Audit of the Partnership. U.S. federal income taxes arising from a U.S. federal income tax audit of the Partnership will be paid by the Partnership absent an election to the contrary. In addition, a “partnership representative” will have the power to act on behalf of the Partnership and its investors in all U.S. federal income tax audits and other proceedings involving the Partnership’s U.S. federal income, loss, deductions, and credits. See Section 12—“Certain Legal, Tax and Regulatory Considerations—Certain U.S. Federal Income Tax Considerations—Other Matters; U.S. Federal Income Tax Audits and Resulting Liabilities,” for more information.

Tax Audit Considerations. The Partnership is permitted to take positions with respect to certain tax issues that depend on legal and other interpretive conclusions. Should any such positions be successfully challenged by a taxing authority, a Limited Partner might be found to have a different tax liability for that year than that reported on its income tax return. In addition, a tax audit of the Partnership may result in an audit of the returns of some or all of the Limited Partners, which examination could result in adjustments to the tax consequences initially reported by the Partnership and affect items not related to a Limited Partner’s investment in the Partnership. If such adjustments result in an increase in taxable income for any year, the Partnership or one or more of the Limited Partners may also be liable for interest and penalties with respect to the amount of underpayment. The legal and accounting costs incurred in connection with any audit of the Partnership’s tax return will be borne by the Partnership. The cost of any audit of a Limited Partner’s tax return will be borne solely by the Limited Partner. The taxation of partnerships and partners is complex and prospective Limited Partners are strongly urged to consult with their own tax advisors and review the additional disclosure included in Section 12—“Certain Legal, Tax and Regulatory Considerations—Certain U.S. Federal Income Tax Considerations”.

Management Fee Offset for Other Fees. Other Fees (if any are received) will be paid directly to the Portfolio Manager or an affiliate, which will then, subject to the terms of the Partnership Agreement and the Management Agreement, reduce future Management Fees otherwise payable by the Partnership. The IRS might take the position that a U.S. tax-exempt Limited Partner or non-U.S. Limited Partner should be treated as having received a portion of such Other Fees, and such share of Other Fees could be treated as UBTI, CAI or ECI respectively. Furthermore, in connection with the liquidation of the Partnership, the Portfolio Manager or an affiliate may pay directly to each Electing Fee Partner its pro rata share of the unapplied balance of such Other Fees, and such amounts may be treated as UBTI, CAI or ECI.

Phantom Income. Each Limited Partner that is subject to U.S. tax will be required, and each Limited Partner subject to tax in other jurisdictions may be required, to take into account its allocated share of all items of income, gain, loss, deduction and credit of the Partnership, whether or not distributed. The Partnership may generate taxable income in excess of cash distributions to Limited Partners and no assurance can be given that the Partnership will be able to make cash distributions to cover related tax liabilities as they arise. Accordingly, each Limited Partner should ensure that it has sufficient cash flow from other sources to pay all tax liabilities resulting from such Limited Partner's ownership of Interests in the Partnership. Additionally, the Partnership may have no ability to control important aspects associated with its investments (including investments in or through Underlying Funds), including the character of any gains or income allocated with respect to such investments, the ability to make certain U.S. tax elections (such as an election under Section 754 of the Code, as further discussed below under See Section 12—“Certain Legal, Tax and Regulatory Considerations—Certain U.S. Federal Income Tax Considerations”), and the amount or timing of cash distributed by such Underlying Funds. These restrictions may also cause the Limited Partners of the Partnership to be allocated Fund income in excess (potentially significantly) of cash distributions for a particular year.

Tax and Structuring Objectives May Not Be Realized. The General Partner, in its sole discretion, will generally seek to structure the Partnership and its investments, and any Alternative Investment Vehicles, Feeder Funds, Parallel Funds, and holding vehicles through which the Partnership invests, in a tax efficient manner and in a manner intended to achieve certain legal, tax, accounting, regulatory or other objectives, as the General Partner determines appropriate based on the characteristics of the Partnership and its applicable investments. Regardless of such objectives, it is possible that the applicable legal, tax, accounting, regulatory or other objectives of such structuring will not be achieved or respected, in which case, the proposed benefits associated with such structuring may not be realized.

Limited Ability to Negotiate Structures. The Partnership's performance with respect to investments in Underlying Funds will be affected by the structure of the acquisition and the terms of such Underlying Funds, including legal, tax, regulatory and/or other considerations, over which the Partnership may have limited control. The General Partner may believe an investment opportunity is a generally appropriate investment for the Partnership even though the opportunity may have legal, tax or regulatory terms that are not optimal or efficient for the Partnership or one or more Limited Partners. In addition, the Partnership may be limited in its investment opportunities to the extent certain Underlying Funds do not permit the Partnership to structure its investment therein in a tax efficient manner.

Changes in Tax Law. All statements contained herein concerning the U.S. federal income or other tax consequences of an investment in the Partnership are based on existing laws and interpretations thereof. Changes in U.S. federal income or other tax laws, including in Luxembourg, could materially affect the tax consequences of a Limited Partner's investment in the Partnership, and the tax treatment of the Partnership's Portfolio Investments. U.S. and other tax legislation, including Luxembourg legislation, may be enacted in the future, and administrative tax guidance may also be issued in the future, in each case possibly with retroactive effect. While certain changes in tax laws may be beneficial, others could negatively affect the after-tax returns of the Partnership and the Limited Partners. Accordingly, no assurance can be given that the currently anticipated tax treatment of an investment in the Partnership, or of Portfolio Investments made by the Partnership, will not be modified by legislative, judicial or administrative changes, possibly with retroactive effect, to the detriment of the Limited Partners. Developments in the tax laws of the U.S., Luxembourg or other jurisdictions (including in connection with the OECD's Action Plan on Base Erosion and Profit Shifting (“BEPS”) or applicable income tax treaties) could have a material effect on the tax consequences to the Limited Partners or the Partnership and Limited Partners in the Partnership may be required to provide certain additional information to the Partnership (which may be provided to the IRS or other taxing authorities) or may become subject to other adverse consequences as a result of such developments. In addition, on July 12, 2016, the EU adopted the Anti-Tax Avoidance Directive 2016/1164 (commonly referred to as “ATAD I”), which directly implements some of the BEPS Project actions points within EU law. On May 29, 2017, the Council of the EU formally adopted the Council Directive amending Directive (EU) 2016/1164 as regards hybrid mismatches with third countries (commonly referred to as “ATAD II”). The ATAD I and have been implemented into Luxembourg law respectively on December 21, 2018 (the “ATAD I Law”) and on December 2019 (the “ATAD II Law”) and all of them are applicable gradually on January 1, 2019, January 1, 2020 and January 1, 2022.

ATAD I and ATAD II also contain hybrid mismatch rules which EU Member States have been required to implement. Such rules seek, broadly speaking, to counteract tax mismatches where the same item of expenditure is deductible in more than one jurisdiction, or where expenditure is deductible but the corresponding income is not fully taxable. The rules are extensive and could apply to a wide range of scenarios, including where, for example, an entity is viewed as transparent in its jurisdiction of establishment but treated as opaque by investors in another jurisdiction; or where funding instruments are treated as debt in one jurisdiction and as equity in another. The hybrid mismatch rules are complex and their application to the Partnership and any entities in which the Partnership is permitted to invest is currently uncertain and will depend on various factors.

In this scenario, a tax adjustment may be required either at the level of the Fund itself (the “Reverse Hybrid Rule”) or at the level of the investments (the “Hybrid Entities Rule”), depending on the case, in order to neutralize a hybrid mismatch in tax outcome.

It is worth noting that a Luxembourg fund which can be considered a “collective investment vehicle” (“CIV”) within the meaning of ATAD II Law should be excluded from the Reverse Hybrid Rule. However, even in the case the CIV exemption applies, it cannot be ruled out that a tax adjustment would then be required at the level of the investments under the Hybrid Entities Rules.

The Partnership and any entities through which it invests could suffer unexpected taxation as a result of such hybrid mismatch rules, which may decrease the amounts available for distribution to Limited Partners.

To the extent that the General Partner determines in its sole discretion that additional taxes imposed on the Partnership, intermediate entities or portfolio entities are properly attributable to a limited partner or group of limited partners (including as a result of a hybrid mismatch because of the tax classification of the entities or instruments in a limited partner’s local jurisdiction or a limited partner’s failure to provide information which may avoid the application of the rules described in the foregoing), such taxes may be deemed distributed to or otherwise allocated to such limited partner or group of limited partners or trigger additional actions by the General Partner pursuant to the terms of the Partnership Agreement.

At the international level, the “Multilateral Convention to Implement Tax Treaty Related Measures to prevent Base Erosion and Profit Shifting” (“MLI”) was published by the OECD on November 24, 2016. The aim of the MLI is to update international tax rules and lessen the opportunity for tax avoidance by transposing the results from the BEPS project into more than 2,000 double tax treaties worldwide. A number of jurisdictions (including Luxembourg) have signed the MLI. The ratification process of Luxembourg has been achieved through the law of March 7, 2019 and the deposit of the ratification instrument with the OECD on April 9, 2019. As a consequence, the MLI entered into force on August 1, 2019. Its application per double tax treaty concluded with Luxembourg will depend on the ratification by the other contracting states and on the type of tax concerned. Subsequent changes in tax treaties negotiated by Luxembourg incurred by the MLI could adversely affect the returns from the Partnership to its investors.

Further to the BEPS Project, and in particular BEPS Action 1 (‘Addressing the Tax Challenges of the Digital Economy’), the OECD published a Report on May 31, 2019 entitled ‘Programme of Work to Develop a Consensus Solution to the Tax Challenges Arising from the Digitalisation of the Economy’ (as updated on several occasions since and most recently on October 8, 2021 by the ‘Statement on a Two-Pillar Solution to Address the Tax Challenges Arising from the Digitalisation of the Economy’), which proposes fundamental changes to the international tax system. The proposals (commonly referred to as “BEPS 2.0”) are based on two ‘pillars’, involving the reallocation of taxing rights (Pillar One), and a new global minimum corporate tax rate (Pillar Two).

Under Amount A of Pillar One, multinational enterprises (“MNEs”) with an annual global turnover of at least EUR 20 billion (or equivalent) in a given period and pre-tax profitability exceeding 10% calculated using an averaging mechanism will be subject to rules allocating 25% of profits in excess of a 10% profit margin to the jurisdictions within which they carry on business (subject to threshold rules). Certain entities are excluded, including certain investment funds and real estate investment vehicles (as respectively defined) which are the ultimate parent entity of the MNE group (and certain holding vehicles of such entities). There are also specific exclusions for MNEs carrying on specific low-risk activities, including “regulated financial services” (as defined). Pillar Two imposes a minimum effective tax rate of 15% on MNEs that have consolidated revenues of at least EUR 750 million in at least two out of the last four years (i.e. broadly those MNEs which are required to undertake country by country reporting). Pillar Two introduces two related tax measures (the GloBE Rules): the income inclusion rule (“IIR”) imposes a top up tax on a parent entity where a constituent member of the MNE group has low taxed income while the undertaxed payment rule (“UTPR”) applies as a backstop if the constituent member’s income is not taxed by an IIR. Specified classes of entities which are typically exempt from tax are outside the scope of the Pillar Two GloBE Rules, including investment funds and real estate investment vehicles (as respectively defined) which are the ultimate parent entity of the MNE group (and certain holding vehicles of such entities).

Additionally, and as part of Pillar Two but separate from the GloBE Rules, a subject to tax rule STTR will permit source jurisdictions to impose limited additional taxation on certain cross-border related party payments where the recipient is subject to a nominal corporate income tax rate (subject, in some circumstances, to certain distributions) below 9%, which will be creditable against the GloBE Rules tax liability. The GloBE Rules must be implemented through domestic legislation, and on December 20, 2021, the OECD released Pillar Two model rules providing a template for this purpose. Many jurisdictions have enacted legislation, including most EU Member States pursuant to Council Directive (2022/2523) on ensuring a global minimum level of taxation for MNE groups and large-scale domestic groups in the EU adopted on December 15, 2022, (“Minimum Tax Directive”) and the UK, with the IIR and the UTPR generally taking effect for fiscal years beginning on or after December 31, 2023 and December 31, 2024 respectively. Amount A of Pillar One will be implemented through a multilateral convention and the STTR will be implemented, where applicable, either through modifications to bilateral tax treaties or alternatively through a multilateral instrument. The timeline for implementation of both Amount A of Pillar One and the STTR remains uncertain. Subject to the development and implementation of both Amount A of Pillar One and Pillar Two (including the implementation of the Minimum Tax Directive by EU Member States) and the details of any domestic legislation, double taxation treaty amendments and multilateral agreements which are necessary to implement them, effective tax rates could increase within the fund structure or on its investments, including by way of higher levels of tax being imposed than is currently the case, possible denial of deductions or increased withholding taxes and/or profits being allocated differently and/or penalties could be due. This could adversely affect Limited Partner returns. The implementation of BEPS 2.0 in relevant jurisdictions is complex and likely to remain uncertain for a number of years.

U.S. tax law disallows deductions for business interest expense (even if paid to third parties) in excess of the sum of business interest income and 30% of the adjusted taxable income of the business, which is its taxable income computed without regard to business interest income or expense, net operating losses or the pass-through income deduction or any deduction allowable for depreciation, amortization, or depletion.

Business interest includes any interest on indebtedness related to a trade or business but excludes investment interest, to which separate limitations apply. These limitations may have a significant impact on Partners in the Partnership and/or its portfolio companies.

For more information, Limited Partners should refer to Section 12—“Certain Legal, Tax and Regulatory Considerations” and are urged to consult their own tax advisors with reference to their specific tax situations prior to making an investment in the Partnership.

Financial Institution Risk; Distress Events. An investment in the Fund is subject to the risk that one of the banks, brokers, counterparties, clearing houses, exchanges, lenders or other custodians (each, a “Financial Institution”) of some or all of the Fund’s or any Underlying Fund’s assets fails to timely perform or otherwise defaults on its obligations or experiences insolvency, closure, seizure, receivership or other financial distress or difficulty (each, a “Distress Event”). Distress Events can be caused by factors including eroding market sentiment, significant withdrawals, fraud, malfeasance, poor performance, undercapitalization, market forces or accounting irregularities. If a Financial Institution experiences a Distress Event, the Portfolio Manager, the General Partner, the Fund and/or any of the Underlying Funds may be unable to access deposits, borrowing facilities or other services, either permanently or for an indeterminate period of time. Although assets held by regulated Financial Institutions in the United States frequently are insured up to stated balance amounts by organizations such as the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, in the case of banks, and the Securities Investor Protection Corporation, in the case of certain broker-dealers, amounts in excess of the relevant insurance are subject to risk of total loss, and any non-U.S. Financial Institutions that are not subject to similar regimes pose potentially increased risk of loss. While in recent years governmental intervention has often resulted in additional protections for depositors and counterparties in connection with Distress Events, there can be no assurance that any intervention will occur, be successful or avoid the risks of loss, substantial delays or negative impact on banking or brokerage conditions or markets. Any Distress Event has a potentially adverse effect on the ability of the Portfolio Manager to manage the Fund and its investments, and on the ability of the Portfolio Manager, the Fund, the Underlying Funds and/or the portfolio companies of the Fund and Underlying Funds to maintain operations, which in each case could result in significant losses and unconsummated investment acquisitions and dispositions. Such losses could include: a loss of funds; an obligation to pay fees and expenses in the event the Fund or an Underlying Fund is unable to close a transaction (whether due to the inability to draw capital on a credit line provided by a Financial Institution experiencing a Distress Event, the inability of the Fund to access capital contributions or otherwise); the inability of the Fund to acquire or dispose of investments, including at prices that the General Partner believes reflect the fair value of such investments and/or the inability of the Portfolio Manager or the Portfolio Investments to make payroll, fulfill obligations and/or maintain operations. If a Distress Event leads to a loss of access to a Financial Institution’s services, it is also possible that the Portfolio Manager will experience operational burdens and expenses, and the Fund or a Portfolio Investment will incur additional expenses and/or delays in putting in place alternative arrangements and/or that such alternative arrangements will be less favorable than those formerly in place (with respect to economic terms, service levels, access to capital or otherwise). There can be no assurance that the Portfolio Manager will be able to exercise contractual remedies under the agreements with Financial Institutions in the event of a Distress Event, or that such remedies will be successful or avoid losses, delays or other negative impacts. The Fund and its Portfolio Investments are subject to additional risks in the event a Financial Institution utilized by Limited Partners or suppliers, vendors, service providers or other counterparties of a Portfolio Investment become subject to Distress Events, which could have a material adverse effect on the Fund, the Limited Partners or such Portfolio Investments, including the risk of investor defaults.

Many Financial Institutions require, as a condition to using their services (including lending services), that the Portfolio Manager and/or the Fund maintain all or a set amount or percentage of their respective accounts or assets with the Financial Institution, which heightens the risks associated with a Distress Event with respect to such Financial Institutions. Although the Portfolio Manager seeks to do business with Financial Institutions that it believes are creditworthy and capable of fulfilling their respective obligations to the Fund, the Portfolio Manager is under no obligation to use a minimum number of Financial Institutions with respect to the Fund, or to maintain account balances at or below the relevant insured amounts.

DAC 6. On May 25, 2018, the EU Council adopted a directive (2018/822 amending Directive 2011/16/EU as regards to mandatory automatic exchange of information in the field of taxation) that imposes a reporting obligation on parties involved in transactions that may be associated with aggressive tax planning (“DAC6”). DAC6 has been implemented in Luxembourg by the law of 25 March 2020 (the “DAC6 Law”).

More specifically, the reporting obligation will apply to cross-border arrangements that, among others, meet one or more “hallmarks” provided for in the DAC6 Law that is coupled in certain cases with the main benefit test (the “Reportable Arrangements”).

In the case of a Reportable Arrangement, the information that must be reported includes, inter-alia, the name of all relevant taxpayers and intermediaries as well as an outline of the Reportable Arrangement, the value of the Reportable Arrangement and identification of any member states likely to be concerned by the Reportable Arrangement.

The reporting obligation in principle rests with the persons that design, market, organise, make available for implementation or manage the implementation of the Reportable Arrangement or provide assistance or advice in relation thereto (the so-called “intermediaries”). However, in certain cases, the taxpayer itself can be subject to the reporting obligation.

Starting from January 1, 2021, Reportable Arrangements must be reported within thirty days from the earliest of (i) the day after the Reportable Arrangement is made available for implementation, (ii) the day after the Reportable Arrangement is ready for implementation or (iii) the day when the first step in the implementation of the Reportable Arrangement has been made.

The information reported will be automatically exchanged between the tax authorities of all Member States.

In light of the broad scope of the DAC6 Law, transactions carried out by the Partnership may fall within the scope of the DAC6 Law and thus be reportable.

CERTAIN RISK FACTORS RELATED TO THE FUND’S AND THE UNDERLYING FUNDS’ INVESTMENT ACTIVITIES

Nature of Fund Investments. The success of each of the Underlying Funds (and, as a result, a large measure of the Fund’s success) is subject to those risks which are inherent in the category of investments undertaken by such Underlying Funds. These risks are generally related to (i) the ability of each of the Underlying Funds to select and manage successful investment opportunities; (ii) the quality of the management of each Underlying Portfolio Investment in which the Underlying Funds invest; (iii) the ability of the Underlying Funds to liquidate their investments; and (iv) general economic conditions. There can be no assurance that the investments made by the Underlying Funds will result in attractive rates of return to the Fund. The Fund will not be able to participate in the management and control of the Underlying Funds in which it holds investments nor of the Underlying Portfolio Investments in which they have invested. Consequently, the Fund will not be able to control the amount or timing of distributions from the Underlying Funds, which may affect Limited Partners’ returns. Further, should an Underlying Fund’s manager become incapacitated or in some way cease to participate in the management of such Underlying Fund, the performance of such Underlying Fund (and consequently the Fund’s investment therein) could be adversely affected.

The Partnership will invest (i) in Underlying Funds managed by such Underlying Funds' respective investment managers who are (except with respect to the Macquarie-Managed Underlying Funds) unrelated to the Sponsor or their respective affiliates and (ii) indirectly, in private equity and private equity-related investments selected by such investment managers. Although the Portfolio Manager will attempt to evaluate each Underlying Fund based on criteria such as the performance history of the Underlying Fund and its investment manager as well as the Underlying Fund's investment strategies, the past performance of an Underlying Fund and its investment manager does not predict future results. Moreover, the Partnership generally will not have the opportunity to evaluate the specific investments made by any Underlying Fund before they are made and, generally, will have limited or, in some circumstances, no ability to dispose of the Partnership's investment in an Underlying Fund, either in the manner or at the time preferred by the Portfolio Manager or the General Partner, if the Portfolio Manager or the General Partner is dissatisfied with such Underlying Fund's performance. Accordingly, the returns of the Partnership will be largely dependent on the performance of such investment managers and could be substantially adversely affected by any unfavorable performance.

In general, the Partnership will invest in Underlying Funds that are managed by investment managers that are unrelated to the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager or their respective affiliates. However, the Partnership also is expected to invest in Macquarie-Managed Underlying Funds. In determining whether the Partnership should make such an investment, the Portfolio Manager will have a conflict of interest. The Portfolio Manager may have an incentive to cause the Partnership to make an investment in a Macquarie-Managed Underlying Fund in order to increase the management fees and other remuneration of the Macquarie-Managed Underlying Fund's manager, which will benefit the Portfolio Manager's affiliates. While not expected, there may be circumstances where the Portfolio Manager or its affiliates will benefit from having additional access to information regarding the Macquarie-Managed Underlying Fund. While this could benefit the Partnership in assessing the merits of an investment therein, it also could restrict or limit the Partnership's ability to pursue such a transaction.

Highly Competitive Market for Investment Opportunities. The activity of identifying, structuring, completing and realizing attractive investments that fall within the Fund's investment objectives is highly competitive and involves a high degree of uncertainty and will be subject to certain market conditions. The Fund will be competing on a global basis for investments with other secondaries investors. The investment activities of the Underlying Funds are likewise highly competitive. Over the past several years, an ever-increasing number of funds that invest in infrastructure assets (including private equity, hedge and infrastructure funds) have been formed (and many such existing funds have grown in size), which compete in the general infrastructure asset class. Additional funds, entities, or vehicles with similar investment objectives have been, and may be formed in the future, by other parties. Some of these competitors are expected to have more relevant experience, greater financial and strategic resources, less expensive cost of capital and more personnel than an Underlying Fund. It is possible that competition for appropriate investment opportunities for the Fund and the Underlying Funds may increase, thus reducing the number of investment opportunities available to them, which may also require the Fund or an Underlying Fund potentially to participate in auctions more frequently and otherwise adversely affect the terms upon which investments can be made. The outcome of any such auctions cannot be guaranteed, thus potentially reducing the number of investment opportunities available to the Fund and/or Underlying Funds, as applicable, and potentially adversely affecting the terms, including price, upon which investments can be made. There can be no assurance that the Fund or an Underlying Fund will be presented with or develop suitable investment opportunities, including within any particular strategy, sector, geography, asset or transaction size or type. In addition, as more fully described herein, investment opportunities otherwise appropriate for the Fund may be shared or otherwise allocated (in whole or in part) to other Macquarie Funds (or limited partners therein) or divisions within Macquarie itself, or not offered to the Fund. There can be no assurance that the Fund will be able to locate, consummate and exit investments that satisfy the Fund's internal rate of return objectives or realize upon their values, or that the Fund will be able to invest fully its committed capital.

Secondary Market Purchases; Pooled Investments in Secondary Investments. The Fund intends to invest primarily in Underlying Funds that have completed their closings by purchasing an interest in each such Underlying Fund from unaffiliated parties in the secondary market (a “Secondary Market Interest”). Such Secondary Market Interests may present additional risks such as difficulty in valuing the existing investments of the Underlying Fund or the possibility that the acquired Secondary Market Interest may be subject to contingent liabilities resulting from activity that transpired prior to the Fund’s purchase of such Secondary Market Interest (e.g., an indemnification obligation in respect of an act or omission occurring prior to the date of the Fund’s purchase of such Secondary Market Interest). There can be no assurance that the Partnership will be successful in closing on acquisitions of secondary interests, even in situations where it has signed a binding contract to acquire the investments. Further, the purchase or sale of a Secondary Market Interest may be subject to the consent of the general partner or investment manager of such Underlying Fund or otherwise on behalf of the Underlying Fund and other qualification requirements and/or conditions may make such purchase more difficult or, ultimately, prevent it. By signing the subscription agreement and acquiring interests in the Partnership, the Limited Partners will be deemed to have consented to any such purchase of Secondary Market Interests. Additionally, in many cases, the Partnership expects to have the opportunity to acquire a portfolio of investment funds from a seller on an “all or nothing” basis. Certain of the investment funds in the portfolio may be less attractive than others, and certain of the sponsors of such investment funds may be more familiar to Macquarie than others, or may be more experienced or highly regarded than others. In such cases, it may not be possible for the Partnership to carve out from such purchases those investments which the General Partner considers (for commercial, tax, accounting, legal or other reasons) less attractive. Similarly, the Partnership may not be able to acquire certain interests in a portfolio of investment funds that may be highly attractive for certain legal, tax, regulatory or other similar considerations. In addition, the Partnership will likely have the opportunity to participate in “stapled secondaries” (e.g., a secondary market purchase of an existing limited partner interest and corresponding commitment to a new fund in formation sponsored by the same investment manager). In certain instances, the purchase of an interest in the new fund may be less attractive than the investment in or related to an existing partnership interest.

Contingent Liabilities Associated With Private Equity Fund Interests Acquired in Secondary Transactions. In connection with interests purchased by the Fund in secondary transactions, the Fund may acquire contingent liabilities of the seller of the interest. More specifically, where the seller has received distributions from the relevant investment fund and, subsequently, that investment fund recalls one or more of these distributions, the Fund (as the purchaser of the interest to which such distributions are attributable and not the seller) may be obligated to return monies equivalent to such distributions to the investment fund. While the Fund may, in turn, make a claim against the seller for any such monies so paid to the investment fund, there can be no assurances that the Fund would prevail on such claim.

Pooled Purchases. The General Partner or its affiliates may, in some cases, have the opportunity to acquire a portfolio of assets from a seller on a pooled basis (i.e., a pool of assets), whether required by the seller or deemed advisable by the General Partner in light of commercial and/or other considerations. Accordingly, there may be circumstances where there is a seller who is seeking to dispose a pool or combination of assets where the Fund and the other Macquarie Funds participate as a buyer in a single or related transactions with a particular seller where all or certain of such assets are specifically allocated (in whole or in part) to the Fund and/or such other Macquarie Funds as part of the same transaction or related transactions. The allocation of such assets generally would be based on the General Partner’s and/or its appropriate affiliates’ determination, and in any such case the asset-specific purchase price paid to a seller would be allocated among the Fund and the other Macquarie Funds.

Given that only certain of the assets in the portfolio may be suitable for the Fund, such transactions raise potential conflicts of interest, including where the investment of the Fund is necessary or otherwise being used to support the value (or may support the value) of the other Macquarie Fund’s assets in the portfolio.

These conflicts are heightened to the extent the relevant assets do not have a readily ascertainable value, and there generally can be no assurance that the price at which such transactions are entered into, or the price allocated to the assets that the Fund will acquire, represents what would ultimately be the asset's fair value. The foregoing paragraphs also hold true with respect to collective dispositions by the Fund and one or more of the other Macquarie Funds of a pool of assets.

Development Risks. Many of the Underlying Portfolio Investments will involve the development of infrastructure projects. The successful development and construction of new, or expansion of existing, infrastructure projects, and investment in infrastructure assets generally, entails a variety of risks (some of which may be unforeseeable at the time a project is commenced) and may require or result in the involvement of a broad and diverse group of stakeholders who will either directly influence or potentially be capable of influencing the nature and outcome of the project. Such factors are expected to include: political or local opposition, governmental regulation, demographic changes, economic and market conditions including economic growth, increasing fuel prices, government macroeconomic policies, toll, tariff and other fee rates, social stability, technical obsolescence, competition from untolled or other forms of transportation, receipt of regulatory approvals or permits, site or land procurement, environment related issues, labor disputes (such as work stoppages), acts of God, fire, flood, earthquakes and other natural disasters, changes in weather, outbreaks of an infectious disease, pandemic or any other serious public health concern, war, terrorism, counterparty non-performance, changes in demand for products or services and other changes in the financial position or business strategy of customers, defective design or construction, bankruptcy or financial difficulty of a major customer or supplier, unanticipated changes in the availability or price of inputs necessary for the operation of infrastructure assets, project feasibility assessment, less than optimal coordination with public utilities in the relocation of their facilities, dealings with and reliance on third- party consultants, slower than projected construction progress and the unavailability or late delivery of necessary equipment, legal action from special interest groups, adverse weather conditions, unexpected construction conditions, and other construction risks. These risks could result in substantial unanticipated delays or expenses and, under certain circumstances, could prevent completion of construction activities once undertaken, any of which could have an adverse effect on the applicable Underlying Fund, and therefore the Fund. When making an investment, value may be ascribed to infrastructure projects (new or expansion) that do not achieve successful implementation, potentially resulting in a lower than expected internal rate of return over the life of the investment. In addition, there are significant capital expenditures associated with the development of infrastructure assets generally. Construction costs may exceed estimates for various reasons, including inaccurate engineering and planning, labor and building material costs in excess of expectations, and unanticipated problems with project startup. Delays in project completion can result in an increase in total project construction costs through higher capitalized interest charges and additional labor and material expenses and, consequently, an increase in debt service costs and insufficient funds to complete construction. Delays may also result in adverse effects on the scheduled flow of project revenues necessary to cover the scheduled operations-phase debt service costs, lost opportunities, increased operations and maintenance expenses, and damage payments for late delivery. Investments under development or investments acquired to be developed may receive little or no cash flow from the date of acquisition through the date of completion of development and may experience operating deficits after the date of completion. Market conditions and laws may change during the course of development that makes such development less attractive than at the time it was commenced.

Operations and Maintenance Risk. As a general matter, the operation and maintenance of infrastructure assets of the type the Underlying Funds are expected to engage in involve significant capital expenditures and various risks, many of which may not be under the control of the owner/operator, including labor issues, political or local opposition, failure of technology to perform as anticipated, technical obsolescence, increasing fuel prices, structural failures and accidents, environment related issues, counterparty non-performance and the need to comply with the directives of government authorities. Optional or mandatory improvements, upgrades or rehabilitation of infrastructure assets may cause delays or result in closures or other disruptions subjecting the investment to various risks including lower revenues. The operations of infrastructure assets and businesses may also be exposed to unplanned interruptions caused by significant catastrophic events, such as cyclones, earthquakes, landslides, floods, explosions, fires, terrorist attacks, major plant breakdowns, pipeline or electricity line ruptures or other disasters. Operational disruption, as well as supply disruption, could adversely impact the cash flows available from these assets. In addition, the cost of repairing or replacing damaged assets could be considerable. Repeated or prolonged interruption may result in permanent loss of customers or other sources of revenue, substantial litigation or penalties for regulatory or contractual non-compliance.

Industrial action involving employees or third parties are expected to also disrupt the operations of infrastructure projects. Infrastructure projects are exposed to the risk of accidents that may give rise to personal injury, loss of life, damage to property, disruption to service, and economic loss. An operating failure may lead to loss of a license, concession or contract on which an Underlying Portfolio Investment is dependent. Inefficient operations and maintenance may reduce returns to Underlying Funds and therefore to the Fund and the Limited Partners.

Governmental and Regulatory Risks. Infrastructure investments of the type the Underlying Funds are expected to engage in are subject to substantial government regulation and governments have considerable discretion to implement regulations that could affect the business of infrastructure investing. In many instances, the operation or acquisition of infrastructure assets involves an ongoing commitment to or from a governmental agency, and the operation of infrastructure assets often relies on government permits, licenses, concessions, leases or contracts. The nature of these obligations and dependencies exposes the owners of infrastructure assets to a higher level of regulatory control than typically imposed on other businesses, especially given that governmental entities have considerable discretion to change or increase regulation of the operations of Underlying Portfolio Investments or to implement laws, regulations or policies affecting their operations, separate from any contractual rights that the government counterparties may have. Court decisions and actions of government agencies may also affect a project's performance. An Underlying Fund may not receive the initial regulatory approval or license needed to acquire or operate an investment, including after the Underlying Fund has incurred substantial costs pursuing such investment. Additional or unanticipated regulatory approvals, including, without limitation, with respect to renewals, extensions, transfers, assignments, restructurings, re-issuances or similar actions, may be required to acquire, operate, refinance or divest infrastructure assets, and additional approvals may become applicable in the future due to a change in laws and regulations, a change in the Underlying Portfolio Investment's customer(s), desire to expand the Underlying Portfolio Investment's business or for other reasons. Furthermore, permits or special rulings may be required with respect to taxation, financial, and regulatory related issues. There can be no assurance that an Underlying Portfolio Investment will be able to (i) obtain all required regulatory approvals that it does not yet have or that it may require in the future, (ii) obtain any necessary modifications to existing regulatory approvals or (iii) maintain required regulatory approvals. Obtaining and maintaining permits and approvals or complying with ongoing regulatory requirements may involve significant expense and/or time. Delay in obtaining or failure to obtain and maintain in full force and effect any regulatory approvals, or amendments thereto, or delay in satisfying or failure to satisfy any regulatory conditions or other applicable requirements, could prevent operation of a facility or sales to third parties or could result in additional costs to an Underlying Portfolio Investment and an Underlying Fund. There can be no assurance that (i) existing regulations applicable to investments generally will not be revised or reinterpreted; (ii) new laws and regulations will not be adopted or become applicable to Underlying Portfolio Investments; (iii) the technology and equipment selected by Underlying Portfolio Investments to comply with current and future regulatory requirements will meet such requirements; (iv) such Underlying Portfolio Investments' business and financial conditions will not be materially and adversely affected by such future changes in, or reinterpretation of, laws and regulations (including the possible loss of exemptions from laws and regulations) or any failure to comply with such current and future laws and regulations or (v) regulatory agencies or other third parties will not bring enforcement actions in which they disagree with regulatory decisions made by other regulatory agencies.

The SEC has proposed, and is expected to continue to propose, rules that will impact the business of General Partner, the Portfolio Manager and the Fund. Such current and future rulemaking is expected to materially impact General Partner, the Portfolio Manager and the Fund and/or its investments, and the Fund has the potential to bear significant increased costs as a result of such rules.

Additionally, where an Underlying Portfolio Investment holds a concession or lease from the government, the concession or lease may restrict such company's ability to operate the business in a way that maximizes cash flows and profitability. The lease or concession may also contain clauses more favorable to the government counterparty than a typical commercial contract. For instance, the lease or concession may enable the government to terminate the lease or concession in certain circumstances without requiring payment of adequate compensation. The primary source of funds from the government may be from funds solely to the extent budgeted and appropriated therefor. The government may not be obligated to make any appropriation, or to make a sufficient appropriation. There is no assurance that the government will appropriate money sufficient to pay the Underlying Portfolio Investment. In the event of a failure to appropriate, the government may terminate the concession or lease for convenience, and the Underlying Fund may not have any right to commence legal proceedings to compel the government to make further payments. A major governmental intervention into industry, including the nationalization of an industry or the assertion of control over one or more Underlying Portfolio Investments or their assets, could result in a loss to the Fund, including if its investment in such Underlying Portfolio Investment is canceled, unwound or acquired (which could be without what the Fund considers to be adequate compensation).

An Underlying Portfolio Investment's operations may rely on government licenses, concessions, leases or contracts that are generally complex and may result in a dispute over interpretation or enforceability. Even though most permits and licenses are obtained prior to the commencement of full project operations, many of these licenses and permits are typically required to be maintained over the project's life. If an Underlying Portfolio Investment fails to comply with these regulations or contractual obligations, it could be subject to monetary penalties or the Underlying Fund may lose its right to operate the affected company, or both. Governments and other regulators may impose conditions on the operations and activities of Underlying Portfolio Investments as a condition to granting their approval or to satisfy regulatory requirements. These conditions, which may be statutory in nature or may be tailored to a particular transaction or project, may limit or provide a disincentive for Underlying Portfolio Investments to invest in competing industries or to acquire anticompetitive market power in a particular market. In addition, the relevant governmental agencies may impose conditions of ongoing ownership or equivalent restrictions on the Fund in respect of the underlying infrastructure assets. This may include requirements and/or restrictions which may limit the ability of an Underlying Fund to dispose of investments at opportune times or require that such assets remain managed by the Underlying Fund's manager.

Certain industry segments are highly dependent upon various government (or private) reimbursement programs. While the Fund intends to invest in Underlying Funds and Direct Portfolio Companies that seek to comply with applicable laws and regulations, the laws and regulations relating to certain industries, including the infrastructure industry, are complex, may be ambiguous or may lack clear judicial or regulatory interpretive guidance. An adverse review or determination by any applicable judicial or regulatory authority of any such law or regulation, or an adverse change in applicable regulatory requirements or reimbursement programs, could have a material adverse effect on the operations and/or financial performance of the companies in which the Fund intends to invest.

Regulation and Dependence on Government Programs. Investments in the infrastructure sector like those the Underlying Funds are expected to participate in may entail risks associated with more mature businesses and heavily regulated industries. These Underlying Portfolio Investments may also serve customers that include governmental entities and may be highly dependent upon various government (or private) reimbursement programs. Investments that are subject to greater amounts of governmental regulation, or with significant customer concentration with governmental entities, pose additional and unique risks relative to other investments generally, including, but not limited to, risks relating to approval of a change in ownership, and the acquisition and maintenance of applicable licenses and certain regulatory filings. In certain circumstances, the General Partner may determine to limit participation in a particular investment by the Limited Partners as a whole in light of the sensitive nature of a particular Underlying Portfolio Investment's operations and/or the filings required to be made with a relevant government authority. Governmental budgeting and procurement requirements could adversely affect profitability. To the extent an Underlying Fund invests in a business whose assets are governed by concession agreements with national, provincial or local authorities, there is a risk that these authorities may not be able to honor their obligations under such agreements, especially over the long term. Changes in applicable laws or regulations, or in the interpretations of these laws and regulations, could result in increased operating costs, increased compliance costs or the need for additional capital expenditures generally and/or regulatory capital requirements. If an Underlying Portfolio Investment fails to comply with these requirements, it could also be subject to civil or criminal liability and the imposition of fines. Additionally, certain Underlying Portfolio Investments may have a unionized work force or employees who are covered by a collective bargaining agreement, which could directly or indirectly subject a company to complex laws and regulations as well as labor relations disputes or difficulties generally. Moreover, an Underlying Portfolio Investment's operations and profitability could suffer if it experiences labor relations problems. Upon the expiration of any of such Underlying Portfolio Investment's collective bargaining agreements, it may be unable to negotiate new collective bargaining agreements on terms favorable to it, and its business operations at one or more of its facilities may be interrupted as a result of labor disputes or difficulties and delays in the process of renegotiating its collective bargaining agreements. A work stoppage at one or more of any such Underlying Portfolio Investment's facilities could have a material adverse effect on its business, results of operations and financial condition. Additionally, any such problems may bring scrutiny and attention to the Underlying Funds or the Fund itself, which could adversely affect the Fund's ability to implement its investment objectives.

Management Fee. From the date of the Fund's initial closing through the expiration of the Investment Period (such ending date, the "Stepdown Date"), Management Fees generally will be charged based on a formula tied to the amount of the Fund's aggregate Capital Commitments. Further, after the Stepdown Date, Management Fees generally will be charged and calculated based on a formula tied to the reported net asset value of the Partnership's interest in all Portfolio Investments then held by the Fund and the Fund's unfunded capital commitments to all Underlying Funds. As a result, after the Stepdown Date, the amount of Management Fees generally will correspond with fluctuations in the reported net asset value of the Fund's interest in its Portfolio Investments. In many circumstances, calculation of the Management Fee will include the value of capitalized expenses, costs or other amounts relating to unrealized Portfolio Investments, including such amounts payable or reimbursable to the General Partner and its affiliates, which increases the base on which future Management Fees will be calculated.

Uncertainty of Projections and Outside Reports. Projected operating results will normally be based primarily on management judgments or third-party reports. In all cases, projections are only estimates of future results that are based upon assumptions made at the time that the projections are developed. Projections are not guarantees or predictions of future performance, and there can be no assurance that the assumptions will be accurate or that the projected results will be achieved; actual results may vary significantly from the projections. General economic, political, market, natural and other conditions, which are not predictable, can have a material adverse impact on the reliability of such projections. Assumptions or projections about asset lives, the stability, growth or predictability of costs, demand or revenues generated by an investment or other factors associated therewith may, due to various risks and uncertainties including those described herein, differ materially from actual results. The Portfolio Manager may base its investment decision with respect to a particular Portfolio Investment based on projections and assumptions regarding the applicable Underlying Fund and the demand, usage and patronage of one or more Underlying Portfolio Investments, and to the extent that such projections and assumptions prove incorrect, the Fund's financial returns could be adversely affected.

Certain investments, as well as the Fund and the Portfolio Manager, will rely on the reports of technical consultants when evaluating the condition of infrastructure assets or other elements of an investment (such as expected energy use, demand or input availability). Estimates of natural resources reserves by qualified engineers are often a key factor in evaluating and valuing certain infrastructure investments. The process of estimating natural resources reserves is complex, requiring significant decisions, collection of accurate factual information and assumptions in the evaluation of available geological, geophysical, weather, engineering, economic, and other data for each reservoir or location.

These estimates are subject to wide variances based on, among other things, changes in commodity prices and certain technical assumptions. Accordingly, it is possible for such reserve estimates to be significantly revised, which may create significant changes in the value of infrastructure assets utilized by the owners or buyers of such natural resources reserves. The actual amounts of natural resources reserves may be underestimated, requiring adjustments such as additional capital or maintenance expenditures which may not be recoverable, allocable to counterparties or economic from a stand-alone perspective.

Risks and Limitations of Hypothetical Performance. Any hypothetical performance provided in this Memorandum is subject to numerous variables, which change over time and, therefore, amounts actually realized in the future will vary (in some cases materially) from any estimated projected returns or targets. Any actual investment performance will be subject to uncertainties, changes (including changes in economic, operational, political, legal, tax and other circumstances) and other risks, including, but not limited to, broad trends in business and finance, tax and other legislation affecting the Fund or its investments, interest rates, inflation, market conditions and other factors, all of which are unknowable and beyond the Portfolio Manager's control and any of which may cause the relevant actual financial and other results to be materially different from the results expressed or implied by any such hypothetical or projected returns. Other variables that could materially and adversely affect the Fund's or an investment's actual investment performance may include, without limitation, (i) future cash flows, (ii) availability and costs of financing, (iii) exit timing, (iv) increases in costs, (v) force majeure events (e.g., terrorist attacks, extreme weather conditions, earthquakes, war, etc.), (vi) supply/demand imbalances, (vii) currency fluctuations, (viii) litigation and disputes, (ix) competition, and (x) other factors. In addition, general economic conditions, which are not predictable, can have a material adverse impact on the accuracy of projections. Hypothetical returns are subject to inherent limitations in light of the risks described above, including market and economic risks and multiple other factors and considerations. There can be no assurance that any projected, target, or other hypothetical results will be achieved, and actual results may vary significantly from the projections. Hypothetical returns should not be regarded as, and are expressly not, a representation or guarantee (a) that any specific transaction will occur or a reflection of any particular result that any such transaction will achieve or is likely to achieve or (b) that investors will be able to avoid losses, including total losses of their investments. For the foregoing and other similar reasons, the comparability of hypothetical performance to the prior (or future) actual performance of the Fund is limited, and prospective investors should not unduly rely on any such information in making an investment decision.

Demand/Usage Risk. Demand, usage and throughput risk can affect the performance of infrastructure assets. Demand, usage and throughput depend on, and may be affected by, a wide variety of factors, such as demographic changes, economic conditions, fuel prices, government macroeconomic policies, tolls, tariffs, other usage or throughput-related fees, social stability, political or local opposition, technical obsolescence, competition from untolled or other forms of transportation, acts of God, war, terrorism, changes in demand for products or services, slower than projected construction progress and adverse weather conditions. To the extent that the Fund's or an Underlying Fund's assumptions regarding demand, usage and throughput prove incorrect, returns to the Fund could be adversely affected. Some investments may be subject to seasonal variations, including greater revenues and profitability during different seasons of the year. Accordingly, the Fund's or an Underlying Fund's operating results for any particular investment in any particular quarter may not be indicative of the results that can be expected for that investment throughout the year.

Land Title Risk. Certain Underlying Portfolio Investments may require large areas of land to install and operate their equipment and associated infrastructure. The rights to use the necessary land may be obtained through freehold title, easements, leases, and other rights of use. Different jurisdictions adopt different systems of land title, and in some jurisdictions it may not be possible to ascertain definitively who has the legal right to enter into land tenure arrangements with investments. In addition, the grantor's fee interests in the land which is the subject of such easements and leases are or may become subject to mortgages securing loans, other liens (such as tax liens), and other lease rights of third parties (such as leases of oil, gas, coal or other mineral rights). As a result, an Underlying Portfolio Investment's rights under such leases or easements are or may be subject and subordinate to the rights of third parties. It is also possible that a default by the grantor under any mortgage could result in a foreclosure on the grantor's interest in the property and thereby terminate the investment's right to the leases and easements required to operate such investment. Similarly, it is possible that a government authority, as the holder of a tax lien, could foreclose upon a parcel and take possession of the portion of the investment located on such parcel. The rights of a third party pursuant to a superior lease (such as leases of oil, gas, coal or other mineral rights) could also result in damage to or disturbance of the physical assets of an investment or require relocation of investment assets. The locations of the Underlying Portfolio Investments may also be subject to government exercise of eminent domain power or similar events. The expiration of a landowner lease and the failure to obtain an extension will adversely affect the Underlying Portfolio Investment on such property. If any investments were to suffer the loss of all or a portion of their underlying real estate interests or equipment as a result of a foreclosure by a mortgagee or other lienholder of a land parcel, or damage arising from the conduct of superior leaseholders, such investment's operations and revenues may be adversely affected.

Real Estate Risks. Some or all of an Underlying Fund's investments are expected be subject to the risks inherent in the ownership and operation of assets or businesses that derive a substantial amount of their value from real estate and real estate-related interests. These types of underlying interests are typically illiquid. Deterioration of real estate fundamentals may negatively impact the performance of such investments. Such changes in fundamentals could involve fluctuations as a result of general and local economic conditions, overbuilding and increased competition, increases in property taxes and operating expenses, changes in environmental and zoning laws, casualty or condemnation losses, environmental liability, regulatory limitations on rents, changes in neighborhood values, changes in the appeal of properties to tenants, the availability of mortgage funds which may render the sale or refinancing of properties difficult or impracticable, natural disasters, increase in interest rates, and other factors that are beyond the control of an Underlying Fund's manager.

Additionally, an Underlying Fund could acquire assets in jurisdictions where indigenous rights (e.g., with respect to tribes or other dispossessed people/communities) to land exist. While an Underlying Fund would generally conduct due diligence in such jurisdictions to determine the extent to which it may be affected by such rights, it may not be possible to mitigate against or remove a risk associated with indigenous claims. Additionally, any declaration of title in respect of government protected land on which infrastructure assets are located may negatively affect the operation of those businesses.

Risks associated with Investments in Social Infrastructure. Certain Underlying Funds could make investments in social infrastructure. Investments in social infrastructure include (but are not limited to) investments in healthcare, childcare, education and public facilities and services. Such investments can be materially affected by national and international economic and political or policy changes, including but not limited to social, economic and political instability, economic uncertainty, limitations or suspensions of public funding and a disproportionate need for private capital investment. Such factors can lead to uncertainty about long-term funding needs, investment plans, project pipelines and viability.

A lack of comprehensive integration of social infrastructure investment and funding plans can also limit the number of investible projects and create demand-supply imbalances as well as competition for existing projects. These factors can give rise to high project valuations and acquisition prices which may not reflect the true value of the underlying infrastructure or project. In some areas of social infrastructure, such as healthcare and education, skills gaps and a lack of trained professionals can affect long term operational viability.

Social and demographic shifts can also have a material adverse impact on the resilience and operability of social infrastructure investments, including but not limited to increases in: (i) demand for healthcare services arising from an ageing population; (ii) population density and educational needs arising from rapid urbanization and population movements; and (iii) demand for public services arising from changing working and living patterns e.g. requirements for childcare. Such increases in demand can result in enhanced costs for investors, which may not materialize in a linear manner.

Investments in the Transportation Sector. An Underlying Fund could make investments in infrastructure opportunities relating to the transportation sector, which may include investments relating to airports, toll roads, bridges and tunnels, port terminals, railroads, municipal transport, parking facilities and other public or private transportation-related infrastructure investments. An Underlying Fund's ability to make attractive transportation-related infrastructure investments may be subject to a variety of considerations, including general supply/demand trends, overall economic development and growth in the jurisdictions in which the Fund may make investments, general market conditions, socioeconomic changes, and changes relating to governmental spending and related policies. Any adverse or unexpected changes in such conditions could adversely affect an Underlying Fund's ability to consummate attractive transportation-related infrastructure investments and/or the performance of any Underlying Portfolio Investments in the transportation sector.

Rate Regulation. Certain infrastructure assets may be subject to rate regulations that determine or limit the prices they may charge, particularly if a portfolio entity is the sole or predominant service provider in its service area or provides services that are essential to the community. As a result, Portfolio Investments might be subject to unfavorable price regulation by government agencies, which could adversely affect the overall profitability of any particular infrastructure project subject to such rate regulation. Users of the applicable service provided by an Underlying Portfolio Investment may react negatively to any adjustments to the applicable rates, or public pressure may cause relevant governmental authorities to challenge such rates. In addition, adverse public opinion, or lobbying efforts by specific interest groups, could result in governmental pressure on Underlying Portfolio Investments to reduce their rates, or to forego planned rate increases or forego direct or indirect subsidies. Unfavorable price determinations that may be final with no right of appeal or that, despite a right of appeal, are not successfully challenged, could result in its profits being negatively affected and portfolio entities not meeting initial return expectations. In particular, some Underlying Portfolio Investments may derive substantially all their revenues from tolls, tariffs, other usage or throughput-related fees, wholesale or other sales of electricity or services related thereto, such as storage or grid management service. Neither the General Partner nor Portfolio Manager can guarantee that governmental entities with which investments of Underlying Funds have concession agreements will not try to exempt certain users from tolls, tariffs or other fees, negotiate or require lower rates or change policies regarding subsidies. Adverse public opinion, socioeconomic changes, and/or lobbying efforts by specific interest groups could result in governmental pressure on Portfolio Investments to reduce their rates or to forego planned rate increases. The relevant government entities may seek to limit the ability of an Underlying Fund to increase, or may seek to reduce, rates and fares as a result of factors such as general economic conditions in the country, negative consumer perceptions, the prevailing rate of inflation, traffic volume and general public sentiment. If public pressure or government action forces Underlying Portfolio Investments to restrict their rate increases or reduce their rates, and they are not able to secure adequate compensation to restore the economic balance of the relevant concession agreement, an Underlying Fund's business, financial condition and results of operations could be materially and adversely affected, which could in turn adversely affect the Fund.

Sustainability Program Risk. The Portfolio Manager maintains a Sustainability Policy, which, subject to its fiduciary duty and any applicable legal, regulatory or contractual requirements, it intends to apply as applicable to the Fund's investment portfolio, including in respect of its investment process.

Depending on the investment, the impact of developments connected with sustainability factors, including worker health and safety, environmental compliance, and bribery and corruption, could have a material effect on the return and risk profile of the investment. However, the act of selecting and evaluating material sustainability factors is qualitative and subjective by nature, and there is no guarantee that the criteria utilized or judgment exercised by the Portfolio Manager or any third-party advisor will reflect the beliefs or values, internal policies or preferred practices of any particular Limited Partner or other asset managers or with market trends.

Although the Portfolio Manager views the consideration of sustainability to be an opportunity to potentially enhance or protect the performance of its investments over the long-term, the Portfolio Manager cannot guarantee that its sustainability program, which depends in part on qualitative judgments, will positively impact the performance of any individual investment or the Fund as a whole. The materiality of sustainability risks and opportunities on an individual investment and on a portfolio as a whole depends on many factors, including the relevant industry, country, asset class and investment style. In evaluating a prospective investment, the Portfolio Manager often depends upon information and data provided by the underlying fund general partners, which may be incomplete or inaccurate and could cause the Portfolio Manager to incorrectly identify, prioritize, assess or analyze sustainability-related practices and/or related risks and opportunities. The Portfolio Manager does not intend to independently verify all sustainability-related information received, and may decide in its discretion not to utilize, report on, or consider certain information provided

In addition, the Portfolio Manager's sustainability framework, including the Sustainability Policy and ESR Policy and associated procedures and practices, are expected to change over time. The Portfolio Manager is permitted to determine in its discretion that it is not feasible or practical to implement or complete certain of its sustainability initiatives based on cost, timing or other considerations. It is also possible that market dynamics or other factors will make it impractical, inadvisable or impossible for the Portfolio Manager to adhere to all elements of the Fund's investment strategy, including with respect to sustainability risk and opportunity management, whether with respect to one or more portfolio investments or to the Fund's portfolio generally. Sustainability-related statements, initiatives and goals as described in this Memorandum with respect to the Fund's investment strategy, portfolio, and investments are aspirational and not guarantees or promises that all or any such initiatives and goals will be achieved, other than as set out in any applicable regulatory disclosures.

Sustainability risks integration and responsible investing practices in secondaries strategies are evolving rapidly and there are different principles, frameworks, methodologies and tracking tools being implemented by asset managers, and the Portfolio Manager's adoption of and adherence to such principles, frameworks, methodologies and tools may vary over time. For example, the Portfolio Manager's Sustainability Policy does not represent a universally recognized standard for assessing sustainability considerations. Any sustainability-related initiatives to which the Portfolio Manager is or becomes a signatory, member, or supporter may not align with the approach used by other asset managers (or preferred by prospective investors) or with future market trends. There is no guarantee that the Portfolio Manager will remain a signatory, supporter or member of or continue to report at the intended cadence or at all under or in alignment with such initiatives or other similar industry frameworks.

Moreover, in recent years “anti-ESG” sentiment has also gained momentum across the U.S., with several states, the executive branch and federal agencies, and Congress having proposed, enacted or indicated an intent to pursue “anti-ESG” policies, legislation, or initiatives, issued related legal opinions, and pursued related investigations and litigation. Additionally, asset managers have been subject to recent scrutiny related to ESG-focused industry working groups, initiatives, and associations, including organizations advancing action to address sustainability matters, climate change or climate-related risk. Further, some conservative groups and federal and state officials have asserted that the Supreme Court’s decision striking down race-based affirmative action in higher education in June 2023 should be analogized to private employment matters and private contract matters. Several media campaigns and cases alleging discrimination based on similar arguments have been filed since the decision, and in January 2025, the Trump Administration signed a number of Executive Orders focused on diversity, equity and inclusion (“DEI”), which caution the private sector to end “illegal DEI discrimination and preferences” and preview upcoming compliance investigations of private entities. Such anti-ESG and anti-DEI-related policies, legislation, initiatives, litigation, legal opinions and scrutiny could result in the Portfolio Manager facing additional compliance obligations, becoming the subject of investigations or enforcement actions, or sustaining reputational harm, or require certain investors to divest or discourage certain investors from investing in the Portfolio Manager’s Fund.

Environmental Risk. Infrastructure assets in which the Underlying Funds invest may be subject to numerous statutes, rules and regulations relating to environmental protection, and foreign, national, state, provincial and local environmental laws and regulations affect the operations of infrastructure projects and companies. An Underlying Fund could invest in investments that are subject to changing and increasingly stringent environmental and health and safety laws, regulations and permit requirements (including any applicable environmental impact assessment requirements under the United States National Environmental Policy Act or similar laws in other jurisdictions), and there can be no guarantee that all costs and risks regarding compliance with, or liability under, environmental laws and regulations can be identified. Standards are set by these laws and regulations regarding certain aspects of health, safety and environmental quality, and they provide for penalties and other liabilities for the violation of such standards, and establish, in certain circumstances, joint and several obligations to remediate and rehabilitate current and former facilities and locations where operations are, or were, conducted or where materials were disposed of. New and more stringent environmental and health and safety laws, regulations and permit requirements, or stricter interpretations of current laws or regulations could impose substantial additional costs on investments or potential investments and could create liabilities which did not exist at the time of acquisition and that could not have been foreseen. In addition, the environmental permitting process is frequently lengthy, and there is no certainty that Underlying Portfolio Investments will obtain the permits necessary for projects, or that permitting delays will not substantially increase costs. Required expenditures for environmental compliance have adversely impacted investment returns in a number of segments of the industry. Certain industries will continue to face considerable oversight from environmental regulatory authorities and significant influence from non-governmental organizations and special interest groups. Compliance with such current or future environmental requirements does not ensure that the operations of investments will not cause injury to the environment or to people under all circumstances or that investments will not be required to incur additional unforeseen environmental expenditures. Moreover, failure to comply with any such requirements could lead to material penalties or other liabilities, including, among other things, government fines and stop-work injunctions and could have a detrimental impact on the financial performance of infrastructure projects. There can be no assurance that investments will at all times comply with all applicable environmental laws, regulations and permit requirements. Past practices or future operations of investments could also result in material personal injury or property damage claims. Any noncompliance with these laws and regulations could subject an Underlying Fund and its investments to material penalties or other liabilities.

Under certain circumstances, environmental authorities and other parties may seek to impose personal liability on the limited partners of a partnership (such as the Fund, as a limited partner of one or more Underlying Funds) subject to environmental liability. However, a limited partner investor in the Fund may reduce its risk of such personal liability by avoiding activities with respect to the investments other than as specifically contemplated by the Partnership Agreement.

In addition, ordinary operation, malfunction, accidental release or the occurrence of some other accident with respect to an infrastructure asset could cause major environmental damage, which may result in significant financial distress to such asset if not covered by insurance, and, even if covered by insurance, may have a detrimental effect on the applicable Underlying Portfolio Investment, an Underlying Fund and/or the Fund, resulting from adverse publicity related to such an incident and other similar results. In addition, persons who arrange for the disposal or treatment of hazardous materials may also be liable for the costs of removal or remediation of these materials at the disposal or treatment facility, whether or not that facility is or ever was owned or operated by that person.

An Underlying Fund, and consequently the Fund, is expected to also be exposed to substantial risk of loss from environmental claims arising from certain of its infrastructure investments involving undisclosed or unknown environmental, health or other related matters. Certain environmental laws and regulations may require that an owner or operator of an asset address prior environmental contamination, which could involve substantial cost. Furthermore, under various environmental statutes, rules and regulations of certain jurisdictions, a current or previous owner or operator of real property may be liable for non-compliance with applicable environmental and health and safety requirements and for the costs of investigation, monitoring, removal or remediation of hazardous materials. Such laws and regulations often impose liability without regard to whether the owner or operator knew of, or was responsible for, the release or presence of environmental contamination. The Fund may therefore be exposed to substantial risk of loss from environmental claims arising in respect of Underlying Portfolio Investments.

The presence of these hazardous materials on a property could also result in personal injury or property damage or similar claims by private parties. Persons who arrange for the disposal or treatment of hazardous materials may also be liable for the costs of removal or remediation of these materials at the disposal or treatment facility, whether or not that facility is or ever was owned or operated by that person. These liabilities may exceed the value of the Underlying Portfolio Investment at issue and may result in claims against the owner that would result in the loss of other assets of the owner. The employees of, staff of and communities surrounding infrastructure assets and businesses are exposed to health and safety risks that could result in death, permanent disability or other serious injury that may disrupt the operations of investments, lead to economic loss, litigation or penalties for regulatory or contractual non-compliance, and may also adversely impact the reputation of the investment, an Underlying Fund, the Fund and Limited Partners. Environmental, health, or safety liabilities in relation to contamination and/or hazardous materials could have a material adverse effect on the results of operations, financial condition, liquidity and prospects of the Underlying Portfolio Investments, and on the overall value of such Underlying Portfolio Investments. Moreover, any loss from such events may not be recoverable under relevant insurance policies. Community and environmental groups may protest about the development or operation of infrastructure assets, which may induce government action to the detriment of an Underlying Fund or the Fund. Some of the most onerous environmental requirements regulate air emissions of pollutants and greenhouse gases; these requirements may particularly affect companies in the energy sector.

Climate Change Risk. Prolonged and potentially accelerating changes in climatic conditions, together with the response or failure to respond to these changes, could have a significant impact on the revenues, expenses, lifespan and operating conditions of investments of Underlying Funds and therefore on the performance of such Underlying Fund and consequently the Fund as a whole. While the precise future effects of climate change are unknown, it is possible that climate change could affect precipitation levels, droughts, wildfires, agricultural production, wind levels, annual sunshine, sea levels and the severity and frequency of storms and could result in other severe weather events. These events and the disruptions that they cause, alone or in combination, also have the potential to strain or deplete infrastructure and response capabilities generally, leading to increased costs and higher taxes, decreases in economic efficiency, or both. As climate change continues and to the extent that societies adversely affected by climate change are unable to effectively adapt or mitigate its impact, the ongoing disruptions caused could result in societal disruption on a local, national or even global scale, potentially leading to prolonged reduced economic output, political upheaval and humanitarian crises such as famines, mass migrations and disease outbreaks. Any and all of these developments could have material and adverse impacts on the business of Underlying Portfolio Investments and on the broader society and economy in which such Underlying Portfolio Investments operate.

In addition, as consensus builds that global warming is a significant threat to the global economy, legal initiatives seeking to address climate change through disclosure and reduction of greenhouse gas emissions have been adopted by, are pending or have been proposed before international, federal, state, provincial, regional and local regulatory authorities. These measures are varied and diverse across national, state or provincial and local jurisdictions, and include but are not limited to targeted reductions in emissions, mandatory emission level quotas, tax regimes based on emissions including but not limited to the EU Carbon Border Adjustment Mechanism, bans or restrictions on the production of fossil fuels or on the construction of new infrastructure or delivery of services supporting or connected to the fossil fuel industry, and other measures. These measures could materially impact the performance of Underlying Portfolio Investments in many ways, including by increasing costs of doing business or ensuring regulatory compliance, through the imposition of fines or other penalties, or through reputational damage resulting from the association (or perceived association) with industries viewed as contributing to or failing to sufficiently mitigate or enable adaptation to climate change.

Many industries (e.g., electrical power, mining, manufacturing and transportation) face various climate change risks, many of which could conceivably materially impact them. Such risks include (i) regulatory/litigation risk (e.g., changing legal requirements that could result in increased permitting and compliance costs, changes in business operations, the discontinuance of certain operations, and related litigation); (ii) market risk (e.g., declining market for products and services seen as greenhouse gas intensive); (iii) physical risk (e.g., risks to plants or property owned or operated by a company posed by rising sea levels, increased frequency or severity of storms, drought, and other physical occurrences attributable to climate change); and (iv) reputational risk (e.g., risks tied to changing customer or community perceptions of an asset's relative contribution to greenhouse gas emissions). These risks could result in unanticipated delays or expenses and, under certain circumstances, could prevent completion of investment activities once undertaken, any of which could have an adverse effect on an Underlying Fund or the Fund.

Greenhouse Gas Accounting. If and to the extent an Underlying Fund evaluates any generated, reduced, removed or avoided greenhouse gas emissions relating to its portfolio, the Portfolio Manager of such Underlying Fund may depend upon information and data provided by its Underlying Portfolio Investments or obtained via third-party reporting or advisors or estimation, which may be incomplete or inaccurate and could cause the Underlying Fund to incorrectly assess an Underlying Portfolio Investment's emissions data. Additionally, greenhouse gas accounting standards are rapidly evolving, and there is uncertainty in how these standards will treat reduced or avoided emissions going forward. Moreover, there is growing regulatory interest in improving transparency around how asset managers and companies define and measure emissions in order to allow investors and the general public to validate and better understand sustainability-related claims. Greenhouse gas accounting for investments could become subject to additional regulation in the future, and neither the Portfolio Manager nor the manager of any Underlying Fund can predict how future market and regulatory shifts may impact its ability to evaluate greenhouse gas emissions. For the avoidance of doubt, neither the Fund nor any Underlying Fund is required to perform any such evaluations.

Governmental Budgetary Constraints; Reforms. Certain Underlying Portfolio Investments may include investments in public infrastructure projects. The success of public infrastructure projects is often dependent on governmental funding or subsidies. Governments typically have considerable discretion in determining the amount of funding or subsidies to allocate to such public infrastructure projects. Lack of governmental funding or subsidies due to governmental budgetary constraints could adversely impact the overall development and availability of public infrastructure projects, result in privatization of certain types of assets, and/or otherwise result in an increase in competition among other providers of capital (e.g., private infrastructure investors) for such infrastructure assets, which may make it more difficult for an Underlying Fund to effectively consummate investments in or relating to such infrastructure projects. Alternatively, an Underlying Fund's success will also be driven in part, by its ability to source and invest in private infrastructure projects. The availability of such private infrastructure projects may be highly dependent on governmental determinations to continue with, or implement, announced reforms regarding the means by which infrastructure construction is regulated or financed. As such, there can be no assurance that such private infrastructure projects will be available for investment on terms which an Underlying Fund deems favorable.

Concentration of Investments; Lack of Diversity. Limited Partners have no control over the direction of the Fund's or any Underlying Fund's investments. An Underlying Fund could seek to make several investments in one industry or one industry segment, with one counterparty or in one single transaction. As a result, the Fund's portfolio could become highly concentrated, and the performance of a few holdings or of a particular industry or transaction may substantially affect their aggregate return. Furthermore, to the extent that the capital raised is less than the targeted amount, the Fund would likely invest in fewer secondary transactions and thus be less diversified. The Fund will seek to diversify its types of private equity and private equity-related assets through investment in various Underlying Funds. Such diversification may not be achieved as a result of, among other things, insufficient investment opportunities, whether due to the insufficient number of prospective Underlying Funds or delays in effecting any investments, or as a result of insufficient investable assets as a result of insufficient subscriptions or failure by existing or prospective investors to fund unpaid Commitments to the Fund. Moreover, Underlying Funds may have substantially similar strategies and assets resulting in potentially high return correlations among the Underlying Funds and reducing the intended diversification potentially resulting from investing in various Underlying Funds. In addition, although the diversification of the Fund's investments through Underlying Funds is intended to reduce the Fund's exposure to adverse events associated with, for example, specific issuers, geographic locations or industries, the number and type of investments by the Underlying Funds may be limited. As a consequence, the Fund's returns as a whole may be adversely affected by the unfavorable performance of even a single investment by the Fund or by an Underlying Fund.

Expanded Exposure to Market Trends. The Fund may also invest in Underlying Funds with substantial undrawn commitments. Such investments generally will expose Limited Partners to more volatility in political, market and economic conditions and general market trends occurring after the formation of the Fund and over a long-term period into the life of the Fund. In contrast, other investments made by the Fund may expose Limited Partners to the effects of political, market and economic conditions and general market trends that occurred prior to the formation of the Fund as well as future volatility in such conditions because such investments generally are expected to involve investments in more mature secondary investments.

Risk Relating to Due Diligence. Before making Portfolio Investments, the Portfolio Manager will typically conduct due diligence that it deems reasonable and appropriate based on the facts and circumstances applicable to each Portfolio Investment at the expense of the Fund. Due diligence may entail evaluation of important and complex business, financial, tax, accounting, engineering, environmental, and legal issues, and may be conducted on a non-reliance basis. Outside consultants, legal advisors, accountants, investment banks and other third parties may be involved, at the Fund's expense, in the due diligence process to varying degrees depending on the type of investment, the costs of which will be borne by the Fund. Such involvement of third-party advisors or consultants may present a number of risks primarily relating to the Portfolio Manager's reduced control of the functions that are outsourced. In addition, if the Portfolio Manager is unable to timely engage third-party providers, its ability to evaluate and acquire more complex targets could be adversely affected. When conducting due diligence and making an assessment regarding an investment, the Portfolio Manager will rely on the resources available to it, including information provided by the target of the Portfolio Investment and, in certain circumstances, third-party investigations. The due diligence investigation that the Portfolio Manager carries out with respect to any investment opportunity may not reveal or highlight all relevant facts that may be necessary or helpful in evaluating such investment opportunity. Moreover, such an investigation will not necessarily result in the Portfolio Investment being successful, including when unknown risks come to fruition that adversely affect performance. There can be no assurance that attempts to provide downside protection with respect to Portfolio Investments, including pursuant to risk management procedures and sustainability-related guidelines, will achieve their desired effect and potential investors should regard an investment in the Fund as being speculative and having a high degree of risk.

Change of Law and Sovereign Risk. The Fund expects to operate in an environment with increasing regulatory scrutiny and heightened potential for material changes in laws and / or regulations, which could affect the Fund and its investments. Any further legal, tax and / or regulatory changes during the term of the Fund may adversely affect the Fund. In addition to the risks regarding regulatory approvals, it should be noted that government counterparties may have the discretion to change or increase regulation of an Underlying Portfolio Investment's operations, or implement laws or regulations affecting an Underlying Portfolio Investment's operations, separate from any contractual rights it may have. An Underlying Portfolio Investment also could be materially and adversely affected as a result of statutory or regulatory changes or judicial or administrative interpretations of existing laws and regulations that impose more comprehensive or stringent requirements on such company.

In addition, governments have considerable discretion in implementing regulations that could impact an Underlying Portfolio Investment's business, and because its business may provide basic, everyday services and face limited competition, governments may be influenced by political considerations and may make decisions that adversely affect an investment's business. There can be no assurance that the relevant governmental entities will not legislate, impose regulations or change applicable laws or act contrary to the law in a way that would materially and adversely affect the business of one or more Underlying Portfolio Investments. The Fund or an Underlying Fund, Underlying Portfolio Investment or Direct Portfolio Company may be unable to effectively pursue legal remedies against governmental entities for a breach of contractual obligations or other violations of their legal rights.

Furthermore, because the Fund may pay certain taxes imposed on the Management Fee, there is a risk that future changes in law or regulation, or in interpretation or enforcement thereof, in the tax regimes of the U.S., Canada or other jurisdictions may increase the tax liabilities of the Fund.

Competition Risk. Traditional infrastructure assets may have a strategic competitive advantage as they often exist in locations or markets where there are few alternatives to the services they provide. The lack of alternatives may be due to regulatory or legal frameworks, such that businesses were able to have strong sector positions. The development of anti-monopoly laws and regulations as a result of changes in government plans and policies may increase competition for investments, and may materially and adversely affect an Underlying Fund's business, financial conditions and results of operations.

An Underlying Fund will compete with other consortia and companies for infrastructure investments. These competitors, which include large construction and engineering groups and financial investors, may have significant financial resources and may be able to present bids with competitive terms. As a result of such competition, an Underlying Fund may have difficulty in making some infrastructure investments and investing the commitments of its limited partners, including the Fund. Alternatively, an Underlying Fund may be required to make Underlying Portfolio Investments on economic terms less favorable than anticipated. In addition, such competition may have an adverse effect on the length of time required to fully invest such Underlying Fund. There can be no certainty that an Underlying Fund will identify a sufficient number of attractive investment opportunities to fully invest such Underlying Fund. Certain other strategic buyers and investors which compete for investment opportunities with the Underlying Fund may not be subject to the same regulatory requirements and other restrictions, with the result that an Underlying Fund may be at a relative disadvantage in pursuing and/or realizing certain investments. If an Underlying Fund fails to make new Underlying Portfolio Investments or makes Underlying Portfolio Investments under such less favorable terms, such Underlying Fund's financial condition and results of operations could be materially and adversely affected.

Competing Assets. Underlying Portfolio Investments will likely face competition from other infrastructure assets in the vicinity of the assets they operate, the presence of which may depend in part on governmental plans and policies. The construction of a new (or improved) competing infrastructure asset may compete with the Underlying Portfolio Investment. If Underlying Portfolio Investments are unable to compete successfully with such alternatives, an Underlying Fund's business, financial condition, and results of operations could be materially and adversely affected.

Legal Documentation and Other Legal Risks, including Litigation. Infrastructure assets in which the Underlying Funds are expected to invest, and investments in or financing thereof, are usually governed by a complex series of legal documents and contracts. As a result, the risk of dispute over interpretation or enforceability of the documentation may be higher than for other investments.

Other legal risks include, but are not limited to, those relating to actions by special interest groups and other actions and/or litigation relating to the acquisition, ownership, operation and disposition of the Fund's or an Underlying Fund's investments that may adversely affect operations of an Underlying Fund or Underlying Portfolio Investment or the value thereof. Any litigation may consume substantial amounts of the Portfolio Manager's or an Underlying Fund manager's time and attention, and that time and the devotion of these resources to litigation may, at times, be disproportionate to the amounts at stake in the litigation.

Commodity Price Risk. Underlying Portfolio Investments may be subject to commodity price risk, including, without limitation, the prevailing prices of electricity, fuel, oil, natural gas, natural gas liquids, coal and other commodities (such as metals) and the differential between prices of specific commodities that are a primary factor in the profitability of certain conversion activities such as petroleum refining ("crack spread") and power generation ("spark spread"). The operation and cash flows of any investment may depend, in some cases to a significant extent, upon prevailing or improving market prices for energy and other commodities (such as oil, gas, coal and power). Commodity prices have been, and are likely to continue to be, volatile and subject to wide fluctuations (as evidenced by past precipitous declines in the price of oil) and such volatility may continue in response to any of the following factors: (i) relatively minor changes in the supply of and demand for electricity or such other commodities; (ii) market uncertainty and the condition of various economies (including interest rates, levels of economic activity, the price of securities and the participation by other investors in the financial markets); (iii) political conditions in the U.S., Canada and international commodity producing regions; (iv) the extent of domestic production and importation of oil, natural gas, natural gas liquids, coal or metals in certain relevant markets; (v) the foreign supply of oil, natural gas and metals; (vi) the prices of foreign imports; (vii) the price and availability of alternative fuels; (viii) the level of consumer demand; (ix) the price of steel and the outlook for steel production; (x) weather conditions; (xi) the competitive position of electricity, ethanol/biodiesel oil, gas or coal as a source of energy as compared with other energy sources; (xii) the industry-wide or local refining, transportation or processing capacity for oil, natural gas, transmission capacity for electric energy or coal; (xiii) the effect of U.S. and non-U.S. federal, state, provincial and local regulation on the production, transportation and sale of electric energy and other commodities; (xiv) breakthrough technologies (such as hydrofracking and other methodologies to extract shale oils, improved storage or clean coal technologies) or government subsidies, tax credits or other support that allow alternative fuel generation projects to produce more reliable electric energy or lower the cost of such production compared to natural gas fueled electric generation projects; (xv) with respect to the price of oil, actions of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (“OPEC”), including in reaction to political developments, international conflicts and regional strife, and other large petroleum exporting countries that are not a member of OPEC, such as Russia; (xvi) the expected consumption of coking coal in steel production; (xvii) the amount and character of excess electric generating capacity in a market area; (xviii) overall economic conditions; (xix) terrorist acts; and (xx) a variety of additional factors that are beyond the control of Macquarie, the Portfolio Manager, the Underlying Funds or the Fund.

Impact of Infrastructure Legislation. On November 15, 2021, then-President Biden signed the $1.2 trillion bipartisan Infrastructure Investment and Jobs Act, which provided for funding for a variety of traditional infrastructure investments, including roads, bridges, water systems, transit and broadband. The impact of the Infrastructure Investment and Jobs Act, as well as the impact of any other infrastructure legislation that may in the future pass in the U.S., Canada or any of the Underlying Funds’ other target geographies, on the Fund, the Underlying Funds, the infrastructure market(s) and the Underlying Portfolio Investments remains uncertain.

Ongoing Changes in the Power Generation and Electric Utility Industry. Underlying Funds may make investments in the electric utility industry. In many regions the electric utility industry experiences competitive pressures, primarily as a result of consumer demands, technological advances, greater availability of natural gas, and changes in wholesale market prices, where applicable, among other factors. A number of countries are considering, or implementing, methods to introduce and promote competition in the power generation and transmission industries. To the extent competitive pressures increase, the economics of independent power generation projects or electric transmission projects into which an Underlying Fund may invest may come under increasing pressure. In addition, utility asset owners may find it increasingly difficult to negotiate long-term procurement or sales agreements with counterparties, which may affect their profitability and financial stability.

Electricity generation and related infrastructure investments may be subject to extensive non-U.S. and U.S. federal, state and local energy laws and regulations in the U.S. and other jurisdictions where Underlying Portfolio Investments are located, including, without limitation, in the U.S. the Federal Power Act (the “FPA”), the Energy Policy Act of 2005, the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 2005 (the “PUHCA”), and the Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act. Changes in applicable energy laws or regulations, or in the interpretations or administration of these laws and regulations, could result in increased compliance costs or the need for additional capital expenditures. If an Underlying Portfolio Investment fails to comply with these requirements, it could also be subject to civil or criminal liability and the imposition of fines.

Under the FPA, the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (the “FERC”) regulates wholesale sales of electricity and the transmission of electricity in interstate commerce by “public utilities” as defined under the FPA and places constraints on the conduct of their business, including, among other things, rate and corporate regulation, including ownership and disposition of jurisdictional assets. In addition, the Underlying Portfolio Investments may be subject to regulation by state agencies. Prior FERC or state approvals may be required prior to making or disposing of certain investments in regulated public utilities. Public utilities under the FPA are required to obtain FERC acceptance of their rate schedules for wholesale sales of electricity and may also obtain authority to sell electricity at negotiated, market-based rates, which FERC customarily grants along with pre-granted authorization for a public utility to issue securities or incur indebtedness. If certain conditions are not met, FERC has the authority to deny, as well as later revoke, or revise market-based rate authority and require sales to be made based on cost-of-service rates. Even where market-based rate authority has been granted, FERC may impose various forms of market mitigation measures, including price caps, bidding rules and operating restrictions, where it determines that potential market power might exist and that the public interest requires such potential market power to be mitigated. Failure to obtain, or the loss of, market-based rate authority for any Underlying Portfolio Investment in a power generation asset that is not otherwise exempt from rate regulation could have a material adverse effect on such Underlying Portfolio Investment's revenues and business, including restricting the ability issue securities or incur indebtedness without prior approval from FERC.

By issuing Order No. 888/889, the FERC created Regional Independent System Operators ("ISOs") to satisfy the requirement of providing non-discriminatory access to transmission. The FERC further issued Order No. 2000 to encourage the creation of Regional Transmission Organizations ("RTOs") to administer the transmission grid on a regional basis throughout North America (including Canada). Each of the ISOs and RTOs have energy and ancillary services markets in which buyers and sellers could bid for or offer generation. While major sections of the U.S. operate under more traditional market structures, two-thirds of the U.S.'s electricity load is served in RTO regions. In connection therewith, power generators (whether by being a new market participant, by requesting interconnection or transmission service, or connection to the grid, etc.) are required to submit bids. As part of that process, ISOs and/or RTOs may require power generators to provide deposits or collateral as part of such market participation and grid access requests. In the event of non-performance, default or withdrawal from an interconnection request, the power generators are likely to lose such deposits. Such loss (and related circumstances thereof) is likely to have a material adverse effect on an Underlying Portfolio Investment's revenues and business, including restricting the ability to obtain further approval from the relevant ISOs and/or RTOs, or the FERC more generally. Such bids and requests might also be affected by new regulations (including delays therewith). On July 28, 2023, the FERC issued a new rule to reform procedures and agreements that electric transmission providers use to integrate new generating facilities into the existing transmission system (i.e., the "electric grid" or "grid"). Designated as Order No. 2023, the FERC adopted these reforms to reduce backlogs for projects seeking to connect to the transmission system, improve certainty in the interconnection processes managed by the dozens of transmission providers around the country, and ensure access to the transmission system for new technologies. The implementation of such reform, and such backlogs, could have a material adverse effect on Underlying Portfolio Investments' revenues and businesses.

State public utility commissions in U.S. states ("PUCs") have historically had broad authority to regulate both the rates charged by, and the financial activities of, electric utilities that sell electricity at retail and other public utilities that provide utility service to the public such as water utilities and telecommunication service providers, and a number of other matters relating to electric and other public utilities. State laws may also impose certain regulatory and reporting requirements on other owners and operators of generation facilities, distribution facilities and other public utilities. Independent power producers are considered to be public utilities in some states and are subject to varying degrees of regulation by PUCs, ranging from a requirement to obtain a "certificate of public convenience and necessity" to regulation of organizational, accounting, financial and other corporate matters. States may assert jurisdiction over the location and construction of electric generating facilities and other public utility facilities, and in certain situations, over the issuance of securities and the sale or other transfer of assets by these facilities.

Natural Gas Act & Interstate Commerce Act; State Regulations. Oil and natural gas transportation and related infrastructure investments may be subject to extensive non-U.S. and U.S. federal, state and local energy laws and regulations in the U.S. and other jurisdictions where Underlying Portfolio Investments are located, including without limitation, in the U.S., the Natural Gas Act (“NGA”), the Natural Gas Policy Act of 1978, the Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act, and the Interstate Commerce Act (“ICA”). Changes in applicable energy laws or regulations, or in the interpretations or administration of these laws and regulations, could result in increased compliance costs or the need for additional capital expenditures. If an Underlying Portfolio Investment fails to comply with these requirements, it could also be subject to civil or criminal liability and the imposition of fines.

Under the NGA, FERC regulates the construction of interstate transportation and storage facilities by interstate natural gas pipelines. It regulates the rates, terms and conditions of the transportation of natural gas in interstate commerce, but not the gas commodity, including the production, gathering or wholesale sale of natural gas. FERC’s regulations for interstate natural gas transmission in some circumstances also may affect the intrastate transportation of natural gas. Although natural gas prices are currently unregulated, Congress historically has been active in the area of natural gas legislation. There is no way to predict whether new legislation to regulate natural gas might be proposed, what proposals, if any, might actually be enacted by Congress or the various state legislatures, and what effect, if any, the proposals might have on an Underlying Portfolio Investment.

Under the ICA, FERC regulates the interstate transportation and storage of oil, condensate, and natural gas liquids and the terms and conditions of service. FERC-jurisdictional interstate pipelines are required to have a tariff on file with FERC, and changes to the tariff must be accepted by FERC to become effective. There are currently no federal price controls on oil production, and sales of oil, condensate and natural gas liquids by an Underlying Portfolio Investment. However, there can be no assurance that Congress will not enact controls at any time.

States do not currently regulate wellhead prices or engage in other similar direct economic regulation, but there can be no assurance that they will not do so in the future. The effect of these regulations may be to limit the amounts of natural gas that may be produced from wells that generate payments to us, and to limit the number of wells or locations that can be drilled. States regulate the retail sale of natural gas to customers located in their states, including establishing rates for gas distribution and the methods by which gas distribution companies recover the cost of gas purchased on behalf of customers. Most states require regulatory approval for financing, stock sales, asset transfers or acquisitions involving natural gas distribution companies operating in their states. Similar regulation may also apply in other non-U.S. jurisdictions where Portfolio Investments are made.

Investments in the Energy Sector. The operations of energy infrastructure companies are subject to many risks inherent in the transporting, processing, storing, distributing, mining or marketing of natural gas, natural gas liquids, crude oil, coal, refined petroleum products or other hydrocarbons, or in the exploring, managing or producing of such commodities, including, without limitation, damage to pipelines, storage tanks or related equipment and surrounding properties caused by hurricanes, tornadoes, floods, fires and other natural disasters or by acts of terrorism; inadvertent damage from construction and farm equipment; leaks of natural gas, natural gas liquids, crude oil, refined petroleum products or other hydrocarbons; and fires and explosions. These risks could result in substantial losses due to personal injury or loss of life, severe damage to and destruction of property and equipment and pollution or other environmental damage, and may result in the curtailment or suspension of their related operations, any and all of which could result in lower-than-expected returns to an Underlying Fund and subsequently, the Fund. To the extent that an Underlying Fund invests in companies providing services or products to participants in the natural resources exploration, development, extraction and transportation industries (such as, for example, oil, natural gas or minerals), the failure of such industry participants successfully to locate, develop, extract or transport such resources could materially impact the demand for the services or products of such companies, adversely affecting their performance and the Fund's investment therein.

Solar Power. Underlying Funds make investments in Underlying Portfolio Investments that will be engaged in solar power generation and power transmission. The development and construction of solar power plants can require long periods of time and substantial initial capital investments, and there are significant risks related to the development of solar power plants, including high initial capital expenditure costs to develop and construct functional power plant facilities and the related need for construction capital, the availability of favorable government tax and other incentives, the high cost and potential regulatory and technical difficulties in integrating into new markets, an often limited or unstable marketplace, competition from other sources of electric power, regulatory difficulties including obtaining necessary permits, difficulties in negotiating power purchase agreements with potential customers, educating the market regarding the reliability and benefits of solar energy products and services, costs associated with environmental regulatory compliance and competing with other solar energy companies and utilities.

The performance of solar power plants depends on meteorological and atmospheric conditions that fluctuate over time. The amount of electricity generated by a solar power plant depends upon many factors in addition to the quality of the solar resource, including solar panel performance, generation conductivity impairments resulting from wear on the solar panels, degradation of other components, icing or soiling of the panels and the number of times solar panels or an entire solar power plant may need to be shut down for maintenance or to avoid damage due to extreme weather conditions. In addition, conditions on the electrical transmission grid can impact the amount of energy a solar power plant can deliver to the grid. Solar power plants may be located in remote areas with limited transmission infrastructure where intense competition exists for access to, and use of capacity on, existing transmission facilities. Electricity transmission lines may experience unplanned outages due to system failures, accidents and severe weather conditions, or planned outages due to repair and maintenance, construction work and other reasons beyond the Underlying Fund's or the Fund's control. As electricity generated from solar power plants generally is not stored and must be transmitted or used once it is generated, electricity generation by a solar power plant may be curtailed during periods when electricity demand is low or when electricity is unable to be transmitted due to grid congestion or other grid constraints or issues. Such events could reduce the actual net power generation of solar power plants. In addition, other factors may further decrease electricity output, including reduced solar irradiation or severe weather conditions. The foregoing factors could have a material adverse effect on an affected Underlying Portfolio Investment's financial condition or results of operation.

Wind Power. Underlying Funds may make investments in Underlying Portfolio Investments that will be engaged in the development and operation of wind farms. The development of a wind farm can require substantial initial capital investments, and there are significant risks related to the development of wind farms, including the availability of favorable government tax and other incentives; the high cost and potential regulatory and technical difficulties in integrating into new markets; an often limited or unstable marketplace; competition from other sources of electric power and other wind farms; regulatory difficulties including obtaining necessary permits; difficulties in negotiating satisfactory turbine supply, engineering and construction agreements and with respect to connecting to the existing electricity transmission network; difficulties in negotiating power purchase agreements with potential customers, educating the market regarding the reliability and benefits of wind energy products and services; and costs associated with environmental regulatory compliance.

The performance of wind farms is dependent upon meteorological and atmospheric conditions that fluctuate over time. The amount of electricity generated by a wind farm depends upon many factors in addition to the quality of the wind resources, including but not limited to turbine performance, aerodynamic losses resulting from wear on the wind turbine, degradation of other components, icing or soiling of the blades and the number of times an individual turbine or an entire wind farm may need to be shut down for maintenance or to avoid damage due to extreme weather conditions. In addition, conditions on the electrical transmission network can impact the amount of energy a wind farm can deliver to the network. Wind farms may be located in remote areas with limited transmission networks where intense competition exists for access to, and use of capacity on, the existing transmission facilities. Electricity transmission lines may experience unplanned outages due to system failures, accidents and severe weather conditions, or planned outages due to repair and maintenance, construction work and other reasons beyond the Fund's control. As electricity generated from wind farms is generally not stored and must be transmitted or used once it is generated, some of the wind turbines of a wind farm may be turned off during such period when electricity is unable to be transmitted due to grid congestion or other grid constraints. Such events could reduce the actual net power generation of such wind farms. In addition, a number of other factors may further decrease electricity output, including wind speed or wind direction or other severe weather conditions. As a result, Underlying Portfolio Investments may experience significant financial losses from the inefficient electricity outputs.

Uncertainty of Estimates and Financial Projections in the Power Sector. Estimates of factors such as solar energy intensity and movement of wind and water flow (for solar, wind and hydroelectric power, respectively) by qualified engineers are often a key factor in valuing certain energy and power companies. The process of making these estimates is complex, requiring significant decisions and assumptions in the evaluation of available geological, geophysical, engineering and economic data. Estimates or projections of market conditions and supply and demand dynamics are key factors in evaluating potential investment opportunities and valuing the Fund's Portfolio Investments and related assets. The aforementioned estimates are subject to wide variances based on changes in market conditions, underlying assumptions and technical or investment-related assumptions.

Risks Associated with Ongoing Changes in the Power Generation and Utility Industry. An Underlying Fund may make certain investments in utility industries both in the U.S. and abroad. In many regions, including the U.S., the market dynamics (including competition) of the utility industry may change, primarily as a result of consumer demands, technological advances, greater availability of natural gas and other factors. Selected pressure may exist where a wholesale market operates. A number of countries are considering, or implementing, methods to introduce and promote competition in the power generation and transmission industries. As a result, additional significant competitors could become active in parts of the utility industry. Deregulation is fueling the current trend toward consolidation among domestic utilities, but also the disaggregation of many vertically integrated utilities into separate generation, transmission and distribution businesses. As a result, additional significant competitors could become active in the independent power industry. In addition, utility asset owners may find it increasingly difficult to negotiate long-term procurement or sales agreements with counterparties, which may affect an Underlying Fund's profitability and financial stability. To the extent competitive pressures increase and the pricing and sale of electricity assume more characteristics of a commodity business, the economics of independent power generation projects into which the Fund is permitted to invest may come under increasing pressure.

Power Purchase Agreement Risk. Underlying Portfolio Investments could enter into power purchase agreements ("PPAs"). Payments by power purchasers to such companies pursuant to their respective PPAs may provide the majority of such companies' cash flows. There can be no assurance that any or all of the power purchasers will fulfill their obligations under their PPAs or that a power purchaser will not become bankrupt or that upon any such bankruptcy its obligations under its respective PPA will not be rejected by a bankruptcy trustee. There are additional risks relating to the PPAs, including the occurrence of events beyond the control of a power purchaser that may excuse it from its obligation to accept and pay for delivery of energy generated by a company. The failure of a power purchaser to fulfill its obligations under any PPA or the termination of any PPA may have a material adverse effect on an Underlying Portfolio Investment.

Weather and Climatological Risks. Certain energy-related Underlying Portfolio Investments are particularly sensitive to weather and climate conditions. For example, solar power generators rely on the frequency and intensity of sunlight, wind turbines rely on the frequency and intensity of the wind, and companies focused on biomass rely on the production of crops, which can be adversely affected by droughts and other weather conditions. Furthermore, climate change may cause more extreme weather conditions and increased volatility in seasonal temperatures. Extreme weather conditions can interfere with operations and increase operating costs, and damage resulting from extreme weather may not be fully insured.

Renewable Energy Regulatory Support. Underlying Portfolio Investments in renewable energy and related businesses and/or assets currently enjoy support from international, supranational, national, state, provincial and local governments and regulatory agencies designed to finance or support the financing development thereof, such as the U.S. federal investment tax credit and federal production tax credit, U.S. Department of the Treasury grants, various renewable and alternative portfolio standard requirements enacted by several states, renewable energy credits and state-level utility programs such as system benefits charge and customer choice programs. Similar support, initiatives and arrangements exist in non-U.S. jurisdictions as well, in particular the EU. Non-U.S. jurisdictions may have more variable views on policies regarding renewable energy (and, for example, may be more willing or likely to abandon initiatives regarding renewable energy in favor of more carbon-intensive forms of traditional energy generation). The combined effect of these programs is to subsidize in part the development, ownership and operation of renewable energy projects, particularly in an environment where the low cost of fossil fuel may otherwise make the cost of producing energy from renewable sources uneconomic. The operation and financial performance of any renewable energy Underlying Portfolio Investment will likely be significantly dependent on governmental policies and regulatory frameworks that support renewable energy sources. There can be no assurance that government support for renewable energy will continue, that favorable legislation will pass or that the electricity produced by the renewable energy Underlying Portfolio Investments will continue to qualify for support through applicable renewable portfolio standards programs. The elimination of, or reduction in, government policies that support renewable energy could have a material adverse effect on a renewable energy Underlying Portfolio Investment's financial condition or results of operation. To the extent any tax credits, other favorable tax treatment or other forms of support for renewable energy are changed, any renewable energy Underlying Portfolio Investments may be negatively impacted. For example, on July 4, 2025, President Trump signed into law a bill commonly known as the "One Big Beautiful Bill Act" (the "OBBBA"), which significantly impacted energy tax credits. The OBBBA accelerated the phase-outs for solar and wind projects under the tech-neutral investment tax credits ("ITCs") and production tax credits ("PTCs"). The OBBBA, however, did not impact non-wind and solar generation projects (e.g., storage, hydropower and geothermal) to the extent that wind and solar projects were impacted. The OBBBA modified other PTCs such as the advance manufacturing PTC, the clean fuel production PTC and the carbon sequestration PTC. Finally, the OBBBA adopted foreign entity of concern ("FEOC") rules that impose certain foreign supply chain and ownership restrictions on taxpayers seeking certain ITCs and PTCs. For taxable years beginning after July 4, 2025, the FEOC rules prohibit a taxpayer that is a "prohibited foreign entity" (as defined in Section 7701(a)(51) of the Code) from claiming certain ITCs and PTCs. Additionally, for renewable energy projects that begin construction after 2025 (based upon the codified start-of-construction IRS guidance), such projects will be ineligible for ITCs and PTCs if the project received "material assistance from a prohibited foreign entity" (as defined in Section 7701(a)(52) of the Code). In addition to the enactment of the OBBBA, the Trump administration has signaled a disfavor of renewable energy tax credits and has instructed the Treasury Department to scrutinize taxpayers claiming ITCs and PTCs to ensure that such renewable energy projects are satisfying the newly enacted requirements provided for in the OBBBA. To that extent, on August 15, 2025, the Treasury Department issued guidance on the beginning of construction rules for wind and solar projects that are applicable for wind and solar projects that begin construction on or after September 2, 2025. The OBBBA and the FEOC rules may impact the viability of certain renewable energy projects Underlying Funds seek to invest in, and thus may have an adverse impact on the business and/or the assets of the Fund.

Digital Infrastructure Risks. Underlying Funds are likely to invest in businesses that are dependent on the demand for mobile and internet infrastructure, including data centers, macro cell towers, fiber networks and small cell networks and may be adversely affected by slowdown in such demand. For such mobile and internet infrastructure, demand may be impacted by various factors that are primarily outside the control of such Underlying Fund. Additionally, new technologies, including improvements in the efficiency, architecture, and design of wireless or cloud networks may also reduce current and/or anticipated demand for such mobile and internet infrastructure.

Risks Related to Data Center Investments. Underlying Funds may make investments relating to the development and construction of data centers. A decrease in the demand for such data center space, other technology- and connectivity-related real estate or the technology utilized thereon may have a significant adverse effect on the Underlying Fund and its data center investments, which may be more materially adverse than if such properties had a more diversified tenant base or less specialized use. The markets for data centers, as well as the industries in which data center customers operate, are characterized by rapidly changing technology, evolving industry and regulatory standards, frequent new service introductions, shifting distribution channels and changing customer demands. Data center infrastructure generally or certain individual centers may become obsolete due to the development of new systems to deliver power to or eliminate heat from the servers and evolving environment sustainability objectives globally or in local jurisdictions. Additionally, data center infrastructure could become obsolete as a result of data center topology changes or the development of new technology that does not require the levels of critical load and heat removal that data center facilities are designed to provide and could be run less expensively on a different platform. In addition, power and cooling systems are difficult and expensive to upgrade or reposition. An Underlying Fund's data center investments may not be able to efficiently upgrade or change these systems to meet new demands on a profitable basis or without incurring significant costs that it may not be able to pass on to an Underlying Portfolio Investment's customers. There can be no assurance that the costs of adapting to changes in industry practice or in technology will not have a material adverse effect on the Fund's investments. Changes in industry practice or in technology could also reduce demand for physical data center space. Potential tenants may choose to develop new data centers or expand their own existing data centers or consolidate into other data centers in which Underlying Funds do not invest, which could reduce demand for Underlying Fund's data center investments, create pricing pressure or result in the loss of one or more potential tenants, which could result in a loss of business for the data centers in which Underlying Funds invest and/or adversely affect pricing. If a data center property loses a tenant, there can be no assurance of replacing that tenant at a competitive rate or at all. Mergers or consolidations of technology companies could reduce further the number of potential tenants, causing dependence on a more limited number of tenants. In addition, a slowdown in economic growth and/or changes in interest rates or foreign exchange rates could lead to reduced corporate IT spending or reduced demand for data center space.

Furthermore, potential future regulations that apply to industries that the Underlying Funds' data center investments serve may require customers in those industries to seek specific requirements from their data centers that the Underlying Funds' data center investments are unable to provide. These may include physical security requirements applicable to the defense industry and government contractors and privacy and security regulations applicable to social media, SaaS cloud companies, financial services and health care industries. If such regulations are adopted, the Underlying Funds' data center investments could lose some customers or be unable to attract new customers in certain industries. A reduction in the demand for data center space, power or connectivity is likely to have a greater adverse effect on the Underlying Funds and its data center investments than if it owned a portfolio of investments with a less specialized use.

Data centers will rely on third parties to provide power, and there is no guarantee that these third parties will deliver such power in adequate quantities or on a consistent basis. If the amount of power available to the data centers that the Underlying Funds invest in are inadequate to support tenant requirements, such data centers may be unable to satisfy its obligations to its customers. In addition, data centers could be susceptible to power shortages and planned or unplanned power outages caused by these shortages and/or electric grid failures. Power outages could last beyond any backup and alternative power arrangements, which would harm the tenants and business of such data centers. Any loss of services or equipment damage could adversely affect both a data center's ability to generate revenues and its operating results, harm its reputation and potentially lead to customer disputes or litigation, which will adversely affect the Underlying Portfolio Investment.

In addition, data centers may be subject to risks and unanticipated costs associated with obtaining power from various utility companies. Utilities that serve data centers may be dependent on, and sensitive to price increases for, a particular type of fuel, such as coal, oil or natural gas or renewable energy sources. In addition, the price of these fuels and the electricity generated from them could increase as a result of: regulations intended to regulate carbon emissions and other pollutants, ratepayer surcharges related to recovering the cost of natural disasters, grid modernization charges, as well as other charges borne by ratepayers. Increases in the cost of power at any data centers could put those locations at a competitive disadvantage relative to data centers that are supplied power at a lower price.

Although data center tenants often are responsible for providing their own network connectivity, data centers still depend upon the presence of telecommunications carriers' fiber networks serving its data centers in order to attract and retain customers. The availability of carrier capacity will directly affect the data centers in which the Underlying Funds invest and the Underlying Funds' ability to achieve its investment objective. Any carrier may elect not to offer its services within the data centers in which the Underlying Funds invest. Any carrier that has decided to provide network connectivity to any data center may not continue to do so for any period of time. Further, some carriers are experiencing business difficulties or have announced consolidations. As a result, some carriers may be forced to downsize or terminate connectivity within a data center, which could have an adverse effect on the business of such data center's tenants and its operating results and, in turn, the Underlying Portfolio Investment's performance.

Data center investments may require construction and operation of a sophisticated redundant fiber network. The construction required to connect multiple carrier facilities to data centers is complex and involves factors outside of the Fund's or an Underlying Fund's control, including regulatory requirements and the availability of construction resources. If the establishment of highly diverse network connectivity to an Underlying Fund's data center investments does not occur, is materially delayed or is discontinued, or is subject to failure, such Underlying Fund's (and consequently the Fund's) operating results and cash flow may be materially adversely affected. Additionally, any hardware or fiber failures on this network may result in significant loss of connectivity to an Underlying Fund's data center investments. This could negatively affect the ability to attract new tenants or retain existing tenants for the data centers, which could have an adverse effect on such Underlying Fund's (and consequently the Fund's) business, financial condition and results of operations.

Additionally, the demand for data center financings in the U.S. and other markets has significantly increased in recent years. Such financings access capital markets, commercial banks, permanent capital and the private credit markets. The significantly increased demand for data center financings could result in lenders and other applicable sources of financing being constrained in the financing that they may provide for data center investments generally, both in respect of the amount of financing that they are able to provide and the related terms thereto. This could impair a data center's ability to obtain available financing on favorable terms, which could have an adverse effect on the business, financial condition and results of operations of such data center, Underlying Funds and in turn of the Fund.

Underlying Funds are subject to supply chain risks including commodity and labor pricing trends related to data center development capital expenditures, where a large proportion of any development project costs are under firm price commitments. Should the proportion of such project costs that are firm price commitments decline and prices for certain selective materials increase, including due to changes in trade policy, including recent international trade negotiations as well as the imposition of tariffs, a data center's overall development costs could increase significantly. Data centers will also be subject to general economic factors and supply chain risks, including high development costs during periods of rising inflation and interest rates. These risks could result in disruptions or delays or increased costs or prevent the completion of any development activities and related projects and growth of a data center, which could adversely affect its business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows, which would in turn negatively affect Underlying Funds and Underlying Portfolio Investments.

Further, Underlying Funds may undertake to make investments in development projects prior to data centers obtaining commitments from tenants to lease the related data center space. Such activities will require data centers to commit significant operational and financial resources, generally months or years in advance of securing tenant leases. Such development involves the risk that data centers will make significant investments and be unable to attract tenants to the relevant properties on a timely basis or at all.

The development activities of such properties also make data centers particularly susceptible to general economic slowdowns as well as adverse developments in the data center, internet and data communications and broader technology industries.

The industry is experiencing rising construction costs which reflect the increase in cost of labor and raw materials and supply chain and logistic challenges. The data centers in which the Underlying Funds invests in may not be able to create a reserve of materials to mitigate supply chain issues and inflation, such reserves may not be sufficient and ongoing delays, difficulty finding replacement products and continued high inflation could affect such data centers' business and growth and could have a material adverse effect on its operations and in turn, negatively impact the Underlying Funds and its investment performance. Additional or unexpected disruptions to the supply chain or inflationary pressures could significantly affect the cost of development projects and interfere with a data center's ability to meet commitments to tenants who have contracted for space in any data centers under construction in which the Underlying Funds invest.

Construction projects are dependent on permitting from public agencies and utility companies. Any delay in permitting could affect a data center's growth. These types of delays and stoppages related to permitting from public agencies and utility companies could worsen and have an adverse effect on a data center's operations and in turn, negatively affect the Underlying Fund's investment performance.

A data center's financial condition, results of operations, cash flow, cash available for distribution and ability to satisfy debt service obligations could be materially adversely affected as a result of any or all of these factors, which would in turn have an adverse effect on the Underlying Funds.

Telecommunications Sector Risks. Underlying Funds may make investments in the telecommunications sector. Investment opportunities in the telecommunications sector are driven largely by consumer demand, technological advances, and improvements in data collection and storage. Changes in the development and proliferation of new technologies, data transmission and/or consumer demand, as well as changes in the prevailing global economy, may adversely affect an Underlying Fund's ability to identify and consummate attractive Underlying Portfolio Investments in the telecommunications sector. Competitive pressures within the communications industry are intense and the securities of communications companies may be subject to significant price volatility. In addition, because the communications industry is subject to rapid and significant changes in technology, the companies that an Underlying Fund may invest in will face competition from technologies being developed or to be developed in the future by other entities, which may make such companies' products and services obsolete.

In particular, the ownership and maintenance of cell towers and other communications sites may be affected by a variety of factors, including consumer demand for wireless services, zoning, environmental, health, tax or other government regulations or changes in the application and enforcement thereof, governmental licensing of spectrum or restricting or revoking our customers' spectrum licenses, general economic conditions, capital expenditures on network infrastructure, technological changes, public perception of possible health risks associated with cellular and other wireless communications technology and maintenance of leasehold and sub-leasehold interests, fee interests, easements, licenses and rights-of-way.

European sustainability-related disclosure and reporting frameworks may lead to increased compliance costs. On 22 June 2020, the Official Journal of the European Union published a classification system that establishes a list of environmentally sustainable economic activities and sets out four overarching conditions that an economic activity has to meet in order to qualify as environmentally sustainable (Regulation (EU) 2020/852 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 18 June 2020 on the establishment of a framework to facilitate sustainable investment, and amending Regulation (EU) 2019/2088, "Taxonomy Regulation"). The Taxonomy Regulation, among other things, introduces certain mandatory disclosure and reporting requirements and supplements the framework set out in the Sustainable Financial Disclosure Regulation (Regulation (EU) 2019/2088 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 27 November 2019 on sustainability-related disclosures in the financial services sector, "SFDR"), which requires certain disclosures in relation to how sustainability risks and negative impacts on environmental and social factors are taken into account in investment decisions and for financial products which have a sustainable investment objective or which promote environmental or social characteristics. The disclosure requirements in the SFDR are supplemented by Commission Delegated Regulation (EU) 2022/1288 of 6 April 2022 supplementing Regulation (EU) 2019/2088 of the European Parliament and of the Council with regard to regulatory technical standards ("RTS") specifying the details of the content and presentation of the information in relation to the principle of "do no significant harm," specifying the content, methodologies and presentation of information in relation to sustainability indicators and adverse sustainability impacts, and the content and presentation of the information in relation to the promotion of environmental or social characteristics and sustainable investment objectives in pre-contractual documents, on websites and in periodic reports.

On August 2, 2021, a number of delegated regulations were published in the Official Journal of the EU. Commission Delegated Regulation (EU) 231/2013 ("Level 2 AIFMD") was amended to require sustainability risks to be integrated into the investment decision-making and risk management processes of AIFMs. The amendments apply from August 1, 2022 and will apply to the AIFM.

Compliance with frameworks of this nature may create an additional compliance burden and costs to funds and/or fund managers because of the need to collect certain information to meet the disclosure requirements. In addition, where there are uncertainties regarding the operation of the framework, a lack of official, conflicting or inconsistent regulatory guidance, a lack of established market practice and/or data gaps or methodological challenges affecting the ability to collect relevant data, funds and/or fund managers may be required to engage third party advisors and/or service providers to fulfil the requirements, thereby exacerbating any increase in compliance burden and costs. To the extent that Luxembourg or any other applicable jurisdictions enact similar laws and/or frameworks, there is a risk that the Fund may not be able to maintain alignment of a particular investment with such frameworks, and/or may be subject to additional compliance burdens and costs, which might adversely affect the investment returns of the Fund.

Regulation and Enforcement with Respect to Asset Managers' Sustainability Disclosures. Regulators in jurisdictions including the United States, United Kingdom, and European Union ("EU") have shown interest in improving transparency around the role of sustainability in asset managers' investment processes, in order to allow investors to better understand, scrutinize, and validate sustainability-related and other claims. For example, the SEC sometimes reviews compliance with sustainability-related commitments in examinations, and it has taken enforcement actions against registered investment advisers for not establishing adequate or consistently implementing sustainability-related policies and procedures to meet sustainability-related commitments to investors. Compliance with regulations concerning asset managers' sustainability and sustainability-related disclosures, can result in management burdens and costs because of, for example, the need to obtain advice from third-party advisors; implement specific governance, risk management systems, and internal controls; and collect information from and about investments. Further, changes to existing regulations, enactment of new regulations, and changes to enforcement patterns could subject the Portfolio Manager or Fund to additional compliance burdens, costs, and/or enforcement risks, or impact the Fund's ability to deliver on its investment strategy. The Portfolio Manager cannot guarantee that its current approach to sustainability (including the Sustainability Policy) will meet future regulatory requirements.

Sustainability Due Diligence Laws. The Portfolio Manager, the Underlying Funds and/or their portfolio companies are expected to be subject to laws and regulations requiring due diligence processes and internal compliance systems in relation to a range of human rights and environmental matters (collectively, "Sustainability Due Diligence Laws"). Compliance with Sustainability Due Diligence Laws may require the development or update of internal compliance and enterprise risk management policies and related procedures; assigning board and/or management oversight as well as day-to-day operational responsibility for in-scope human rights and environmental matters; implementation of periodic compliance risk assessments; updates to contractual frameworks and agreements; the development of preventative and/or corrective action plans; changes to purchasing, design, and distribution practices, where relevant; and the development or update of notification mechanisms and complaints procedures. The compliance burden and related costs may increase over time. Failure to comply with applicable Sustainability Due Diligence Laws may lead to investigations and audits, fines, exclusion from public procurement, other enforcement action or liabilities, including civil liability or liability from third-party claims, and reputational damage.

Demand for Wireless Infrastructure. An Underlying Fund could invest in tower infrastructure companies, whose revenue is typically supported by rapidly increasing consumer consumption of mobile data and the subsequent requirements of mobile carriers for improved wireless coverage and capacity. These businesses may be adversely affected by any slowdown in such demand growth. Additionally, a reduction in carrier network investment may materially and adversely affect these businesses (including reducing demand for tenant additions, amendments to existing customer leases or network services).

Demand for a tower's wireless infrastructure materially depends on the demand for antenna space from tower customers, which, in turn, depends on the demand for wireless coverage and capacity by their underlying customers. The willingness of tower customers to utilize wireless tower infrastructure, or renew or extend existing leases on the wireless tower infrastructure, is affected by numerous factors, including: (i) current and/or anticipated consumer demand for wireless coverage and capacity; (ii) availability and/or capacity of the tower company's wireless infrastructure and/or associated land interests; (iii) location of the tower company's wireless infrastructure; (iv) financial condition of the tower company's customers, including their profitability and availability or cost of capital, their failure to perform on their obligations, their lack of liquidity, or their entry into bankruptcy proceedings; (v) willingness of tower company customers to maintain and/or increase network investment or to make changes in their capital allocation strategy; (vi) availability and cost of FCC licensed spectrum for commercial use; (vii) use of active or passive network sharing, roaming, joint development, and/or resale agreements by tower company customers; (viii) mergers or consolidations between tower company customers that may lead to higher churn or lower leasing opportunities in the future; (ix) availability and cost of power; (x) changes in, or the success of, the business models of customers; (xi) government regulations, including local and/or state restrictions on the proliferation of wireless infrastructure; (xii) cost of constructing wireless infrastructure; (xiii) technological changes, including those (a) affecting the number or type of wireless infrastructure needed to provide wireless connectivity to a given geographic area or that may otherwise serve as substitute and/or alternative to wireless tower infrastructure or (b) that result in the obsolescence or decommission of certain existing wireless networks; and/or (xiv) the tower company's ability to efficiently satisfy the customers' service requirements.

A slowdown in demand for wireless coverage and capacity and/or wireless tower infrastructure may negatively impact the growth of companies in which the Fund invests or otherwise have a material adverse effect on the returns thereto. If customers or potential customers of an Underlying Portfolio Investment are unable to raise adequate capital to fund their business plans as a result of disruptions in the financial and credit markets or otherwise, they may reduce spending, which could adversely affect such Underlying Portfolio Investment's anticipated growth or the demand for such Underlying Portfolio Investment's wireless infrastructure or network services.

The amount, timing, and mix of an Underlying Portfolio Investment's customers' network investment is variable and can be significantly impacted by the matters described in these risk factors. Changes in carrier network investment is expected to affect the demand for an Underlying Portfolio Investment's wireless infrastructure. As a result, changes in carrier plans, such as delays in the implementation of new systems, new technologies (including small cells), or plans to expand coverage or capacity, may reduce demand for an Underlying Portfolio Investment's wireless infrastructure. Furthermore, the wireless industry could experience a slowdown or slowing growth rates as a result of numerous factors, including a reduction in consumer demand for wireless coverage or capacity or general economic conditions. There can be no assurance that weakness or uncertainty in the economic environment will not adversely affect the wireless industry, which may materially and adversely affect an Underlying Portfolio Investment's business, including by reducing demand for an Underlying Portfolio Investment's wireless infrastructure or network services. In addition, a slowdown may increase competition for site rental customers or network services. A wireless industry slowdown or a reduction in carrier network investment may materially and adversely affect in Underlying Portfolio Investments.

Failure of Physical Infrastructure. An Underlying Fund could invest in businesses that depend on providing customers with highly reliable services. Any failure of the physical infrastructure or offerings of Underlying Portfolio Investments may lead to significant costs and disruptions that could reduce the revenue of customers for such Underlying Portfolio Investments and harm the business reputation and financial results of these customers, which may impact the returns on such Underlying Portfolio Investments. Underlying Portfolio Investment's assets are expected to be subject to failure from numerous factors including: human error, equipment failure, physical, electronic and cyber security breaches, fire, earthquake, hurricane, flood, tornado and other natural disasters, extreme temperatures, water damage, fiber cuts, power loss, terrorist acts, sabotage and vandalism and failure of business partners who provide network connectivity.

Problems at one or more of an Underlying Fund's infrastructure assets, whether or not within such Underlying Fund's control, could result in service interruptions or significant equipment damage. Furthermore, Underlying Portfolio Investments are likely to be dependent upon internet service providers, telecommunications carriers and other website operators in the Americas, Asia-Pacific and Europe, the Middle East and Africa regions and elsewhere, some of which have experienced significant system failures and electrical outages in the past. If, for any reason, these providers fail to provide the required services, Underlying Portfolio Investment's business, financial condition and results of operations could be materially and adversely impacted.

Competition from New Entrants. An Underlying Fund could invest in companies providing fiber infrastructure. These companies likely face increased competition from companies in the telecommunications and media industries that currently do not focus on bandwidth infrastructure. While many businesses in the bandwidth infrastructure space are focused bandwidth infrastructure providers that operate on a regional or local basis, in some cases, Underlying Portfolio Investments may also compete with communications service providers who also own certain infrastructure assets and make them available to customers as an infrastructure service. These communication service providers include incumbent local exchange carriers and cable television companies. Several of these competitors have greater financial, managerial, sales and marketing, and research and development resources than the Fund will have and are able to promote their brands with significantly larger budgets. A few of these competitors also have significant fiber assets that they principally employ in the provision of their communications services. If any of these competitors with greater resources and/or significant fiber assets chose to focus those resources on bandwidth infrastructure, the ability of Underlying Portfolio Investments to compete in the bandwidth infrastructure industry could be negatively impacted. To the extent that communication service providers, cable television companies, and other media companies choose to distribute their content over their own networks, fiber providers could see a reduction in demand for services. Additionally, significant new entrants into the bandwidth services industry would increase supply, which could cause prices for fiber services to decline.

Failure to Retain Property Rights. An Underlying Fund could invest in mobile and internet infrastructure companies that hold certain rights to the land interests under towers and certain data center facilities. If such Underlying Fund fails to retain rights to this mobile and internet infrastructure, including the land interests under towers or certain data center facilities, an Underlying Portfolio Investment may be adversely affected. The property interests on which some of such Underlying Fund's mobile and internet infrastructure may reside, including the land interests under towers and certain data center facilities, could consist of leasehold and sub-leasehold interests, fee interests, easements, licenses, and rights-of-way. A loss of these interests may make it impossible to conduct business or generate revenue. For various reasons, an Underlying Fund may not always have the ability to access, analyze, or verify all information regarding titles or other issues prior to purchasing mobile and internet infrastructure. Further, an Underlying Fund may not be able to renew ground or facility leases on commercially viable terms. An Underlying Fund's ability to retain rights to the land interests on which its Underlying Portfolio Investment's towers reside, depends on such Underlying Fund's ability to purchase such land, including fee interests and perpetual easements, or renegotiate or extend the terms of the leases relating to such land. If such Underlying Fund is unable to retain rights to the property interests on which such Underlying Fund's mobile and internet infrastructure resides, such Underlying Fund may be adversely affected.

Mining Risks. An Underlying Fund could make investments in companies or projects that engage in mining, which is subject to inherent risks, including unexpected equipment or maintenance problems, variations in geological conditions, natural disasters, underground mine flooding, environmental hazards, industrial accidents, explosions caused by the ignition of coal dust or other explosive materials at mines sites and fires caused by the spontaneous combustion of coal and, in certain cases, periodic labor unrest. Whether a project is productive and profitable depends on a number of factors, many of which are beyond an Underlying Fund's control. Such risks may be more pronounced with respect to mining in areas that have limited or no production history, which may limit or reduce the ability to assess such risks.

Shipping Investments. An Underlying Fund could make investments in the shipping sector, which may include investments in shipping assets, and other public or private shipping-related investments. The ability of an Underlying Fund to make attractive shipping-related investments may be subject to a variety of considerations, including general supply/demand trends, overall economic development and growth, general market conditions, socioeconomic changes, and changes relating to governmental spending and related policies.

Any adverse or unexpected changes in such conditions could adversely affect an Underlying Fund's ability to consummate attractive shipping-related investments and/or the performance of any Underlying Portfolio Investment in the shipping sector.

Hydrologic Events Risk. An Underlying Fund could invest in hydropower assets and projects. There can be no assurance that the long-term historical water availability will remain unchanged or that no material hydrologic event will impact the conditions and amount of water flow in the rivers on which any such investments are located. Annual deviations in water availability from the long-term average and periods of relatively inactive hydrological conditions may constrain such investments' overall level of power generation and adversely impact their revenues and cash flows.

Waste Management Risks. An Underlying Fund may make investments in the waste management industry. The waste management industry is subject to extensive and evolving federal, state or provincial and local environmental, health, safety and transportation laws and regulations, and in some instances, international treaties, protocols and other agreements. These laws and regulations are administered by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency ("EPA"), Environment Canada, and various other federal, state, provincial and local environmental, zoning, transportation, land use, health and safety agencies. Many of these agencies regularly examine an Underlying Portfolio Investment's operations to monitor compliance with these laws and regulations and have the power to enforce compliance, obtain injunctions or impose civil or criminal penalties in case of violations. There has been an increase in both the amount of government regulation and the number of enforcement actions being brought by regulatory entities against operations in the waste services industry. There are significant capital expenditures in connection with environmental protection measures, including compliance with federal, state or provincial and local rules. There are costs associated with siting, design, permitting, operations, monitoring, site maintenance, corrective actions, financial assurance, and facility closure and post-closure obligations. The acquisition, development or expansion of a waste management or disposal facility or transfer station involves considerable time, effort and cost to obtain or maintain required permits and approvals. There are no assurances that an Underlying Portfolio Investment will be able to obtain or maintain required governmental approvals. Once obtained, operating permits are subject to renewal, modification, suspension or revocation by the issuing agency. Compliance with current regulations and future requirements may require significant capital and operating expenditures. Advancements in disposal alternatives may adversely affect an Underlying Portfolio Investment engaged in waste management.

In the U.S., the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act of 1980, as amended, ("CERCLA") which is also known as Superfund, provides for federal authority to respond directly to releases or threatened releases of hazardous substances into the environment that have created actual or potential environmental hazards. CERCLA's primary means for addressing such releases is to impose strict liability for cleanup of disposal sites upon current and former site owners and operators, generators of the hazardous substances at the site and transporters who selected the disposal site and transported substances thereto. Liability under CERCLA is not dependent on the intentional release of hazardous substances; it can be based upon the release or threatened release, even as a result of lawful, unintentional and non-negligent action, of hazardous substances as the term is defined by CERCLA and other applicable statutes and regulations. The EPA may issue orders requiring responsible parties to perform response actions at sites, or the EPA may seek recovery of funds expended or to be expended in the future at sites. Liability may include contribution for cleanup costs incurred by a defendant in a CERCLA civil action or by an entity that has previously resolved its liability to federal or state regulators in an administrative or judicially-approved settlement. Liability under CERCLA could also include obligations to a potentially responsible party, or PRP, that voluntarily expends site clean-up costs. Further, liability for damage to publicly-owned natural resources may also be imposed. An Underlying Fund may have potential liability under CERCLA as an owner or operator of facilities at which hazardous substances have been disposed and as a generator or transporter of hazardous substances disposed of at other locations.

Unforeseen Events Risks. The use of infrastructure assets could be interrupted or otherwise affected by a variety of events outside an Underlying Fund's control, including serious traffic accidents, natural disasters (such as fire, hurricanes, floods, tornadoes, tsunamis, windstorms, volcanic eruptions, earthquakes and typhoons), man-made disasters (including terrorism, war and riots), defective design and construction, slope failure, bridge and tunnel collapse, road subsidence, fuel prices, environmental legislation or regulation, general economic conditions, labor disputes, eminent domain and other unforeseen circumstances and incidents. Certain of these events have affected infrastructure assets in the past, and if the use of the infrastructure assets operated by Underlying Funds is interrupted in whole or in part for any period as a result of any such events, the revenues of such Underlying Portfolio Investments could be reduced and the costs of maintenance or restoration as well as the overall public confidence in such infrastructure assets could be reduced. There can be no assurance that such Underlying Portfolio Investment's insurance would cover liabilities resulting from claims relating to the design, construction, maintenance or operation of infrastructure assets, lost revenues or increased expenses resulting from such damage. In some cases project agreements could be terminated if the events described above were so catastrophic that they could not be remedied within a reasonable period or at all.

Political and Societal Challenges. Many infrastructure projects in which the Underlying Funds invest will be subject to siting requirements. Siting of projects is also frequently subject to regulation by applicable state, county and local authorities. For example, proposals to site an energy plant in a particular location may be challenged by a number of parties, including non-governmental organizations ("NGOs") and special interest groups based on alleged security concerns, disturbances to natural habitats for wildlife and adverse aesthetic impacts. Concerns can also arise regarding some of the techniques used in the extraction of shale gas in order to enhance recovery, such as the use of natural gas hydraulic fracturing (also known as "fracking"), which may require governmental permits or approvals and which have recently been the subject of heightened environmental concerns and public opposition in some jurisdictions. The failure of any Underlying Portfolio Investment or project to receive, renew or maintain any required permits or approvals or any inability to satisfy any requirement of any permits or approvals may result in increased compliance costs, the need for additional capital expenditures or a suspension of project operations.

Certain Restrictions on Ownership. Laws in certain jurisdictions where the Fund or any Underlying Fund are permitted to invest provide certain governmental agencies or executives authority to condition, restrict or block acquisitions by foreign persons of local entities if that acquisition threatens to impair national security or is otherwise deemed undesirable. In addition, many jurisdictions restrict foreign investments in infrastructure assets by placing limitations on foreign equity investments, implementing screening, or approval mechanisms and restricting the employment of foreigners as key personnel. These laws could limit the Fund's and an Underlying Fund's ability to invest in some entities or impose burdensome notification requirements, operational restrictions or delays in pursuing and consummating transactions, and could result in an Underlying Fund excluding (in whole or in part) the participation of certain limited partners (including the Fund) in any such transaction. As a result, other limited partners (which may include the Fund) may be required to provide additional capital to make the investment, and would have a larger pro rata share than if all the limited partners had participated. For example, in the U.S., the Committee on Foreign Investment in the United States ("CFIUS") has the authority to review any investment that could result in control of a U.S. business by a "foreign person," as well as non-controlling, non-passive investments by foreign persons in certain U.S. companies that are involved in specified ways with critical infrastructure, critical technologies, and sensitive personal data, and certain real estate transactions.

CFIUS may consider the Fund or any Underlying Fund to be a "foreign person" because it is "controlled" by foreign nationals. Consequently, certain investments by an Underlying Fund involving the acquisition of, or investment in, a U.S. business (including a U.S. branch or subsidiary of a company domiciled outside of the U.S.) will likely be subject to CFIUS' legal jurisdiction. If CFIUS approval is required or warranted for an investment, the CFIUS approval process may have outsized impacts on transaction certainty, timing, feasibility and cost, among other things. Significant CFIUS reform legislation was enacted on August 13, 2018 and regulations to implement this legislation became effective in February and October 2020. This legislation, together with the implementing regulations thereof, among other things expands the scope of CFIUS' jurisdiction to cover more types of transactions and empowers CFIUS to scrutinize more closely investments in U.S. companies that have a nexus to specified "critical technologies," "critical infrastructure" and/or "sensitive personal data," including non-controlling investments and investments involving foreign limited partners or co-investors that may be deemed "non-passive." In addition, certain transactions now legally require that CFIUS filings be made at least 30 days prior to closing, which can have outsized impacts on transaction timing and feasibility, and make an Underlying Fund less competitive in auction contexts compared to buyers that are not subject to CFIUS' jurisdiction. Additionally, an Underlying Fund could invest in companies that are, or may become, subject to CFIUS requirements or mitigation based on pre-existing foreign ownership and control; in such cases, CFIUS requirements or mitigation may adversely impact an Underlying Fund's ability to obtain or retain business or otherwise make it more difficult for an Underlying Fund to realize a suitable or expected return on an investment or transaction. Moreover, various countries (e.g., Canada, Germany, Australia, Japan) outside the U.S., as well as the EU, continue to establish new national security investment clearance regimes or strengthen their own national security investment clearance regimes, and the EU has recently established its own EU-level investment screening mechanism.

In the event that CFIUS or another national security investment clearance regulator reviews a particular investment by the Fund or an Underlying Fund, there can be no assurances that the Fund or such Underlying Fund will be able to maintain or proceed with such investment on acceptable terms. Additionally, CFIUS or another national security regulator may seek to impose limitations on investments that may prevent the Fund or an Underlying Fund from maintaining or pursuing investment opportunities that the Fund or such Underlying Fund otherwise would have maintained or pursued, which could adversely affect the performance of the Fund. There can be no assurance that an Underlying Fund will be able to (a) obtain all required CFIUS or other regulatory approvals that it does not yet have or that it may require in the future, (b) obtain any necessary modifications to existing regulatory approvals, or (c) maintain required regulatory approvals. Delay in obtaining or failure to obtain and maintain in full force and effect CFIUS or any other regulatory approvals, or amendments thereto, or delay or failure to satisfy any regulatory conditions or other applicable requirements could prevent operation of a facility or sales to third parties or could result in additional costs to an Underlying Fund and the Fund. In addition, heightened scrutiny of foreign direct investment worldwide may also make it more difficult for the Fund to identify suitable buyers for investments upon exit and may constrain the universe of exit opportunities for an investment in an Underlying Fund.

The Partnership Agreement contains certain provisions that may require certain Limited Partners to be excluded from participating in all or any part of an investment if the General Partner determines in good faith, amongst other reasons, that a significant delay, extraordinary expense or materially adverse effect on the Fund or such investment, or the Fund's ability to successfully acquire, hold, continue to hold, operate, sell, transfer, exchange, pledge or dispose of all or any portion of any investment or potential future investment of the Fund is likely to result from such participation. However, there can be no assurances that CFIUS or another national security investment clearance regulator will accept such provisions as adequate to mitigate any identified risks, if CFIUS or such other regulator believes that a Limited Partner's participation in an investment poses national security or other regulatory risks.

Force Majeure Risk. Force majeure is the term generally used to refer to an event beyond the control of the party claiming that the event has occurred, including, without limitation, acts of God, fire, flood, earthquakes, weather, outbreaks of an infectious disease, pandemic or any other serious public health concern, war, terrorism and labor strikes. In particular, terrorist attacks have caused instability in the world financial markets and may generate global economic instability. The continued threat of terrorism and the impact of military or other action have led to and will likely lead to increased volatility in prices for electricity, ethanol/biodiesel, coal, oil and gas and could adversely affect the Fund's financial results. In addition, investments in infrastructure assets may involve significant strategic assets that have a national or regional profile and may have monopolistic characteristics. The nature of these assets could expose them to a greater risk of being the subject of a terrorist attack than other assets or businesses. Some force majeure events may adversely affect a party's ability to perform its obligations, under a contract or otherwise, until it is able to remedy the force majeure event. In addition, the cost of repairing or replacing damaged assets could be considerable. Repeated or prolonged service interruptions may result in permanent loss of customers or other sources of revenue, substantial litigation or penalties for regulatory or contractual non-compliance. In some cases, project agreements can be terminated if the force majeure event is so catastrophic as to render it incapable of remedy within a reasonable, pre-agreed time period. Force majeure events that are incapable of, or costly to, cure may also have a permanent adverse effect on an investment. Certain force majeure events (such as war or an outbreak of an infectious disease) could have a broader negative impact on the world economy and international business activity generally, or in any of the countries in which the Fund and an Underlying Fund is permitted to invest specifically. If a major uninsured loss occurs, the Fund or an Underlying Fund could lose both invested capital in and anticipated profits from the affected investments. Any of the foregoing may therefore adversely affect the performance of the Fund, an Underlying Fund and its investments.

Public Health Risk. Certain countries have been susceptible to epidemics, such as severe acute respiratory syndrome, avian flu, H1N1/09 flu and most recently, COVID-19, which have been or may be designated as pandemics by world health authorities. The outbreak of such epidemics or any other serious public health concern, together with any resulting restrictions on travel or quarantines imposed, could have a negative impact on the economy and business activity globally (including in any of the countries in which the Fund and the Underlying Funds may invest) and thereby could adversely affect the performance of the Underlying Portfolio Investments. Furthermore, the rapid development of epidemics could preclude prediction as to their ultimate adverse impact on economic and market conditions, and, as a result, present material uncertainty and risk with respect to the Fund and the performance of the Underlying Portfolio Investments and similarly may have an adverse effect on the performance of prior Macquarie Fund investments described in this Memorandum.

Public Health Emergencies. Pandemics and other widespread public health emergencies, including outbreaks of infectious diseases such as SARS, H1N1/09 flu, avian flu, Ebola and COVID-19, have resulted in historic market volatility and disruption, and future such emergencies have the potential to materially and adversely impact economic production and activity in ways that are impossible to predict, all of which may result in significant losses to the Fund.

The ultimate impact of any such health emergency — and any resulting decline in economic and commercial activity — on global economic conditions, and on the operations, financial condition and performance of any particular industry or business, is impossible to predict, but could have a significant adverse impact and result in significant losses to the Fund. The extent of the impact on the Fund's and its Underlying Fund's operational and financial performance will depend on many factors, all of which are highly uncertain and cannot be predicted, and this impact may include significant reductions in revenue and growth, unexpected operational losses and liabilities, impairments to credit quality and reductions in the availability of capital. These same factors may limit the ability of the Fund to source, diligence and execute new investments and to manage, finance and exit investments in the future, and governmental mitigation actions may constrain or alter existing financial, legal and regulatory frameworks in ways that are adverse to the investment strategy the Fund intend to pursue, all of which could adversely affect the Fund's ability to fulfill its investment objectives. They may also impair the ability of Underlying Portfolio Investments or their counterparties to perform their respective obligations under debt instruments and other commercial agreements (including their ability to pay obligations as they become due), potentially leading to defaults with uncertain consequences. In addition, the operations of the Fund, the Underlying Funds, and the Underlying Portfolio Investments, the General Partner and Macquarie may be significantly impacted, or even temporarily or permanently halted, as a result of any such health emergencies, or any measures, restrictions, remote-working requirements and other factors related thereto, including its potential adverse impact on the health of any such entity's personnel. These measures may also hinder such entities' ability to conduct their affairs and activities as they normally would, including by impairing usual communication channels and methods, hampering the performance of administrative functions such as processing payments and invoices, and diminishing their ability to make accurate and timely projections of financial performance.

Social Unrest. Recent events, concerning democracy, discrimination, race relations and inequality have led to protests, demonstrations, marches and other forms of political and social activism on a local, regional, national and international level as well as rioting in some instances. Such activism, which has ranged from peaceful, in some instances, to violent, has resulted in curfews, widespread looting, damage to government property (as was the case, for example, during the Capitol Hill riots of January 6, 2021), the deployment of the national guard and other local and national interference, and could lead to increased political and social volatility and uncertainty. While the overall effect of such activism remains unknown, investors should note that this type of volatility and uncertainty could materially and adversely impact the Fund and/or the Underlying Funds and the projects, businesses and assets in which the Underlying Funds invest, as well as the infrastructure space more generally.

Strategic Asset Risks. The Underlying Portfolio Investments may control assets, interests or projects that constitute significant strategic value to public or governmental bodies. Given the national or regional profile and/or their irreplaceable nature, strategic assets may constitute a higher risk target for terrorist acts or political actions. Given the essential nature of the services provided by strategic infrastructure assets, there is also a higher probability that the services provided by such assets will be in constant demand. Should an owner of such assets fail to make such services available, users of such services may incur significant damage and may, due to the characteristics of the strategic assets, be unable to replace the supply or mitigate any such damage, thereby heightening any potential loss from third-party claims.

Terrorism Risks. An Underlying Fund could acquire significant strategic assets. Strategic assets are assets that have a national or regional profile and may have monopolistic or oligopolistic characteristics. The very nature of these assets could generate additional risk not common in other industry sectors and could expose them to a greater risk of being the subject of a terrorist attack than other assets or businesses. Any terrorist attacks that occur at or near infrastructure facilities would likely cause significant harm to employees, assets and, potentially, the surrounding community. Insurers may offer a limited amount of or no insurance coverage for liability to persons other than employees or passengers for claims resulting from acts of terrorism, war or similar events. A terrorist attack involving the property of an infrastructure asset, or property under control of an Underlying Portfolio Investment, may result in liability far in excess of available insurance coverage. A terrorist attack on an infrastructure asset may also have adverse consequences for all assets of that type, including assets in which the Fund invests. For example, as a result of a terrorist attack in the vicinity of an infrastructure asset, the infrastructure asset may be forced to increase preventative security measures or expand its insurance coverage, adversely affecting the profitability of investment in that asset. Similarly, a terrorist attack could cause reduced patronage, usage and demand for an entire class of infrastructure assets or for infrastructure investments in the region of the terrorist attack, which could adversely affect the profitability of one or more Underlying Portfolio Investments.

Valuation Risk. The valuation of the Fund's assets will primarily be based upon the reported valuations of the Fund's Portfolio Investments by the managers of the Underlying Funds. Given the nature of the Underlying Funds' investments, valuation may be difficult. In most cases given the relative unique nature of infrastructure in a given sector in a given location, their specific financial and legal structuring, there will rarely be market comparables appropriate to challenge the valuation calculated using a discounted cash flows method. The legal and regulatory infrastructure and the disclosure, accounting, auditing and reporting standard in certain of the countries in which Portfolio Investments may be made by the Fund may, in many respects, be less stringent and not provide the same degree of protection or information to Limited Partners as would generally apply in their home countries. Although the Fund itself will prepare its accounts in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles, the assets, liabilities, profits and losses appearing in published financial statements of companies, ventures or projects in which Portfolio Investments are made may not reflect their financial position or results of operations in the way they would be reflected had such financial statements been prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles in an investor's home country. There can be no assurance that the Underlying Fund managers' valuations will be reflecting of the true value of the Underlying Portfolio Investments. The Fund will rely upon the Portfolio Manager for valuation of any Direct Investments. The Portfolio Manager is permitted to engage qualified valuation professionals to assist in this determination; however, it is not required to do so. There can be no assurance that the Portfolio Manager's valuations of any such Direct Investments will be reflecting of the true value thereof. As a result, the value of any of the Fund's Portfolio Investments may be less than as stated in financial or other statements prepared or published by the relevant Underlying Funds and/or the valuations of any Direct Investments determined by the Portfolio Manager, which in turn would mean that the net assets of the Fund reported at a given time may not accurately reflect the realistic value of all or any of the Portfolio Investments. Because the Management Fee after the expiration of the Investment Period will be calculated based on the reported fair market values of the Fund's Portfolio Investments, this could mean that the Management Fee borne by Limited Partners will be greater than the Management Fee would be if the reported fair market values were reflective of the realistic values of the Portfolio Investments.

The actual realized returns generated by unrealized Portfolio Investments will depend on, among other factors, future operating results, the value of the assets and market conditions at the time of disposition, any related transaction costs and the timing and manner of sale, all of which may differ from the assumptions on which the valuations used in the prior performance data contained in this Memorandum are based. Valuations are subject to determinations, judgments and opinions, and other third parties or Limited Partners may disagree with such valuations. There can be no assurance that Portfolio Investments will ultimately be realized for amounts equal to, or greater than, these valuations, or that the past performance information based on such valuations will accurately reflect the realization value of such Portfolio Investments.

Portfolio Valuation and Adjustments. Valuations of the Fund's portfolio, which will affect the Fund's performance results, will involve uncertainties and judgmental determinations. When estimating fair value, the General Partner will apply a methodology it determines to be appropriate based on the reported valuations of the Underlying Funds and accounting guidelines and the applicable nature, facts and circumstances of the respective investments. However, the process of valuing securities for which reliable market quotations are not available is based on inherent uncertainties and the resulting values may differ from values that would have been determined had a ready market existed for such securities and may differ from the prices at which such securities may ultimately be sold. Further, third party pricing information may at times not be available regarding certain of the Fund's securities, derivatives, and other assets. If the General Partner's valuation of the Fund's securities should prove to be incorrect, the net asset value of the Fund's Underlying Portfolio Investments could be adversely affected. Absent bad faith or manifest error, valuation determinations in accordance with MAM Solutions' valuation policy will be conclusive and binding.

In addition, certain decisions the Portfolio Manager may make in respect of valuations could adversely affect then-existing and future investors. In particular, as described in Section 10 – “Detailed Term Sheet,” the Portfolio Manager reserves the right, in certain circumstances, to transfer Portfolio Investments from the Fund, on the one hand, to co-investors or other Macquarie Funds, on the other hand, without revaluing the underlying assets, which may result in the Fund acquiring assets for prices in excess of their fair values and/or selling assets to co-investors or other Macquarie Funds for less than their fair values.

Investments Longer Than Term. The Fund is authorized make investments that may not be disposed of prior to the date the Fund will be dissolved, either by expiration of the Fund's term or otherwise. The General Partner has a limited ability to extend the term of the Fund, and the Fund may be required to sell, distribute or otherwise dispose of investments at a disadvantageous time as a result of dissolution. Upon the commencement of winding up of the Fund, the General Partner (or the relevant liquidator) will be required to seek to liquidate the Fund's assets by reducing such assets of the Fund to cash and cash equivalents, on such terms as the General Partner or such liquidator shall deem to be in the interests of the Fund in all of the circumstances. In discharging the obligations that arise as a result of the commencement of the winding up, the General Partner or liquidator will be required to exercise its judgment to balance its obligation to ensure the expeditious liquidation of the Fund assets against the interest of Limited Partners to obtain fair value for such assets taking into account any contractual, tax, market, legal or other considerations (including legal restrictions on the ability of a Limited Partner to hold any assets to be distributed in-kind). Consequently, there can be no assurances with respect to the time frame in which the winding up and the final distribution of proceeds of the liquidation of the remaining Fund assets to the Limited Partners will occur. Such winding-up and final distribution may occur several years after the Fund commences winding up.

Non-Controlling Interests in Underlying Funds; Co-Investment Risk. The Fund's interests in the Underlying Funds will be limited partner interests, and the Fund will have limited ability to protect its interests in the Underlying Funds and to influence such Underlying Funds' management. This could result in the Fund's investments being frozen in minority positions that incur substantial losses. In such cases, the Fund will be significantly reliant on the managers of the Underlying Funds and on the existing management and board of directors of the Underlying Portfolio Investments, which in most cases will include representation of other financial investors with whom the Fund is or is not affiliated and whose interests may conflict with the interests of the Fund. In addition, the Fund expects to co-invest with financial, strategic or other third-party co-investors through joint ventures or other entities. Investments alongside co-investors, including an Underlying Fund, another Macquarie-managed vehicle and any other co-investment vehicle, will involve additional risks that may not be present in investments where a co-investor is not involved, including the possibility that a co-investor or co-investors may have interests or objectives that are inconsistent with those of the Fund or may be in a position to take actions contrary to the Fund's investment objectives or may become bankrupt or otherwise default on their obligations and such investment may involve risks in connection with such third-party involvement, including the possibility that a third party may be in a position to take (or block) action in a manner contrary to the Fund's investment objectives or may have financial, legal or regulatory difficulties resulting in a negative impact on such investment. In addition, the Fund may in certain circumstances be liable for the actions of its third-party and/or affiliated co-investors. In those circumstances where such third parties involve a management group or strategic investor, such third parties may receive compensation arrangements relating to such investments, including incentive compensation arrangements. Investments made with third parties in joint ventures or other entities also may involve carried interests/performance fees and/or other fees payable to such third-party partners or co-investors.

Each of Macquarie and the Fund is expected to make and pursue investments (with the Fund bearing costs as Partnership Expenses in connection therewith), and at times, alongside each other, with the expectation of offering a portion of its interests therein as a co-investment opportunity to Limited Partners and/or other third parties. There can be no assurance that Macquarie and/or the Fund will be successful in transferring such co-investment, in whole or in part. In the event that Macquarie and/or the Fund is not successful in transferring such co-investment, in whole or in part, (i) Macquarie may be a co-investor with the Fund indefinitely and (ii) the Fund may consequently hold a greater concentration and have more exposure in the related Portfolio Investment than initially was intended, which could make the Fund more susceptible to fluctuations in value resulting from adverse economic and/or business conditions with respect thereto.

Moreover, a Portfolio Investment by the Fund that is not transferred to co-investors on the terms originally anticipated or at all could significantly reduce the Fund's overall investment returns.

Contingent Liabilities on Disposition of Investments. Many of the Fund's Portfolio Investments will involve private securities. In connection with the disposal of a Portfolio Investment in private securities, the Fund generally will be required to make representations and give warranties about the Portfolio Investment typical of those made in connection with the sale of interests in private funds. The Fund also may be required to indemnify the purchasers of such investment to the extent that any such representations are inaccurate or with respect to certain potential liabilities. These arrangements may result in the occurrence of contingent liabilities for which the General Partner is authorized to establish reserves or escrows. In that regard, Limited Partners may be required to return amounts distributed to them to fund obligations of the Fund, including indemnity obligations, subject to certain limitations set forth in the Partnership Agreement. Furthermore, under the Delaware Revised Uniform Limited Partnership Act (the "Act"), each Limited Partner that receives a distribution in violation of such Act will, under certain circumstances, be obligated to recontribute such distribution to the Fund.

Underlying Funds will be subject to similar liabilities in connection with the disposal of an Underlying Portfolio Investment, and such Underlying Fund likely will be required to make representations and give warranties about the business and financial affairs of the Underlying Portfolio Investment typical of those made in connection with the sale of a business. Underlying Funds may be required to indemnify the purchasers of such investment to the extent that any such representations are inaccurate or with respect to certain potential liabilities. These arrangements may result in the occurrence of contingent liabilities for which the Underlying Fund manager may establish reserves or escrows. In that regard, the Fund may be required to return amounts distributed to it to fund obligations of the Underlying Funds, including indemnity obligations. The Limited Partners may be required to return distributions previously received by them from the Fund to fund such obligations. Amounts so returned generally will not reduce a Limited Partner's undrawn capital commitment to the Fund.

Placement Agents. Macquarie Capital (USA) Inc., Macquarie Infrastructure and Real Assets (Sales) Canada Ltd, Macquarie Infrastructure and Real Assets (Europe) Ltd, Macquarie Asset Management Europe S.à r.l., Macquarie Funds Management Hong Kong Limited, Macquarie Securities Korea Limited, Macquarie Fund Advisers Pty Limited, Macquarie Asset Management Japan Co., Ltd, Macquarie Infrastructure Management (Asia) Pty Ltd, Macquarie Investment Management Switzerland GmbH (collectively, the "Macquarie Placement Agents") (collectively, the "Third-Party Placement Agents") are acting as placement agents for the Interests and, in that capacity, act for the General Partner and in such capacity would not act as investment advisers to potential investors in connection with the offering of the Interests. Macquarie Placement Agents are affiliates of, and under common control with, the Portfolio Manager. Potential investors must independently evaluate the offering and make their own investment decisions. The Third-Party Placement Agents are not current advisory clients of Macquarie or investors in any Macquarie Fund. For providing solicitation and other services with respect to certain investors who invest in the Fund, the Third-Party Placement Agents will receive cash compensation, generally based on a percentage of the amount of commitments of investors that each such Third-Party Placement Agent introduces to the General Partner. Third-Party Placement Agent fees will ultimately be borne directly or indirectly by the Portfolio Manager rather than the Fund; however, the Fund is expected to bear certain out-of-pocket expenses related to a Third-Party Placement Agent's engagement and solicitation of investors. As a result of this compensation, the Third-Party Placement Agents have an incentive and potential conflict of interest to recommend an investment in the Fund. Potential investors should also note that at various times, Third-Party Placement Agents act as placement agents for other fund sponsors and funds, including unaffiliated fund sponsors and funds, which may offer interests that are similar to the Interests. Those unaffiliated sponsors may pay placement fees on terms different from the fees that the placement agents will receive from the General Partner in connection with this offering, and this difference in fees may influence the placement agents to introduce or not introduce potential investors to the General Partner. Accordingly, potential investors should recognize that the Third-Party Placement Agents' participation as placement agents for the Interests will potentially be influenced by their interest in such compensation, including differentials in compensation offered by Macquarie or other sponsors for which each Third-Party Placement Agent acts as a placement agent. The Third-Party Placement Agents also expect to do business with and earn fees or commissions from other investment funds and their portfolio companies and affiliates of the General Partner or Macquarie. Examples of such business may include, without limitation: provision of financing or other investment banking services; lending or arranging credit; and provision of prime brokerage. Each potential investor should consider these issues in making its investment decision.

Hedging Policies. The Fund, Underlying Funds and certain Underlying Portfolio Investments are authorized employ hedging techniques designed to reduce risks, such as from adverse movements in prices, inflation, interest rates, currency exchange rates or general stock exchange movements. These transactions generally will involve the purchase and sale of commodities or commodity futures, the use of forward contracts, swap agreements, put and call options, floors, collars or other arrangements. While such transactions may reduce certain risks, such transactions themselves may entail certain other risks. Significant among these risks include counterparty risks as well as adverse price movements. Such transactions may be difficult to value, may be illiquid and may be subject to wide swings in valuation caused by changes in the price of commodities or other underlying assets. Thus, while the Fund is expected to benefit from the use of these hedging mechanisms, unanticipated changes in prices, inflation, interest rates, currency exchange rates or stock exchange movements may result in a poorer overall performance for the Fund than if the Fund or Underlying Portfolio Investments had not entered into such hedging transactions. In addition, suitable hedging instruments may not continue to be available at a reasonable cost, particularly in light of increasingly stringent regulatory oversight. See also “Registration under the U.S. Commodity Exchange Act”, “Enhanced Scrutiny and Potential Regulation of the Private Investment Fund Industry and the Financial Services Industry” and “European Regulatory Environment” herein.

OFAC, FCPA, Corruption and Anti-Bribery Considerations. Economic sanction laws and export controls in the U.S. and other jurisdictions may prohibit any Underlying Funds, Macquarie, MAM Solutions, the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager and the Fund from transacting with or in many countries and with certain individuals and companies. In the U.S., the U.S. Department of the Treasury's Office of Foreign Assets Control (“OFAC”) administers and enforces laws, Executive Orders and regulations establishing U.S. economic and trade sanctions. The U.S. Department of Commerce enforces export controls related to U.S.-origin products. Such sanctions and export controls prohibit, among other things, transactions with, and the provision of services to, certain foreign countries, territories, entities and individuals. In addition, certain programs administered by OFAC prohibit dealing with individuals or entities in certain countries regardless of whether such individuals or entities appear on the lists maintained by OFAC. These types of sanctions may significantly restrict or completely prohibit the Fund's or one or more Underlying Funds' investment activities.

The General Partner, the Portfolio Manager and the Fund intend to comply with the U.S. Foreign Corrupt Practices Act (the “FCPA”) and other anti-corruption and anti-bribery laws and regulations, as well as anti-boycott regulations, to which they are subject. As a result, the Fund may be adversely affected because of its unwillingness to participate in transactions that violate such laws or regulations. Such laws and regulations may make it difficult in certain circumstances for the Fund to act successfully on investment opportunities and for Underlying Portfolio Investments to obtain or retain business.

While Macquarie has developed and implemented policies and procedures designed to ensure strict compliance by Macquarie and its personnel with the FCPA and local laws of similar import, such policies and procedures may not be effective in all instances to prevent violations. In addition, in spite of Macquarie's policies and procedures, Underlying Funds and Underlying Portfolio Investments may engage in activities that could result in FCPA violations. Any determination that Macquarie, the Fund, any Underlying Fund or any Underlying Portfolio Investments or any of their respective personnel have violated the FCPA or other applicable anti-corruption laws or anti-bribery laws could subject them to, among other things, civil and criminal penalties, material fines, profit disgorgement, injunctions on future conduct, securities litigation and a general loss of investor confidence, any one of which could adversely affect Macquarie's, the Fund's and any such Underlying Fund or Underlying Portfolio Investment's business prospects and/or financial position, as well as the Fund's ability to achieve its investment objectives and/or conduct its operations.

Temporary Investments. The Fund is permitted to invest on an interim basis in a Portfolio Investment in anticipation of a syndication or co-investment. Such temporary investments may remain outstanding. In such event, the terms of such temporary investments may not adequately reflect the risk associated with the unsecured position taken by the Fund.

Deployment of Capital; Impact on Investment Returns. In light of the need to be able to deploy capital quickly to capitalize on potential investment opportunities or to establish reserves for anticipated debts, liabilities or obligations, including liquidity needs, cash may be held by the Fund in money market investments pending deployment into other investments and/or the payment of debts, liabilities or obligations, the amount of which may at times be significant. While the duration of any such holding period is expected to be relatively short, in the event the Fund is unable to find suitable investments, such money market investments may be held for longer periods, which would be dilutive to overall investment returns. It is not anticipated that the temporary investment of such cash into money market investments will generate significant interest, and Limited Partners should understand that such low interest payments on the temporarily invested cash may adversely affect the overall returns of the Fund.

Risks from Operations of Other Investments. Other Macquarie Funds and certain Underlying Funds have made (and/or will in the future make) investments in portfolio companies that have operations and assets in many jurisdictions around the world. It is possible that the activities of one such portfolio company may have adverse consequences on one or more other such portfolio companies (including one or more Underlying Portfolio Investments), even in cases where the portfolio companies are held by an Underlying Fund on the one hand and a separate Macquarie Fund on the other hand and have no connection to each other. In particular, the laws and regulations governing the limited liability of such companies vary from jurisdiction to jurisdiction, and in certain contexts (including, by way of example only, bankruptcy, environmental liabilities, consumer protection or pension/labor law matters) the laws of certain jurisdictions may provide not only for carve-outs from limited liability protection for the portfolio company that has incurred the liabilities, but also for recourse to assets of other entities under common control with, or that are part of the same economic group as, such company. For example, if one of Macquarie's portfolio companies is subject to bankruptcy or insolvency proceedings in a jurisdiction and is found to have liabilities under the local consumer protection laws, the laws of that jurisdiction may permit authorities or creditors to file a lien on, or to otherwise have recourse to, assets held by an Underlying Portfolio Investment held by an Underlying Fund in that jurisdiction. In addition, an Underlying Fund likely will compete for investment opportunities with one or more Macquarie Funds. There can be no assurance that one or more Underlying Funds and/or the Fund will not be adversely affected as a result of the foregoing risks.

Non-U.S. Investments and Risks. Non-U.S. investments such as those which the Fund or any Underlying Fund is permitted to pursue involve certain factors not typically associated with U.S. investments, including risks relating to (i) differences in infrastructure policies and regulations, (ii) currency exchange matters, such as fluctuations in the rate of exchange between the U.S. dollar and the various non-U.S. currencies in which the Fund's or any Underlying Fund's non-U.S. investments may be denominated, and costs associated with conversion of investment principal and income from one currency into another, (iii) exposure to fluctuations in interest rates payable with respect to the instruments in which the Fund or any Underlying Fund invests, (iv) differences in conventions relating to documentation, settlement, corporate actions, stakeholder rights and other matters, (v) differences between the U.S. and non-U.S. securities markets, including potential price volatility in and relative illiquidity of some non-U.S. securities markets, (vi) the absence of uniform accounting, auditing and financial reporting standards, practices and disclosure requirements and varying degrees of government supervision and regulation, (vii) certain economic and political risks, including potential exchange control regulations and restrictions on non-U.S. investment and repatriation of capital, nationalization of business enterprises, the risks of political, economic or social instability, the possibility of substantial rates of inflation and the possibility of expropriation or confiscatory taxation, (viii) tax-related issues, including the possibility of non-U.S. withholding or other taxes on income and gain recognized with respect to investments, confiscatory foreign taxes and double taxation of income earned overseas and (ix) differences in applicable legal systems, including the possibility that the Fund or any Underlying Fund may experience difficulty in asserting legal claims or obtaining legal remedies in non-U.S. jurisdictions. Additionally, certain countries in which the Fund or any Underlying Fund are permitted to invest have in the past, and may in the future, experience political and social instability that could adversely affect the Fund's or any Underlying Fund's investments in such countries. Such instability could result from, among other things, popular unrest associated with demands for improved political, economic and social conditions and popular unrest in opposition to government policies that facilitate direct foreign investment. Governments of certain of these countries have exercised and continue to exercise substantial influence over many aspects of the private sector. The Fund generally does not intend to obtain political risk insurance. Accordingly, government actions in the future could have a significant effect on economic conditions in such countries, which could affect private sector companies and the return from investments. Exchange control regulations, expropriation, confiscatory taxation, nationalization, restrictions on repatriation of capital, renunciation of foreign debt, political, economic or social instability or other economic or political developments could adversely affect the assets of the Fund or an Underlying Fund held in a particular country. There can be no assurance that adverse developments with respect to such risks will not adversely affect the assets of the Fund or an Underlying Fund that are held in certain countries.

Geographic Risk. The Underlying Funds are expected to invest across various geographies and jurisdictions. This may impact the Underlying Funds' ability to exit investments in certain countries and may impact the prospects of certain Underlying Portfolio Investments. In addition, economic problems in a single country are increasingly affecting other markets and economies. A continuation of this trend could adversely affect global economic conditions and world markets and, in turn, could adversely affect an underlying Fund's and the Fund's performance. The economies of particular individual countries is likely to differ favorably or unfavorably from one another in such respects as growth of gross domestic product, rate of inflation, currency depreciation, capital reinvestment, resource self-sufficiency and balance of payments position. Governments of many countries have exercised and continue to exercise substantial influence over many aspects of the private sector, including owning or controlling such countries' large companies. In addition, certain regions create risks as a result of having less stable political regimes and/or legal, regulatory or economic environments. As a result, investments made by the Underlying Funds in such regions creates risks which would not apply to investments made in the U.S. or Canada, and such investments may adversely impact the overall performance of an Underlying Fund and/or the Fund.

Prospective investors should also note the considerations discussed in Section 12 —“Certain Legal, Tax and Regulatory Considerations—Certain U.S. Federal Income Tax Considerations.”

CERTAIN POTENTIAL CONFLICTS OF INTEREST

Broad and Wide-Ranging Activities. As a diversified global investment, financial, advisory and funds management firm, Macquarie engages in a broad range of financial activities, including securities underwriting, sales and trading, lending, financial advisory services, investment research, asset management and other activities. Notwithstanding Macquarie's commitment to the Fund, investors should be aware that in the ordinary course of business, Macquarie engages in activities where its interests or the interests of its clients are likely to conflict with the interests of the Fund, the Limited Partners, any Underlying Funds, or any Underlying Portfolio Investments. Any actual conflicts of interest that arise in relation to the Fund will be resolved in accordance with the Portfolio Manager's conflicts management procedures, including, where required, by referral to the LPAC. If any matter arises that the General Partner determines in its good faith judgment constitutes an actual conflict of interest, the General Partner and relevant affiliates will take such actions as they determine appropriate to mitigate or resolve the conflict, and such actions will be deemed to fully satisfy any fiduciary duties they may have to the Fund or the Limited Partners and to have been taken in good faith. Thereafter, the General Partner and relevant affiliates will be relieved of any liability related to the conflict to the fullest extent permitted by law. Although not required, actions that could be taken by the General Partner or its affiliates to mitigate or resolve a conflict include, by way of example and without limitation, (i) if applicable, handling the conflict as described in this Memorandum, (ii) obtaining from the LPAC advice, waiver or consent as to the conflict, or acting in accordance with standards or procedures approved by the LPAC to address the conflict, (iii) disposing of the investment or security giving rise to the conflict of interest, (iv) disclosing the conflict to the LPAC or Limited Partners (including, without limitation, in drawdown notices, distribution notices, financial statements, quarterly letters or other communications), (v) appointing an independent fiduciary to act or provide consent with respect to the matter giving rise to the conflict of interest, (vi) in the case of conflicts among clients of MAM Solutions, groups of personnel may be established to represent the interests of each such client, (vii) implementing policies and procedures reasonably designed to mitigate or resolve the conflict of interest, or (viii) otherwise handling the conflict as determined appropriate by the General Partner in its good faith reasonable discretion. There can be no assurance that Macquarie will identify all conflicts of interest or resolve conflicts of interest in a manner that is favorable to the Fund and the Limited Partners. By acquiring an interest in the Fund, each Limited Partner (or participant in any Parallel Fund or Feeder Fund) will be deemed to have acknowledged the existence of any such actual or potential conflicts of interest and to have waived any claim with respect to any liability arising from the existence of any such conflict of interest to the fullest extent of the law. In addition, investors should note that the Partnership Agreement contains provisions that, subject to applicable law, reduce or eliminate fiduciary duties and other duties to the Fund and/or the Limited Partners, provisions that waive or consent to conduct on the part of the General Partner or Portfolio Manager and provisions that limit the remedies of Limited Partners with respect to breaches of such duties. Pursuant to the Partnership Agreement, an LPAC will be established and the General Partner or Portfolio Manager is permitted to in certain situations choose to consult with or obtain the consent of the LPAC or with respect to any specific conflict of interest, including, but not limited to, certain affiliate transactions and certain variations to the investment strategy of the Fund. If the General Partner consults with the LPAC regarding a conflict of interest, and if the LPAC waives the conflict of interest or the General Partner or Portfolio Manager acts in a manner, or pursuant to the standards and procedures, approved by the LPAC with respect to the conflict of interest, then the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager and their affiliates will not have any liability to the Fund or the Limited Partners for such actions taken by them, including actions in pursuit of their own interests, and will be deemed to have satisfied their fiduciary duties and to have acted in good faith with respect to such actions.

Diverse Combined Limited Partner Group and the LPAC. The Combined Limited Partners are expected to have conflicting investment, tax and other interests with respect to their investments in the Fund. The conflicting interests of individual Combined Limited Partners may relate to or arise from, among other things, the nature of investments made by the Fund, the structuring or the acquisition of investments or allocation of co-investment opportunities, the granting of sovereign immunity rights and the timing of disposition of investments. As a consequence, conflicts of interest will arise in connection with certain decisions made or advice provided (as applicable) by the General Partner or the Portfolio Manager, including with respect to the nature or structuring of investments, that may be more beneficial for one Combined Limited Partner than for another Combined Limited Partner, especially with respect to Combined Limited Partners' individual tax situations. For example, in certain circumstances the Partnership will invest in certain investments indirectly through a Corporation rather than through an entity treated as a partnership for U.S. federal income tax purposes. While investing through a Corporation may provide certain tax benefits to certain investors, the investment returns of investors that invest through a Corporation may be less than the investment returns received by other investors in the Main Fund. It is also possible that the Partnership will seek to sell shares of the Corporation in connection with the disposition of an investment, which would likely provide certain benefits to investors participating through the Corporation but may result in total sales proceeds which are lower than such proceeds otherwise would be had the sale not been structured in part as a sale of shares of the Corporation. Nonetheless, in such case such reduced sales price may be borne by all the Limited Partners participating in the investment and not just those Limited Partners who participated in the investment through the relevant Corporation. In other circumstances, the acquirer may pay less on a per unit basis for the shares of the Corporation as compared to the underlying assets (and in certain cases the quantum of the reduction may not be specified by the applicable purchaser and will be determined by the General Partner or Portfolio Manager in good faith). Further, given the overall structure of the Fund and its underlying investments, it may not be possible or feasible for the Partnership to dispose of investments through a sale of shares of any applicable Corporation, which could result in lower after-tax returns for investors that invest in the Partnership (rather than the Main Fund). In those instances where the acquirer pays less on a per unit basis for the shares of the Corporation (or where shares of a Corporation are not sold), the Founder Partner will nonetheless be entitled to receive the same amount of carried interest it would have received had the applicable investment not been made through such Corporation. Accordingly, the General Partner will have a conflict of interest in circumstances where shares of the Corporation are intended to be sold in determining the quantum of the reduction in sales proceeds attributable due to the sale of shares of the Corporation, as well as whether or not the reduction should be borne solely by the investors participating through the Corporation. In addition, the Fund is permitted to make investments which can have a negative impact on, or compete with, related investments made by the Combined Limited Partners in separate transactions. In selecting, structuring, managing and disposing Portfolio Investments, the Portfolio Manager will consider the investment and tax objectives of the Fund and its Partners (and those investors in other investment vehicles managed or advised by the General Partner or the Portfolio Manager) as a whole, not the investment, tax or other objectives of any Combined Limited Partner individually, unless otherwise agreed with a Limited Partner in a side letter agreement.

Certain Combined Limited Partners will have representatives on the LPAC. The LPAC will have the ability to review and waive compliance with certain provisions of the Partnership Agreement, including consenting to potential conflict of interest situations, as well as certain approvals or consents required by U.S. federal securities laws, in each case as provided in the Partnership Agreement. Pursuant to the terms of the Partnership Agreement, all Limited Partners are bound by the determinations of the LPAC, regardless of whether a Limited Partner is represented by a member of the LPAC. The Partnership Agreement will provide that, to the fullest extent permitted by law, (i) none of the members of the LPAC, nor the Limited Partners and/or investors in any Parallel Fund on behalf of whom such members act as representatives, if applicable, shall owe any duties (fiduciary or otherwise) to any other Limited Partner in respect of the activities of the LPAC, other than the duty to act in good faith and (ii) in taking or omitting to take any action, a member of the LPAC may act solely in the interests of the Limited Partners and/or investors in the Parallel Funds, which it represents, if applicable, and the same shall not be deemed (in and of itself) to violate its duty of good faith. The LPAC is expected to be comprised of representatives of Combined Limited Partners with divergent interests, objectives, regulatory treatment, tax sensitivities, portfolio compositions, experience and other factors. Furthermore, members of the LPAC may have various business and other relationships with Macquarie and its affiliates (including representing Combined Limited Partners with interests in other Macquarie Funds or portfolio companies, or that is a lender, adviser, or service provider to any of the foregoing, the Fund or Macquarie). In certain circumstances, these factors will influence LPAC members to be more aligned with the General Partner and favor proposals brought to the LPAC; in other circumstances, these factors will make LPAC members more likely to oppose these proposals. LPAC members are expected to be subject to potential conflicts of interest in approving or rejecting proposals based on factors that are applicable to the firms they individually represent, rather than considerations relevant to Limited Partners as a whole. In many cases, Limited Partners (including Limited Partners making Capital Commitments in excess of certain amounts) are expected to request a role on the LPAC, and the General Partner expects to be subject to varying incentives and potential conflicts of interest in determining which Limited Partners will be permitted to appoint a representative thereto. Members of the LPAC are likely to (a) have more information about the Fund and Portfolio Investments than other Limited Partners and (b) receive information in advance of its communication to other Limited Partners. Although such Limited Partners are subject to confidentiality obligations, there is no guarantee that such Limited Partners will not use information received as a member of the LPAC for purposes unrelated to, and potentially harmful to, the Fund. Additionally, because the LPAC is expected to be comprised of Combined Limited Partners with large Capital Commitments (as compared to the Capital Commitments of Combined Limited Partners generally), the LPAC may not embody a representative sample of Combined Limited Partners. LPAC members may choose to abstain from voting on certain issues, which means that certain votes and issues could be decided only by non-abstaining members and less than a complete group of LPAC members. Subject to any requirements under the Partnership Agreement, the General Partner is authorized to appoint Limited Partners to the LPAC in its sole discretion, and is permitted to consider various factors including the timing and amount of a Limited Partner's commitment to the Fund and/or other Macquarie Funds, the General Partner's perception of a Limited Partner's effectiveness on the LPAC, legal and regulatory considerations, the interests of the Limited Partner and the degree to which they are likely to align with the Fund and the General Partner and other factors. The General Partner is permitted to seek the consent of the LPAC to approve conflicts, although based on these varying incentives, Limited Partners should not expect that every vote cast by an LPAC member, or decision made by the LPAC as a whole, will fully represent their individual interests (if at all). For the avoidance of doubt, the LPAC can serve as the LPAC for the Fund and one or more co-investment vehicles established by the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager or an affiliate thereof and designated thereby for the purposes hereof, other than with respect to matters that solely involve such co-investment vehicle and not the Fund. Similarly, a decision of the LPAC with respect to a specific transaction or potential conflict will typically be binding on any such co-investment vehicle.

To the extent Combined Limited Partners vote on any matter regarding conflicts or otherwise participate in matters involving a vote or action of the Combined Limited Partners, any Combined Limited Partner may have an interest in the Fund, Macquarie, any other Macquarie Fund, an Underlying Fund or an Underlying Portfolio Investment (or be a lender, advisor or service provider to any of the foregoing) and, as a result, may not be motivated to vote solely in accordance with its interests related to the Fund. Moreover, such Combined Limited Partners are unrestricted from voting, and may affirmatively vote, in a manner that is adverse to the investments of other Combined Limited Partners and the Fund. Moreover, the Combined Limited Partners in the Fund generally vote based on Capital Commitments. Accordingly, action by one or more relatively large Combined Limited Partners in the Fund could affect the outcome of votes submitted to the Fund.

Similarly, not all Limited Partners monitor their investments in vehicles such as the Fund in the same manner. For example, certain Limited Partners may periodically request from the General Partner information regarding the Fund and its Portfolio Investments that is not otherwise set forth in (or has yet to be set forth in) the reporting and other information required to be delivered to all Limited Partners. In such circumstances, the General Partner can elect to provide such information to such Limited Partner, but just because it has provided such information upon request by one or more Limited Partners does not mean the General Partner will be obligated to affirmatively provide such information to all Limited Partners (although the General Partner will generally provide the same information upon request and treat similarly situated Limited Partners equally in that regard). As a result, certain Limited Partners will in certain circumstances have more information about the Fund and its Portfolio Investments than other Limited Partners, and the General Partner will have no duty to ensure all Limited Partners seek, obtain or process the same information regarding the Fund and its Portfolio Investments. It is also expected that the General Partner will confirm factual matters to prospective Limited Partners, make statements of intent or expectation to such Limited Partners or acknowledge statements by such prospective Limited Partners that relate to the Fund and/or the Portfolio Manager's activities pertaining thereto in one or more respects. In addition, the General Partner is permitted to agree to certain matters relating to knowledge transfer and/or secondments with one or more Combined Limited Partners as part of an overall firm relationship. Any such statements, confirmations, agreements or acknowledgements, including those made in response to an investor's due diligence requests, will not involve the granting of any right or benefit, and therefore will not be subject to the "most favored nations" process or election by the Combined Limited Partners, and as a result other Combined Limited Partners will not typically receive notice thereof or copies of the documentation (if any) in which they are contained. There can be no assurance that any such arrangements will not have an adverse effect on the Fund or that such arrangements will not influence Macquarie's activities or the operations of the Fund. In addition, certain Combined Limited Partners may also be limited partners in other Macquarie Funds. It is also possible that the Fund or one or more Underlying Funds or Underlying Portfolio Investments may be counterparties or participants in agreements, transactions (including co-investments) or other arrangements with a Combined Limited Partner or an affiliate of a Combined Limited Partner. Such Combined Limited Partners described in the previous two sentences may therefore have different information about, and relationships with, Macquarie and the Fund than Limited Partners not similarly positioned.

Carried Interest. The Founder Partner is an affiliate of the General Partner. The existence of the Founder Partner's carried interest could be viewed as an incentive for the General Partner and the ultimate recipients of such carried interest, respectively, to make or recommend riskier or more speculative investments for the Fund than would be the case in the absence of these arrangements. However, Macquarie believes that Macquarie's substantial Capital Commitment to the Fund and the carried interest clawback at the end of the Fund's life should help to mitigate such incentive as well as. In addition, the manner in which the Founder Partner's entitlement to carried interest from the Fund is determined can result in a conflict between the General Partner's interests and the interests of Limited Partners with respect to the sequence and timing of disposals of investments by the Fund. If distributions are made of property other than cash, there is a potential conflict of interest between the Founder Partner (and its beneficial owners) and the Limited Partners. For example, the Founder Partner and its beneficial owners may intend to hold the investment for a different time period than may be suitable for the Partnership. Although the General Partner and its beneficial owners bear the risk that such securities will decrease during their holding period, to the extent the value of the relevant securities increases following the Fund's disposition thereof, neither the Fund nor the Limited Partners will benefit from the increase, and over time the economic benefit to the Founder Partner and its beneficial owners could exceed the value of the Founder Partner's pro rata interest in the Fund and the amount of carried interest owed. To the extent the beneficial owners of the Founder Partner contribute such securities to a charity (including to a private foundation or other charitable organization associated with, operated or chosen by such persons or their families), any tax efficiencies or other personal benefits associated with the contribution will inure to the benefit of such beneficial owners rather than to the Fund or the Limited Partners. In such circumstances, the amount of any such distribution will be accounted for at the fair market value of such property as determined by the General Partner in accordance with procedures set forth in the Partnership Agreement. An independent appraisal is not required and may not be obtained. In certain circumstances, the amount of Carried Interest will be calculated based on the fair market value of in-kind distributions. See Section 10 – "Detailed Term Sheet – In-Kind Distributions."

Tax Legislation Adversely Affecting Macquarie Employees and Other Service Providers. U.S. federal income tax law treats certain allocations of capital gains to service providers by partnerships such as the Fund as short-term capital gain (taxed at higher ordinary income rates) unless the partnership has held the asset that generated such gain for more than three years. Additionally, Congress has considered proposed legislation that would treat certain income allocations to service providers by partnerships such as the Fund (including any carried interest) as ordinary income for U.S. federal income tax purposes that under current law are treated as an allocation of the partnership's income (and which may be taxed at lower rates than ordinary income). Such rules, as well as any such legislation that may be enacted in the future, could apply to reduce the after-tax returns of individuals associated with the Fund, the General Partner, or Macquarie who were or may in the future be granted direct or indirect interests in Carried Interest, which could make it more difficult for the General Partner and its affiliates to incentivize, attract and retain individuals to perform services for the Fund. This creates potential incentives for the General Partner to cause the Fund to hold investments for a longer period than would be the case if such greater than three-year holding period requirement did not exist.

Relationship with Macquarie and Other Funds Managed by Macquarie. The Fund intends to invest in various Underlying Funds, which includes investments in Macquarie-managed vehicles. Macquarie manages, on an independent and autonomous basis, several public and private equity funds, vehicles and accounts which it is currently investing on behalf of third-party investors, Macquarie and/or eligible employees, including certain Semi-Liquid Funds (as defined below), and Macquarie intends to raise and manage other public and private funds and other investment funds, vehicles and accounts in the future, including Semi-Liquid Funds (any such fund, vehicle or account managed by Macquarie whether currently existing or established in the future being referred to herein as a "Macquarie Fund" and, collectively, the "Macquarie Funds"). See Section 10—"Detailed Term Sheet—Allocation of Investment Opportunities." Such Macquarie Funds are permitted to make investments that would be suitable for the Fund. Macquarie anticipates establishing or restructuring one or more investment funds, vehicles or accounts (together with any holding vehicle thereof) that is (a) advised, sub-advised, managed or sponsored, directly or indirectly, by Macquarie and which is (i) structured as an investment company, business development company or collective investment vehicle that is registered or otherwise regulated (or expected to be registered or otherwise regulated) under the 1940 Act, (ii) a listed or unlisted vehicle which is, or issues interests which are, registered (or expected to be registered) under the Securities Act and/or the Exchange Act, as applicable and/or (iii) a comparable non-U.S. structure registered, authorized or otherwise regulated (or expected to be registered, authorized or otherwise regulated) under the laws of such non-U.S. jurisdictions or (b) otherwise organized, in whole or in part, for the purpose of providing access, directly or indirectly, for one or more vehicles of the type described in any of clauses (i), (ii) or (iii) above (irrespective of the adviser, sub-adviser, manager or sponsor of such a vehicle) to portfolio investments of one or more funds, vehicles or accounts advised, sub-advised, managed or sponsored by Macquarie (including the Fund) (each, a "Semi-Liquid Fund"). Without limiting the foregoing, Semi-Liquid Funds (x) may invest using a variety of structures, including, without limitation, investing, in whole or in part, alongside, and/or as feeder funds that invest directly or indirectly into, the Partnership and/or one or more Alternative Vehicles or Parallel Funds and successors thereto and/or (y) are expected to have an investment period and duration which are longer than the investment period and term of the Fund, respectively.

Additionally, each division of Macquarie operates independently and it is unlikely that the MAM Solutions investment team responsible for the Fund will be aware of any investment opportunities within the investment guidelines of the Fund that are sourced within the other divisions of Macquarie. Moreover, even if the investment team becomes aware of any such investment opportunities, the Fund has no right to be offered investment opportunities sourced within other divisions of Macquarie. This situation presents the potential for conflicts of interest. To address the conflicts and regulatory, legal and contractual requirements across its various businesses, Macquarie has implemented certain policies and procedures and information barriers that may reduce the positive synergies that the Fund could otherwise utilize for purposes of identifying attractive investments. Accordingly, certain information or investment opportunities which could be of benefit to the Fund might become restricted or otherwise unavailable to the Fund due to the activities of Macquarie's other asset management strategies or businesses. There may be situations in which the interests of the Fund with respect to a particular investment or other matter conflict with the interests of one or more other Macquarie Funds, Macquarie or one or more of their respective affiliates. For example, such conflicts can arise in situations where another Macquarie Fund has invested in a particular asset or business, but due to changed circumstances, or otherwise, such investment opportunity subsequently falls within the investment guidelines of the Fund, or where the Fund makes an investment indirectly (i.e., through an Underlying Fund) in the same portfolio company in which another Macquarie Fund has an investment, including in a different class or series of interests. Such changed circumstances might include, among other things: financial returns that either underperform or outperform Macquarie's base case underwriting projections; workouts or other restructurings relating to an investment's capital structure; a decline in an investment's business or financial condition; legal or regulatory developments; or consideration by the investment of strategic alternatives or other fundamental changes.

Similarly, conflicts of interest can also arise in situations where an Underlying Fund and another Macquarie Fund or Macquarie balance sheet entity (e.g., in the course of warehousing an investment allocated to another Macquarie Fund, including a Semi-Liquid Fund, or continuing to hold such an investment in the event that such other Macquarie Fund does not ultimately acquire all, or any portion of, such warehoused investment) are invested in the same portfolio company or portfolio investment, whether or not such investments are entered into at the same time and on the same terms. In addition to economic interests, the voting, control and governance rights with respect to an investment in which an Underlying Fund and another Macquarie Fund, Macquarie balance sheet entity, and/or co-investor participates could be structured in a number of ways depending upon various considerations relating to the specific investment and the entities participating. For example, voting rights could be allocated pro rata to the participants in an investment in accordance with their respective equity interests or could be allocated on a disproportionate basis to one or more of the participants. In many cases, the "flagship" Macquarie Fund participating in an investment will control the general partner (or similar entity) of the aggregating vehicle through which the various entities participate in the relevant investment and, as such, will indirectly control the aggregating vehicle even where it does not own a majority or greater of the equity in the entity. It is possible that structuring investments in this manner could expose the Fund to greater risk of liability than would be the case if the general partner (or similar entity) of an aggregating vehicle were owned pro rata by all equity participants.

Similarly, another Macquarie Fund, co-investor, or proprietary Macquarie balance sheet entity could be allocated at least half or more of the voting rights or governance rights (including the right to elect at least half of the board of directors or the right to appoint a second general partner to the aggregating vehicle through which the various entities participate in the relevant investment) with respect to an aggregating entity (which could be a limited liability company) even where an Underlying Fund (or another Macquarie Fund, Macquarie balance sheet entity and/or co-investor, as applicable) owns a majority or more of the economics or equity in the entity. Where the other Macquarie Fund, Macquarie balance sheet entity, and/or co-investor has interests or requirements that do not align with those of the Fund, including in particular differing liquidity needs or desired investment horizons, conflicts could arise with respect to the manner in which the voting or governance rights with respect to an aggregator entity (or similar entity) are exercised, potentially resulting in an adverse impact on the Fund.

Subject to the provisions of the Partnership Agreement, on any matter involving a potential or actual conflict of interest, Macquarie will be guided by its fiduciary duties (as set forth in the Partnership Agreement) to the Fund as well as to the other Macquarie Funds and will seek to manage such conflict in good faith and seek to ensure that the interests of the Fund and all affected Macquarie Funds are represented. However, if Macquarie determines that it is necessary or appropriate (in its discretion) to resolve or mitigate such potential or actual conflict, Macquarie reserves the right to cause the Fund to take such steps as Macquarie deems necessary or appropriate, even if (subject to applicable law) such steps would require the Fund to, among other things (a) forego an investment opportunity or reduce or divest an investment that, in the absence of such potential or actual conflict, the Fund would have made or continued to hold or (b) otherwise take action that could ultimately have the effect of benefitting another Macquarie Fund (or the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager, Macquarie or any of their respective affiliates) and therefore is potentially not in the best interests of the Fund or the Limited Partners. Macquarie can also in its discretion (but is not required to) consult with the LPAC regarding any potential conflict of interest, and if the LPAC waives such conflict of interest or the General Partner acts in a manner, or pursuant to standards or procedures, approved by the LPAC with respect to such conflict of interest, then none of the General Partner or any of its affiliates will have any liability to the Fund or any partner for such actions taken in good faith by them, including actions in the pursuit of their own interests, and will be deemed to have satisfied its fiduciary duties related thereto and acted in good faith to the fullest extent permitted by law.

As described elsewhere in this Memorandum, the Partnership Agreement contains provisions that, subject to applicable law: (i) reduce or eliminate the duties (including fiduciary and other duties) to the Fund to which the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager and Macquarie would otherwise be subject; (ii) waive or consent to conduct on the part of the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager and Macquarie that might not otherwise be permitted pursuant to such duties; and (iii) limit the remedies of the Fund and the Limited Partners with respect to breaches of such duties. If any matter arises that the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager and/or Macquarie determines in their good faith judgment constitutes an actual conflict of interest, the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager and/or Macquarie are permitted to take such actions as it determines in good faith are necessary or appropriate to ameliorate the conflict (and upon taking such actions, the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager and Macquarie will be relieved of any liability for such conflict to the fullest extent permitted by law and shall be deemed to have satisfied its fiduciary duties related thereto to the fullest extent permitted by law). There can be no assurance that the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager and/or Macquarie will resolve or mitigate conflicts of interest in a manner that is favorable to the Fund or the Limited Partners. By participating in the Fund, each Limited Partner will be deemed to have acknowledged the existence of any actual or potential conflicts of interest, including those described herein and in the Portfolio Manager's Form ADV Part 2A.

Allocation of Investment Opportunities. Subject to the terms of the Partnership Agreement, the Fund generally will be offered investment opportunities that are led by the MAPIF Team Members in any privately-negotiated equity and equity-related investments in managed infrastructure investments in established private investment funds that meet the Fund's investment guidelines, in such amount as determined in good faith by the Portfolio Manager, up to the Fund's targeted investment size, until earlier of (i) the end of the Investment Period and (ii) the time in which the Fund has reached Full Investment. Notwithstanding the foregoing, there are expected to be circumstances where an investment opportunity is suitable for both the Fund and other Macquarie Funds or products, including Semi-Liquid Funds. It is expected that one or more Semi-Liquid Funds, if established or restructured, will seek to invest a material portion (and potentially substantially all) of their assets in investments in which other Macquarie Funds participate, and, while the Semi-Liquid Funds are permitted to also independently source investments on their own, opportunistic investments alongside Macquarie Funds are expected to be a material part of their investment programs. It is possible that Semi-Liquid Funds will participate in investments alongside the Fund and/or one or more other Macquarie Funds with overlapping investment objectives, such that the Fund could receive a correspondingly lower allocation of investment opportunities that are led by persons other than the MAPIF Team Members (including opportunities sourced within the other divisions of Macquarie than otherwise would be the case). The overlapping objectives of the Semi-Liquid Funds could also give rise to conflicts of interest relating to the allocation of investment opportunities between the Fund on the one hand, and the Semi-Liquid Funds on the other hand, which Macquarie will seek to resolve in a fair and equitable manner, although there is no assurance that Macquarie will be able to do so.

Investment opportunities that are within the Fund's investment guidelines may be shared with other Macquarie Funds, including Semi-Liquid Funds, or allocated to one of the Fund or such other Macquarie Funds to the exclusion of the other, in a manner that Macquarie (including MAM Solutions) believes is fair and equitable in accordance with Macquarie's allocation policies and procedures (as the same may change from time to time), taking into account such factors as Macquarie deems relevant, including, but not limited to: (1) investment objectives, investment strategies and guidelines of the Macquarie Funds, (2) the sourcing of the investment and the nature and extent of involvement of the respective teams of Macquarie personnel dedicated to the relevant Macquarie Funds in such efforts, (3) the level of control expected with the investment, (4) the overall amount of capital expected to be invested by the applicable Macquarie Fund(s) with respect to such opportunity, including for follow-on investments, (5) the expected hold period for such opportunity and the sector and geography/location of the investment, (6) the relevant industry experience and network of the respective teams of Macquarie personnel, (7) the specific nature (including size, type, amount, liquidity, form of instrument, contractual terms, anticipated maturity, and minimum investment criteria, where applicable) of the investment, (8) the expected holding period and risk adjusted return of the investment, (9) the expected availability and degree of leverage on the investment, (10) the relative amounts of capital available or anticipated to become available (including through contributions or leverage, if applicable) to the relevant Macquarie Funds for investment, including taking into account future capital requirements, (11) the liquidity profile of the relevant Macquarie Funds (including the requirements for periodic distributions), (12) any transfer, assignment or minimum hold restrictions applicable to the investment, (13) the proposed commitment and/or closing date of the investment, (14) the amount of time remaining in the investment period or term of any applicable Macquarie Fund(s), (15) any applicable limitations in the governing documents or side letters of any applicable Macquarie Fund(s), including concentration limits and the requirement to excuse any investor in any such Macquarie Fund from investing in such opportunity, (16) the existing or anticipated future portfolio construction of any applicable Macquarie Fund(s) (including any existing positions in the same or a related investment), (17) mandatory minimum investment rights and other contractual obligations applicable to participating Macquarie Funds and/or to their investors, (18) portfolio diversification and relative exposure to market trends, (19) the avoidance of a de minimis allocation to one or more participating Macquarie Funds, (20) the potential dilutive effect of a new position, (21) the relation to existing investments in a Macquarie Fund, if applicable (e.g., "follow on" to any existing investment, joint venture or other partnership, or same security as any existing investment), (22) the overall risk profile of a portfolio, (23) facts, circumstances and preferences applicable to any investor in any applicable Macquarie Fund(s), (24) conflicts considerations, (25) investment goals and diversification considerations of any applicable Macquarie Fund(s), (26) co-investor participation, (27) legal, tax, regulatory, policy, restrictions and other similar considerations, (28) strategic benefits associated with any applicable Macquarie Fund(s) and (29) any other factors deemed relevant by Macquarie and its affiliates. In addition, there is no guarantee and it is unlikely that any investment opportunity presented to other parts of Macquarie will be offered to or allocated to the Fund.

The factors listed above are not listed by order of priority and different factors will be given different weight depending on the specific investment opportunity and applicable facts and circumstances. Additionally, the factors listed above are intended to be illustrative of key factors currently taken into account by MAM Solutions; however, MAM Solutions may take into account additional factors and, where MAM Solutions considers it appropriate, adopt alternate allocation guidelines or policies from time to time. While the Fund will only make investments that the Portfolio Manager considers appropriate for the Fund, an investment opportunity that is shared between the Fund and one or more other Macquarie Funds can be more or less appropriate for the Fund as compared to such other Macquarie Funds. See "Co-Investments" below for additional conflicts that can arise when the Fund invests in a Portfolio Investment into or alongside one or more Macquarie Funds.

For example, MAM Solutions can allocate certain types of investments (including, for example but without limitation, investments which at the time of investment are not generally expected to generate returns (looking at the base case target returns) within the range of returns generally targeted for the types of investments in which the Fund was primarily organized to invest within the Fund's investment objective) to another Macquarie Fund, including a Semi-Liquid Fund. In any such case, the allocation of investments between the Fund and any such other Macquarie Fund will generally be based upon considerations deemed relevant by Macquarie, including among other factors, Macquarie's determination of the expected returns (looking at the base case target returns) for such investments based upon Macquarie's underwriting practices.

Amounts allocated to any Semi-Liquid Funds are subject to change, and are expected to increase over time as and if the available capital of the Semi-Liquid Funds increases, subject to certain conditions imposed by Macquarie. Specifically, a Semi-Liquid Fund may not have available capital on a continuous basis and accordingly may not participate in certain investments where there is insufficient available capital; however, this will not in any way prohibit such Semi-Liquid Fund from participating in one or more future investments where it has sufficient available capital to participate. Investments by the Fund alongside one or more Semi-Liquid Funds will not necessarily follow a predetermined allocation and may vary on an investment-by-investment basis. In connection with the foregoing, the Fund could acquire a portion of a portfolio investment with the intention of syndicating such portion to one or more Semi-Liquid Funds, in accordance with applicable law. See “—Warehousing; Syndication” below. Conflicts of interest also could arise due to the differences between the investment strategy, term or potential holding period and other factors related to overall portfolio composition of the Fund and Semi-Liquid Funds. Specifically, Semi-Liquid Funds are expected to have investment time horizons, liquidity needs and/or target returns that differ from those of the Fund, and there can be no assurance that any such Semi-Liquid Funds will dispose of any such investments at the same time or on the same terms as the Fund.

The investment allocation determinations described above are inherently subjective. Decisions made by MAM Solutions with respect to the structuring of a potential investment (including, for example, leverage levels) are made in its sole discretion and those decisions can influence whether an investment opportunity can, for example, be classified as an infrastructure debt investment or lower return investment allocable to any particular Macquarie Fund, including the Fund. In addition, when considering expected returns for an investment in connection with its allocation determinations, MAM Solutions focuses on the forecasted base case investment returns. There can be no assurance that actual returns for any such investment will meet MAM Solutions' expectations, and certain investments allocated to the Fund can have lower or higher returns than the base case returns projected by MAM Solutions in connection with underwriting the original investment. Similarly, investments allocated to any Macquarie Fund can perform differently than MAM Solutions' expectations and therefore meet the targeted returns of the Fund, despite the fact that the investment was not expected to do so at the time of underwriting. In addition, Macquarie can have an incentive to structure and allocate investments between the Fund and any other Macquarie Fund based upon other factors in addition to those described above, including without limitation, the prior performance of the Macquarie Funds, and MAM Solutions' performance-based and other relative economic incentives and any other relevant factors.

Such determinations could also result in the dilution of the Fund's interest in any existing investment by other Macquarie Funds (including a Successor Fund), Macquarie balance sheet entities and/or third-party co-investors to the extent that an investment opportunity constituting a follow-on investment in respect of an existing Fund investment arises and the Fund has insufficient available capital (including pursuant to reserves for follow-on investments following the end of the Fund's Investment Period established by the General Partner) or otherwise determines not to take up all or any part of what would otherwise be its allocable share of such opportunity (which would generally be based on its participation in the initial investment). For the avoidance of doubt, any such co-investment or follow-on investment and any resulting dilution of the Fund's interest (a) would not trigger any disclosure or consent requirements under Section 206(3) of the Advisers Act in the event of a co-investment or follow-in investment by a Macquarie Fund that would, in the context of a transaction involving a sale or purchase of securities to or from such other Macquarie Fund by the Fund, be deemed to be a principal account of Macquarie, and (b) would not, where any such other Macquarie Fund makes such co-investment or follow-on investment, trigger any of the provisions of the Partnership Agreement that would otherwise require the consent of, or consultation with, the LPAC or the limited partners in connection with transactions with affiliates. Conversely, to the extent another Macquarie Fund (including any predecessor to the Fund) participating in the original investment has insufficient capital or is otherwise unable to participate on a pro rata basis in any related follow-on investment opportunity, such excess opportunity could be allocated in whole or in part to the Fund increasing its concentration in the relevant investment, which would potentially increase the losses incurred by the Fund to the extent such follow-on investment as a whole does not perform as anticipated. The fact that carried interest is calculated at different rates among the Fund and other Macquarie Funds, or is subject to different preferred return rates or other similar terms, creates an incentive for Macquarie to allocate investment opportunities disproportionately to vehicles allocating carried interest at a higher rate (or subject to a lower preferred return rate).

In certain cases, other Macquarie Funds, including those established by MAM Solutions or the Real Assets division of Macquarie Asset Management, will have priority over the Fund with respect to particular investment opportunities. In other cases, the Fund may not have invested in a particular asset or business alongside another Macquarie Fund, but such asset or business may be an attractive investment opportunity for a number of Macquarie Funds at different points in time. Consequently, Macquarie may cause the Fund to purchase an investment from or sell an investment to one or more other Macquarie Funds, subject to the consent requirements set forth in the governing documents of each affected Macquarie Fund and in accordance with applicable law. Because Macquarie could potentially benefit from such transactions, they inherently present certain conflicts of interests.

Underlying Fund Management Fees, Expenses and Carried Interest. The Management Fee borne by Limited Partners of the Fund and paid to the AIFM will be in addition to the management fees paid by the Fund in connection with its investment in an Underlying Fund. Further as an investor in the Fund, a Limited Partner will bear Fund-level expenses in addition to Underlying Fund expenses indirectly borne through the Fund's investment in the Underlying Funds. Fees and expenses of the Fund and the Underlying Funds in which the Fund invests will generally be paid regardless of whether the Fund or the Underlying Funds produce positive investment returns. Limited Partners of the Fund will indirectly bear their proportionate share of carried interest borne by the Fund in connection with its investment in an Underlying Fund. Further, carried interest paid by certain other limited partners of an Underlying Funds may be less than the Carried Interest borne by the Fund with respect to such Underlying Fund. This results in different net internal rates of returns with respect to the Fund's investments in the Underlying Funds relative to the rates of return achieved by investors in the Underlying Funds generally.

Voting of Underlying Fund Interests; LPAC Members. The Limited Partners will generally have no right to vote on matters at the level of the Underlying Funds, and such votes generally will be determined on behalf of the Fund by the General Partner. In certain circumstances, such as a vote to remove a Macquarie affiliate as the general partner of a Macquarie-Managed Underlying Fund, the Underlying Fund's governing documents may preclude the Fund from voting. In addition, LPAC members may have interests in the Underlying Funds and generally other interests that may conflict with those of the Fund or the other Limited Partners. In voting as members of the LPAC, such Limited Partners owe no duties to the Fund or the other Limited Partners and may vote in a manner adverse to the other Limited Partners and the Fund. The Underlying Fund's terms may also be amended or certain of their limitations (e.g., concentration or geographic limitations) may be waived in certain cases. As indicated above, the Fund may have limited ability to participate in, or effect the outcome of such votes, which may materially alter the nature of such Underlying Fund, either with respect to a particular Underlying Portfolio Investment or Underlying Portfolio Investments to be made generally by such Underlying Fund.

Underlying Funds - No Privity. The Limited Partners will not, by virtue of their investments in the Fund, be limited partners of any Underlying Fund, will have no direct interest in any Underlying Fund, will not be parties to, or have the opportunity to negotiate the terms of, any Underlying Fund's governing agreements, and, accordingly, will not have any direct rights thereunder and therefore will have no direct recourse against any Underlying Fund, their related vehicles, their managers, the general partners of such Underlying Funds, or any of their respective affiliates (other than the Portfolio Manager, the General Partner and the Fund in the case of Macquarie-Managed Underlying Funds). The offering of Interests in the Fund does not constitute, and should not be considered, an offering of interests in any Underlying Fund. Limited Partners should note that none of the persons or entities responsible for the organization, control, management or operations of the Fund, in such capacity, has the power to legally bind or commit an Underlying Fund or the general partner of an Underlying Fund. Moreover, none of the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager or the Fund has the right to participate in the control, management or operations of any Underlying Fund. No Underlying Fund is responsible for the formation, control, management or operation of the Fund. No Underlying Fund or general partner of an Underlying Fund has participated or will participate in the offering of Interests, and none of the foregoing has or will have any responsibility for such offering. No Underlying Fund or general partner of an Underlying Fund has endorsed, and none of them is or will be responsible for the preparation or contents of, and none has passed upon or made any representation with respect to the adequacy or sufficiency of this Memorandum.

Underlying Fund Reporting. Investors in Underlying Funds (including the Fund) generally will receive periodic reporting which includes investment by investment performance and, in some cases, commentary on recent developments with respect to a particular Underlying Portfolio Investment. Limited Partners investing in the Fund will receive periodic reporting which will generally include investment performance of the Underlying Funds but generally will not include commentary with respect to specific Underlying Portfolio Investments. Accordingly, limited partners of the Underlying Funds likely will receive additional or more detailed reporting regarding the Underlying Portfolio Investments than the Limited Partners.

Diverging Interests of Underlying Funds. The interests of the Fund, on the one hand, and those of an Underlying Fund, on the other hand, may diverge, for example with respect to the terms and structure of an investment or its disposition, which may not necessarily take fully into account the interests of the Fund. In particular, an Underlying Fund may have different priorities with respect to tax structuring aspects than the Fund and the Fund's investors. In instances of a conflict or divergence of interests in the case of a Macquarie-Managed Underlying Fund, the general partner or manager of the Macquarie-Managed Underlying Fund shall be entitled and expected to place the interests of an Underlying Fund ahead of those of the Fund and its investors.

Relationship with the Underlying Funds. The Fund will be a passive investor with no management authority with respect to any Underlying Portfolio Investments. Neither the General Partner nor the Portfolio Manager will have the opportunity to thoroughly evaluate investments of an Underlying Fund, and all investment decisions with regards to an Underlying Portfolio Investment will be made by the Underlying Fund. The Fund will be relying on the management skill of the Underlying Fund's manager and/or adviser. In addition, the sourcing, diligencing, evaluation, financing, negotiation, management, monitoring and disposition policies of each Underlying Fund generally will be the responsibility of such Underlying Fund's manager and will not require the consent of the investors of either such Underlying Fund or the Fund. Any changes in an Underlying Fund's investment policies could be adverse to the Fund's interest, but the Fund is not expected to have an ability to veto any such change.

Purchase Price Deferrals. A conflict exists for the General Partner and its affiliates in allocating purchase price deferrals to specific Underlying Funds that are purchased in a single transaction or a series of related transactions. In certain circumstances, the Fund and other Macquarie Funds may be allocated specific Underlying Funds within the same portfolio but with different payment schedules, and therefore other Macquarie Funds may benefit from longer payment schedules than the Partnership.

Investments in Different Parts of the Capital Structure; Other Joint Participation in Investments. The Fund is permitted to (and in certain circumstances expected to) make investments indirectly (i.e., through an Underlying Fund) in companies in which one or several other Macquarie Funds also holds an investment, which could be an investment in a different class of such fund's debt or equity, subject to the terms of the Partnership Agreement. In such circumstances, MAM Solutions and/or Macquarie expects to have conflicting interests between its duties to the Fund and such other Macquarie Funds. Conflicts of interest can also arise in other situations where the Fund and another Macquarie Fund or Macquarie balance sheet entity are invested directly or indirectly in the same portfolio investment, whether or not such investments are entered into at the same time and on the same terms, including, for example, with respect to: the Fund's and such other Macquarie Funds' or Macquarie balance sheet entity's respective ability to exit; participate in follow-on investments (including the price at which the Underlying Fund and another Macquarie Fund may participate in follow-on investments); the terms of any proposed sale with one or more third parties when the Fund and another Macquarie Fund or Macquarie balance sheet entity are not both seeking to realize their proportionate share of the investment at the same time (which may, for example, present potential conflicts in securing the best terms for the selling Macquarie Fund or Underlying Fund while the non-selling Macquarie Fund or Macquarie balance sheet entity is concurrently seeking to negotiate revised terms for holding the investment alongside such third-party purchaser going forward); and other rights with respect to such investments. Such conflicts can be further exacerbated where the Fund and the other participating Macquarie Fund(s) or Macquarie balance sheet entity made their respective investments at different times and/or on different terms (including in different parts of the capital structure; through an intermediate entity with respect to which the participating investors have different or asymmetrical governance rights; or when another Macquarie Fund or Macquarie balance sheet entity otherwise secures one or more options, rights and/or other entitlements in relation to an investment which may be exercised independently from, and in a manner that does not necessarily align with the best interests of, the Fund). Such rights, options and/or entitlements may be obtained and exercised at or following the completion of another Macquarie Fund's or Macquarie balance sheet entity's related investment and/or in circumstances where such other Macquarie Fund or Macquarie balance sheet entity is a minority shareholder (or the equivalent) alongside an Underlying Fund, including pursuant to a syndication or follow-on investment, and such rights, options and/or entitlements may extend beyond those that might typically be expected to be held by a minority investor holding an equivalent sized investment or shareholding alongside an Underlying Fund, including to accommodate certain legal, tax, regulatory or structuring considerations.

While the interests of the Fund and any such other Macquarie Fund or Macquarie balance sheet entity are generally expected to align, circumstances could arise where such other Macquarie Fund or Macquarie balance sheet entity seeks to exercise such rights, options and/or entitlements at a time or in a manner which does not necessarily align with the interests of the Fund. Similarly, an Underlying Fund may seek to exercise its rights, options and entitlements with respect to the relevant investment (as the majority holder of such investment) in circumstances where any such other Macquarie Fund or Macquarie balance sheet entity (as a minority holder with respect to such investment) decides to exercise its rights, options and entitlements in a different manner to the Underlying Fund, and the rights of the Underlying Fund (as the majority holder of such investment) may not extend to obliging such other Macquarie Fund or Macquarie balance sheet entity to follow any particular course of action.

This could include circumstances where, for example, an Underlying Fund (as the majority holder of an investment) determines to exit its investment at a time where such other Macquarie Fund or Macquarie balance sheet entity (as a minority holder) decides to retain its stake in the relevant investment, or vice versa. In such circumstances, a decision by such other Macquarie Fund or Macquarie balance sheet entity (as a minority holder) not to exit at the same time as the Underlying Fund may adversely impact the ability of the Underlying Fund to successfully exit the investment (for example, because a prospective purchaser wishes to acquire the entire shareholding (or the equivalent), including that held by such other Macquarie Fund or Macquarie balance sheet entity (as a minority holder) in circumstances where such other Macquarie Fund or Macquarie balance sheet entity does not wish to sell) and/or the terms (including with respect to price) on which the Underlying Fund can realize the investment (for example, because any proposed purchaser would, as the new majority holder, need to accommodate the rights, options and/or entitlements of such other Macquarie Fund or Macquarie balance sheet entity, which rights, options and/or entitlements may extend beyond those typically expected for a minority holder retaining an equivalent stake in a company). Such options, rights and/or other entitlements may also include a “right of first offer,” “right of first refusal” and/or similar rights, in each case granted to the Underlying Fund by another Macquarie Fund and/or granted by the Underlying Fund to another Macquarie Fund to be exercised in connection with any proposed sale of an interest in an investee company by the Fund or another Macquarie Fund. Additionally, to the extent another Macquarie Fund determines to sell its holding in an investee company at a time when the Fund decides to retain all or a portion of its stake in such investee company, and the proposed disposition transaction is not consummated, the Underlying Fund may be required to pay its pro rata share of any broken deal expenses resulting therefrom. Any such misalignment of interests could adversely impact the Underlying Fund’s holding of the relevant investment, its ability to successfully exit the investment on the most favorable terms reasonably available at the time and the performance of the Fund more generally. While the Portfolio Manager will generally seek to avoid any such circumstances arising, investors should be aware that no guarantees or assurances can be given that such a misalignment of interests will always be avoided or will always be resolved in a manner most favorable to the interests of the Fund.

Certain investments may require material follow-on investments to be made during the holding period for such investment. Where an Underlying Fund participates alongside one or more other investors (which may include one or more other Macquarie Funds with different funding capabilities, liquidity constraints and/or investment restrictions), the failure of one or more such other investors to participate for their full share of such further investments may have a material impact on the further development and success of such projects (including, for example, pursuing add-on opportunities or fulfilling other business objectives). To the extent that any such investors do not participate for their full pro rata share, there are no guarantees that the Underlying Fund will be able to cover the shortfall in funding requirements (including because of concentration or similar investment limits applicable to the Underlying Fund or lack of available funds), or be able to source alternative financing, all of which may negatively impact the ability for the Fund to successfully implement its investment strategy for the relevant investment and/or dilute the interest of the Fund in the relevant investment, including as further disclosed in Section 11—“Risk Factors and Potential Conflicts of Interest—Allocation of Investment Opportunities” above. Further, in circumstances where an Underlying Fund is in a position to cover the shortfall, any such additional funding requirements met by the Underlying Fund may have a consequential adverse impact on the ability of the Underlying Fund to meet other funding needs with respect to the Underlying Fund’s wider portfolio of investments and, accordingly, the ability for the Underlying Fund’s manager to successfully implement the investment strategy for the Underlying Fund generally.

In those circumstances where an Underlying Fund and another Macquarie Fund or Macquarie balance sheet entity hold investments in different classes of a company’s equity or debt, MAM Solutions can also, to the fullest extent permitted by applicable law, take steps to reduce the potential for adversity between the Fund and the other Macquarie Fund, including causing the Fund to take certain actions that, in the absence of such conflict, it would not take, such as (A) remaining passive in a restructuring, foreclosure, refinancing or similar situations (including electing not to vote or voting pro rata with other investors in the Underlying Fund), (B) divesting investments or (C) otherwise taking an action designed to reduce adversity. Any such step could have the effect of benefiting another Macquarie Fund (or Macquarie) and therefore is potentially not in the best interests of, and could have been adverse to, the Fund. A similar standard generally will apply if any other Macquarie Fund makes an investment in a company or asset in which an Underlying Fund holds an investment in a different class of such company’s equity (or debt) securities or asset.

Where it is proposed that the Fund and another Macquarie Fund or Macquarie balance sheet entity participate in an investment jointly, the Fund and another Macquarie Fund (or one or more of their respective holding vehicles) or Macquarie balance sheet entity are permitted, but not required, to enter into a shareholders' agreement (or similar arrangement) to govern their future relationship and governance with respect to a jointly held investment, in which case the provisions of such shareholders' agreement (or similar arrangement) may govern with respect to any future matters which arise and present a conflict of interest with respect to their joint holding of an investment including as regards exit rights with respect to the investment (and accordingly such matter may not be presented to the LPAC for review or approval (as applicable) on the basis such matter is dealt with in accordance with such agreement). Generally, no approval or review of such joint investment (including with respect to the relative rights, entitlements and options of each of the Fund and the applicable other Macquarie Fund) by the LPAC will be required except as otherwise required under the Partnership Agreement. Alternative arrangements and/or policies and procedures for managing such conflicts of interest may also be established as Macquarie's business evolves, including as further discussed in "Possible Future Activities" below.

Advisory Client Relationships. In the course of its advisory business, Macquarie or its affiliates, including the Portfolio Manager, could potentially represent potential purchasers, sellers and other involved parties with respect to prospective investments that are suitable for the Fund. In such a case, the client can require Macquarie or its affiliate to act exclusively on its behalf, thereby precluding the Fund from making such investment. Macquarie or its affiliate will be under no obligation to decline such engagements in order to make the investment opportunity available to the Fund. In certain sale assignments, the seller can permit the Fund to act as a buyer or investor, which would raise certain conflicts of interest inherent in such a situation. Macquarie and the Portfolio Manager have long-term relationships with a significant number of infrastructure asset managers and their senior management. In addition, Macquarie advises and provides debt and equity capital market and other services to a large number of institutional clients, including leveraged buy-out and other private equity funds with investment objectives similar to or the same as those of the Fund, Underlying Funds and strategic buyers, all of which could be in a position to compete with the Fund for an investment opportunity. Moreover, Macquarie Asset Management, an operating group within Macquarie, manages private equity and hedge fund-of-funds, and as a result Macquarie and the Portfolio Manager each maintain a number of relationships across the alternative asset class, including with potential buyers and sellers in private equity secondary transactions. In determining whether to pursue a particular transaction on behalf of the Fund, these relationships will be considered by Macquarie or the Portfolio Manager, and it is possible that certain potential transactions which will not be pursued on behalf of the Fund in view of such relationships. For example, when Macquarie represents a buyer seeking to acquire a particular business, the Fund could be precluded from investing in that business. There can be no assurance that all potentially suitable investment opportunities which come to the attention of Macquarie or the Portfolio Manager will be made available to the Fund.

Parallel Funds. To accommodate the needs of one or more particular investors who, due to legal, tax, accounting, regulatory, structural or other similar considerations, cannot appropriately invest directly in the Partnership, the General Partner or its affiliates expect to establish one or more Parallel Funds (including the Main Fund). Such Parallel Funds will not be considered Successor Funds for purposes of the restrictions under the Partnership Agreement and are permitted to invest in securities or other investments eligible for purchase by the Partnership (but will not necessarily invest in every investment made by the Partnership), and the allocation of investments between any such Parallel Funds and the Partnership generally will be pro rata based on available capital as described herein. The terms of Parallel Funds are permitted to differ from those of the Partnership including, without limitation, with respect to management fee and carried interest terms, co-investment rights, investment guidelines and limitations, and LPAC membership, which can give rise to certain conflicts of interest. See Section 10 — "Detailed Term Sheet—Parallel Funds" above. This Memorandum does not constitute an offer of the interests in any such Parallel Fund and the decision as to whether to permit any investment through a Parallel Fund shall be in the sole discretion of the General Partner or AIFM (as the case may be).

Co-Investments. Prospective investors should note that the Portfolio Manager is permitted to offer in its sole discretion, and in certain cases is expected to offer, an opportunity to co-invest in one or more Portfolio Investments alongside the Fund to certain persons (including third parties, limited partners of the Fund, existing co-investment vehicles and/or other Macquarie Funds), in certain cases with differing levels of priority of access, and is not expected to offer co-investment opportunities with respect to all of the Fund's Portfolio Investments. Prospective investors should also note that investors are not required to participate in co-investments offered by the Portfolio Manager and that the Portfolio Manager will not offer all investors the opportunity to invest in any co-investments. Moreover, transaction-specific returns, and an investor's overall returns from its exposure to the Fund's Portfolio Investments, will be affected significantly by the extent to which such investor is offered and chooses to participate in co-investment opportunities and the economic and other terms offered to such investor in connection with such opportunities. Nothing in this Memorandum constitutes a guarantee, prediction or projection of the availability of future co-investment opportunities. For the avoidance of doubt, neither the General Partner nor the Portfolio Manager shall have any obligation to offer co-investment opportunities to Limited Partners and is permitted to offer such co-investment opportunities to other Macquarie Funds (whether established within MAM Solutions or another division of Macquarie) or third parties, in addition to, or to the exclusion of, any particular, or any, Limited Partners.

Subject in all circumstances to the General Partner's (and its affiliates') legal and regulatory obligations and the legal, regulatory, tax or other similar considerations applicable to the relevant Portfolio Investment, following the allocation of each underlying investment opportunity in whole or in part to the Fund, in an amount determined by the General Partner to be appropriate in the context of the applicable transaction, the General Partner intends to consider the availability of co-investment opportunities on a case-by-case basis and generally intends to offer co-investment opportunities, if any, as described in Section 10 —“Detailed Term Sheet—Co-investment alongside the Fund.” The General Partner retains discretion to consummate any potential Portfolio Investment without providing any co-investment opportunity, or otherwise disregarding any co-investment priority, if it should deem it in the best interests of the potential Portfolio Investment or the Fund more broadly.

The General Partner will take into account various facts and circumstances deemed relevant by the General Partner in allocating co-investment opportunities, including, among others, any of the following: whether a potential co-investor has expressed an interest in evaluating co-investment opportunities; the General Partner's assessment of a potential co-investor's ability to invest an amount of capital that fits the needs of the investment (taking into account the amount of capital needed as well as the maximum number of investors that can realistically participate in the transaction) and the General Partner's assessment of a potential co-investor's ability to commit to a co-investment opportunity within the required timeframe of the particular transaction. Additional considerations also include, among others and without limitation, the geographic location of strategic third-party or other investors; the size of a potential co-investor's commitments to the Fund and strategic third-party or other investors; whether a potential co-investor has a history of participating in co-investment opportunities with Macquarie; whether a potential co-investor has committed to other Macquarie Funds; the size of the potential co-investor's interest to be held in the underlying portfolio entity as a result of the Fund's investment (which is likely to be based on the size of the potential co-investor's Capital Commitment and/or investment in the Fund); whether the potential co-investor has demonstrated a long-term and/or continuing commitment to the potential success of Macquarie, the Fund or other Macquarie Funds (including whether a potential co-investor will help establish, recognize, strengthen or cultivate relationships that may provide indirectly longer-term benefits to the Fund, other Macquarie Funds and their portfolio entities; whether the co-investor has significant capital under management by Macquarie or intends to increase such amount); whether the potential co-investor has an overall strategic relationship with Macquarie that provides it with more favorable rights with respect to co-investment opportunities; whether the co-investor is considered “strategic” to the investment because it is able to offer the Fund certain benefits, including, but not limited to, the ability to help consummate the investment; the ability to aid in monitoring the investment or the possession of certain expertise; the transparency, speed and predictability of the potential co-investor’s investment process; whether Macquarie has previously expressed a general intention to seek to offer co-investment opportunities to such potential co-investor; whether a potential co-investor has the financial and operational resources and other relevant wherewithal to evaluate and participate in a co-investment opportunity; the familiarity Macquarie has with the personnel and professionals of the investor in working together in investment contexts (which includes such potential co-investor’s history of investment in other Macquarie Funds and/or other Macquarie co-investment opportunities); the extent to which a potential co-investor has been provided a greater or lesser amount of co-investment opportunities relative to others; the ability of a potential co-investor to invest in potential follow-on investments or participate in defensive investments; the likelihood that the potential co-investor would require investment terms or rights that would complicate or jeopardize the transaction (or, alternatively, whether the investor would be willing to defer to Macquarie and assume a more passive role with respect to the investment); any interests a potential co-investor may have in any competitors of the underlying portfolio entity; the tax profile of the potential co-investor and the tax characteristics of the Portfolio Investment (including whether or not the potential co-investor would require particular structuring implementation or covenants that would not otherwise be required but for its participation or whether such co-investor’s participation is beneficial to the overall structuring of the Portfolio Investment); whether a potential co-investor’s participation in the transaction may subject the Fund or any Underlying Fund to additional regulatory requirements, review and/or scrutiny, including any necessary governmental approvals required to consummate the Portfolio Investment; whether the potential co-investor has any existing positions in the Portfolio Investment (whether in the same security in which the Fund is investing or otherwise); whether there is any evidence to suggest that there is a heightened risk with respect to the potential co-investor maintaining confidentiality; whether the potential co-investor has demonstrated a long-term and/or continuing commitment to the potential success of the Fund, other affiliated funds and/or other co-investments, including the size of such commitment; whether the potential co-investor has any known investment policies and restrictions, guideline limitations or investment objectives that are relevant to the transaction, including the need for distributions; whether the expected holding period and risk-return profile of the investment is consistent with the stated goals of the investor; whether there are any perceived public relations and reputational benefits or costs; requirements of any lender, sponsor or borrower participating in the transaction; the willingness or ability of the prospective co-investor to pay fees or other compensation to Macquarie and such other factors that Macquarie in good faith deems relevant and appropriate to consider in the circumstances. Macquarie has and is permitted to in the future establish more co-investment vehicles for one or more investors (including third party investors and investors in the Fund) in order to co-invest alongside the Fund in one or more future Portfolio Investments. The existence of these vehicles could reduce the opportunity for the Limited Partners to receive allocations of co-investment, and the amount and frequency of co-investment by any such co-investment vehicles would be at the discretion of the General Partner. Also, Macquarie is permitted to agree with investors (including the Limited Partners, Macquarie strategic relationships and third party investors) to more favorable rights or pre-negotiated terms with respect to co-investment opportunities, including with respect to discounts or rebates of performance-based compensation or management fees. Additionally, certain service providers, their affiliates and personnel are expected to invest in, or co-invest alongside, a Macquarie Fund, and due to the nature of the service provider relationships these persons have the potential to have information advantages relative to other investors or co-investors. To the extent any such arrangements are entered into, they could result in fewer co-investment opportunities being made available to the Limited Partners.

Co-investment alongside another Macquarie Fund will present conflicts of interest for the Portfolio Manager, MAM Solutions and Macquarie because (i) co-investment opportunities generally appeal to Limited Partners and third parties, (ii) to the extent co-investments made by Limited Partners are not subjected to management fees and/or performance-based compensation, co-investments blend the effective rates of compensation paid by such persons in a manner not subject to the “most-favored nation” provisions of the Partnership Agreement and (iii) co-investors’ proportionate share of a particular investment typically is not subject to the Management Fee offset provisions of the Partnership Agreement. In order to facilitate the acquisition of a Portfolio Investment, the Fund reserves the right to make (or commit to make) an investment with a view to selling a portion of the investment to co-investors or other persons prior to or following the closing of the acquisition. In such event, the Fund will bear the risk that any or all of the excess portion of such investment is not sold or can only be sold on unattractive terms, including for example the risk that a portion of the investment will be syndicated at reduced cost, at cost, or at a lower amount at a time when the General Partner believes the value of such investment has appreciated or should be higher than that paid (or willing to be paid) by a co-investor. To the extent such a syndication is made, the General Partner’s interest in limiting the Fund’s exposure to a given investment while providing a potential benefit to co-investors investing at such lower values will give rise to a potential conflict of interest. As a consequence of a failed co-investment syndication process or a co-investment syndication on unattractive terms, the Fund would be required to (i) bear the entire portion of any break-up, topping or other fees, costs and expenses related to such investment (including the proportionate share of such amounts that were expected to have been borne by co-investors), (ii) hold a larger-than-expected investment in such portfolio company, (iii) receive less-than-fair-market value for the syndicated portion of the investment and/or (iv) be diluted or realize lower than expected returns from such investment. Macquarie’s relationship with such other Macquarie Funds could influence the decisions made or the advice provided (as applicable) by the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager and/or the personnel responsible for the affairs of the Fund with respect to such investments. For example, the other Macquarie Fund could have a term that expires before or after that of the Fund and therefore would have a differing interest regarding the timing of disposition of a shared portfolio investment. In circumstances where such other Macquarie Fund exits a shared portfolio investment before the Fund, such exit could have an adverse effect on the Fund’s investment in the relevant Portfolio Investment. In addition, the other Macquarie Fund could have a different capability to participate in follow-on investments with respect to such Portfolio Investment. Similarly, instances can arise where capital available for investment with respect to a particular co-investment opportunity from other sources (due to the attractiveness of such co-investment opportunity to potential co-investors) is limited, and therefore a larger percentage of such co-investment opportunity could be offered to the Fund as a Portfolio Investment than would have otherwise been offered to it had additional capital been available from other sources. The allocation of co-investment opportunities will involve a benefit to Macquarie including, without limitation, fees or carried interest from the co-investment opportunity.

The Fund is permitted to make investments with the expectation of offering a portion of its interests therein as a co-investment opportunity to Limited Partners and/or other third parties. In the event the General Partner determines to offer an investment opportunity to co-investors, there is no assurance that the General Partner will be successful in offering such co-investment opportunity to a potential co-investor (in whole or in part), that the closing of such co-investment will be consummated in a timely manner, that the co-investment will take place on the terms and conditions that will be preferable for the Fund or that expenses incurred by the Fund with respect to the syndication of the co-investment will not be substantial. Macquarie is permitted to seek to cause the Fund or MAM Solutions to incur bid and diligence costs on behalf of potential co-investors, and the party underwriting such costs could receive a premium or cost mark up if the transaction is consummated. Although Macquarie will typically seek for any co-investors or potential co-investors to bear their share of Broken Deal Expenses, it is possible that Macquarie is not able to achieve this result, which could result in the Fund bearing a larger percentage of Broken Deal Expenses. Conversely, a potential co-investment opportunity that is not ultimately consummated can generate proceeds (e.g., due to reverse termination fees) that are not ultimately shared with the Fund and/or the Limited Partners, notwithstanding that the Fund participated in such potential co-investment opportunity as a Portfolio Investment were such opportunity ultimately consummated. In addition, in the event that the General Partner is not successful in offering a co-investment opportunity to potential co-investors (in whole or in part), the Fund will consequently hold a greater concentration and have exposure in the related investment opportunity than was initially intended, which could make the Fund more susceptible to fluctuations in value resulting from adverse economic and/or business conditions with respect thereto.

The terms of any such co-investment, including the terms of the co-investment expenses, will be separately negotiated by the General Partner (or an affiliate thereof) and such potential co-investor. While the Portfolio Manager's usual practice is to have co-investors bear their pro rata share of the relevant expenses, the terms of co-investments are expected to vary among co-investors, resulting in certain co-investors potentially bearing no share, a smaller share or a greater share of the allocable expenses vis-à-vis other co-investors. In addition, as further described in the Partnership Agreement, expenses incurred in connection with making one or more Portfolio Investments are Partnership Expenses borne by the Fund. This results in potential conflict of interest in the presence of co-investors, particularly in situations where the Fund bears the expenses in connection with such Portfolio Investments and is not reimbursed by the relevant co-investors. Although the General Partner believes the Fund is not disadvantaged in such cases, as any expenses incurred in connection with the Portfolio Investment would have been incurred by the Fund regardless of the presence of co-investors, such co-investors would receive a benefit by not sharing in such expense allocations. In all cases, the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager, and their affiliates will use their reasonable discretion to make co-investment expense allocation judgments based on the applicable facts and circumstances.

Warehousing; Syndication. Macquarie, joint venture partners, or affiliates or related parties of the foregoing are permitted to acquire and may in the future acquire investments as principal and subsequently sell some or all of such investments to the Fund and/or co-investment vehicles in an affiliate or related party transaction. Similarly, the Fund could acquire an investment and subsequently syndicate, or sell some or all of it, to MAM Solutions, other Macquarie Funds, joint venture partners, or affiliates or related parties of the foregoing or other third parties. Such related party transactions with respect to any Warehoused Investments (if applicable) are expressly authorized under the terms of the Partnership Agreement. Macquarie or its affiliates are permitted to cause transfers of Warehoused Investments (if any) to be made at a price calculated as follows: (i) the original cost of the Warehoused Investment, including the amount of any loans and follow-on investments in respect thereof, plus (ii) legal and out-of-pocket expenses related to such Warehoused Investment, minus (iii) the aggregate amount of net distributions received by the Warehouse Group in respect of such Warehoused Investment from the date of the Warehouse Group's initial investment therein through the date of the acquisition of such Warehoused Investment by the Fund, plus (iv) an amount calculated at 8.0% per annum compounded rate (compounding daily) on the amount calculated from time to time under clauses (i) - (iii) above. The price calculated pursuant to the preceding formula and paid by the Fund may not be reflective of the fair market value of any such investments, which may have declined below or increased above such amount from the date of acquisition to the time of such transfer. Macquarie or its affiliates will be permitted to retain any portion of an investment initially acquired by them with a view to syndication to co-investors or other potential purchasers to the extent such portion has not been syndicated. In addition, the Fund is permitted to acquire an investment with a view to syndicating a portion thereof to co-investors after such acquisition. Conflicts of interest can arise in connection with these affiliate transactions, including with respect to timing, structuring, pricing and other terms. The Portfolio Manager is under no obligation to make adjustments to the price of the investment (or portion thereof) being syndicated in order to reflect its actual fair value. As a consequence, to the extent a syndication is not made at fair market value, any increase of its fair value before the syndication will be detrimental to the Fund (to the benefit of such other person (including any co-investment vehicles)). Finally, during the period during which the Fund holds the investment in anticipation of its syndication to one or more persons participating directly or indirectly in such investment alongside the Fund, the Fund will ultimately bear all the risks over such period of time. By generally bearing such risks, the Fund provides a benefit to such persons who benefit from the holding of the investment by the Fund and do not necessarily compensate the Fund, fully or to any extent, for bearing that risk. Furthermore, in the event that any such intended or attempted syndication is not consummated for any reason, including but not limited to pricing considerations, the Fund will continue to bear such risks indefinitely as a result of retaining the portion of such investment that has not been syndicated in its entirety, which could also result in greater exposure to or concentration of the Fund's capital in such investment than originally intended, and/or reduce the diversification of the Fund's assets overall.

By executing a Subscription Agreement with respect to the Fund, each Limited Partner acknowledges these conflicts related to syndication of Investments and warehousing, acknowledges that these conflicts will not necessarily be resolved in favor of the Fund, agrees that Limited Partners will not necessarily be entitled to receive notice or disclosure of the occurrence of these conflicts, consents to all such transactions and arrangements to the fullest extent permitted by law, and waives any claim against the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager and their respective affiliates and releases each of them from any liability arising from the existence of any such conflict of interest.

Continuation Funds. The Portfolio Manager is permitted to establish one or more Continuation Fund for purposes of acting as a continuation vehicle with respect to one or more Portfolio Investments requiring capital that the Fund is not able and/or willing to provide or that cannot otherwise be disposed of prior to the expiration of the Fund's term, and, subject to certain limitations, the Fund can sell (or otherwise structure the transfer of) one or more of its assets to any such Continuation Fund. Given that the Portfolio Manager, the General Partner, the Founder Partner or their respective affiliates will charge management fees, potentially realize carried interest and receive reimbursements for other fees, costs and expenses with respect to any Continuation Fund, the General Partner will face conflicts of interest in determining whether to utilize a Continuation Fund when structuring the Fund's exit from any Investment. However, such conflicts will not restrict the Portfolio Manager from utilizing a Continuation Fund if it determines to do so in its sole discretion and such utilization is permitted by the Partnership Agreement. Subject to applicable legal, tax, regulatory, accounting, political, national security or similar reasons, the Portfolio Manager expects to offer Limited Partners the right to participate in any such Continuation Fund pro rata based on their investment percentages with respect to the assets being sold (or otherwise transferred or contributed) to such Continuation Fund. It is possible that new limited partners will be subscribing for interests in the Continuation Fund ("Funding Limited Partners") alongside Limited Partners that will be rolling their interests in the underlying Portfolio Investments ("Rolling Limited Partners") and that Funding Limited Partners could be offered to participate in any such Continuation Fund on terms that are more favorable than the terms offered to Rolling Limited Partners, which could result in dilution of Rolling Limited Partners' indirect interests in the relevant underlying Portfolio Investments and could adversely affect returns to such Rolling Limited Partners. Also, as a consequence of the potential for Funding Limited Partners to be offered preferred economics in the Continuation Fund, the amount and timing of returns to a Rolling Limited Partner from a Continuation Fund are not necessarily the same as those for the Funding Limited Partners, which could be paid in priority to returns to the Rolling Limited Partners.

Material, Non-Public Information. As a result of the advisory, consulting and related activities of Macquarie, as well as investments made by Macquarie and its affiliates for their own account, Macquarie will likely acquire confidential or material non-public information and could therefore be restricted from initiating transactions in certain securities that it otherwise might have initiated and could be unable to sell an investment that it otherwise might have sold. Disclosure of such information to the General Partner, Manager and/or the personnel responsible for the affairs of the Fund will be on a need-to-know basis only, and the Fund will not be free to act upon any such information. Therefore, the Fund will not be provided access to such material non-public information in the possession of Macquarie which might be relevant to an investment decision to be made by the Fund, and the Fund could initiate a transaction or sell an investment which, if such information had been known to it, would not have been undertaken. In the event any material, non-public information is disclosed to a person responsible for the affairs of the Fund, the Fund will be prohibited by applicable securities laws and Macquarie's internal policies from acting upon any such information. In addition, since Macquarie maintains an information barrier between the Fund and Macquarie's sales, trading and research departments, the trading activities of Macquarie, its affiliates outside of MAM Solutions and their customers, it is possible that the Portfolio Manager and General Partner will not be given access to material non-public information in the possession of Macquarie that could be relevant to an investment decision to be made by the Fund.

Follow-On Investments. Investments to finance follow-on acquisitions present conflicts of interest, including the determination of the equity component and other terms of the new financing as well as the allocation of the investment opportunities in the case of follow-on acquisitions by one Macquarie Fund in a Portfolio Investment in which another Macquarie Fund has previously invested. In addition, the Fund is permitted to participate (including through Underlying Funds) in re-leveraging and recapitalization transactions involving Underlying Portfolio Investments in which another Macquarie Fund has already invested or will invest. Conflicts of interest will likely arise, including determinations of whether existing investors are being cashed out at a price that is higher or lower than market value and whether new investors are paying too high or too low a price for the company or purchasing securities with terms that are more or less favorable than the prevailing market terms.

Other Fees. The Portfolio Manager and its affiliates can be entitled to receive cash and non-cash set-up, arranging, funding, monitoring, organization, directors', break-up, topping, commitment and other similar fees from Portfolio Investments in connection with the purchase, monitoring or disposition of Portfolio Investments or from unconsummated transactions or in respect of securities owned by the Fund. In many cases with respect to the implementation of such arrangements in respect of a Direct Portfolio Company, there is not an independent third party involved on behalf of the relevant Direct Portfolio Company. Therefore, a conflict of interest could exist in the determination of any such fees and other terms in the applicable agreement with the Direct Portfolio Company, which could be more favorable to the Portfolio Manager and its affiliates than terms that would otherwise be available on an arm's length market basis. There is also a risk that such fees could exceed available Management Fees to offset, resulting in an economic benefit to the Portfolio Manager and its affiliates at the expense of the Limited Partners, or that the Portfolio Manager and its affiliates will benefit from the accelerated timing of Other Fees relative to the timing on which Management Fees would otherwise be paid by the Fund. Limited Partners will receive the benefit from certain such fees only to the extent allocable to the Fund with respect to the applicable Portfolio Investment (and not co-investors or other parties). Other Fees apportioned to other transaction participants (other than the Fund) will not be included in the determination of any reduction of Management Fees for the Fund. Moreover, such other participants may not otherwise bear management fees to offset or if they do bear management fees they may not incorporate corresponding reductions in management fees, such that Macquarie retains the benefit of all or a greater amount of such portions of Other Fees compared to the Fund's allocable portion. The Portfolio Manager could be incentivized to pursue larger transactions to earn fees from such other participants.

Fees Payable to Macquarie; Underlying Portfolio Investment Relationships. Following the sale of any Portfolio Investment to a third party, including in connection with any Continuation Fund, it is possible that Macquarie and its affiliates will receive fees or other compensation from the buyer of such investment in return for providing post-sale advisory services to the buyer with respect to the management of such investment. Other compensation could include warrants to purchase an equity interest or other securities in the company for which the transaction is being undertaken. In addition, certain Macquarie professionals can be seconded to portfolio companies of Underlying Funds, with their compensation paid directly by such portfolio company, and therefore borne indirectly by the Limited Partners. Certain Macquarie professionals can also be seconded to service providers and vendors or Limited Partners of the Partnership and other Macquarie Funds to provide services, including the sourcing of investments for the Partnership or other parties. The salaries, benefits, overhead and other similar expenses for such personnel during the secondment could be borne by Macquarie and its affiliates or the organization for which the personnel are working or both. In addition, all or a portion of compensation (including benefits and other incentives or opportunities (including investment opportunities)) of Macquarie personnel seconded (on a full or part-time basis) to one or more current or former portfolio companies of Underlying Funds or of other Macquarie Funds can be paid by any of the relevant portfolio company, Macquarie or the Fund. Macquarie also reserves the right to advance compensation to seconded employees and be subsequently reimbursed by the applicable portfolio companies. Except as provided in Section 10—“Detailed Term Sheet—Management Fee Offset,” none of Macquarie’s fees for any of the foregoing (including the compensation of seconded Macquarie professionals and any fees or other compensation for post-sale advisory services) will be shared with the Fund, regardless of whether such fees or compensation is received before, during or after the relevant secondment. Any compensation customarily paid directly by Macquarie to such persons could be reduced to reflect amounts paid directly or indirectly by the portfolio company even though the Management Fee paid to the Portfolio Manager will not be reduced. In addition, it is possible that former Macquarie employees become employees, officers or directors of, other otherwise engaged by, one or more current or former Direct Portfolio Companies or portfolio companies of other Macquarie Funds. Those companies may pay such persons directors’ fees, salaries, consultant fees, other cash compensation, stock options, incentive equity or other stock awards (which, for the avoidance of doubt, may be structured through loans, profits interests or similar arrangements provided by the applicable Macquarie Fund or portfolio company) or other compensation and incentives and may reimburse such persons for any travel costs or other out-of-pocket expenses incurred in connection with the provision of their services. In addition, such former Macquarie employees are permitted to return to Macquarie following such person’s engagement with one or several portfolio companies of Underlying Funds or of other Macquarie Funds. Any fees, compensation and incentives awarded such former Macquarie employees in connection with their engagement with such companies, even if realized, vested or otherwise actually received after such person’s return to Macquarie will not constitute Other Fees, will not offset or reduce the Management Fee or otherwise be shared with the Fund. All or a portion of any fees, compensation and incentives described in this paragraph will be borne by the Fund, directly or indirectly, via its ownership interest in portfolio companies of Underlying Funds that have entered into a secondment arrangement with Macquarie or that have entered into an arrangement with a former Macquarie employee. To the extent a former Macquarie employee becomes a consultant to, or employed by, a portfolio company of an Underlying Fund, no compensation earned by such former employee will offset the Management Fee paid to the Portfolio Manager, whether or not such former employee has a remaining interest in the General Partner or an affiliated entity. Conversely, in the event that Macquarie employs a person that previously received compensation from a portfolio company of an Underlying Fund, Limited Partners will receive the benefit of any applicable offset only beginning as of the relevant start date of the person’s employment with Macquarie, and not with respect to any compensation earned prior to such date (regardless of the payment date relating to such compensation), including equity grants made prior to the date of employment that vest thereafter.

In certain instances, whether an individual who provides services to a portfolio company of an Underlying Fund should be characterized as a consultant, an employee or former employee of Macquarie, or a seconded employee can be unclear. In such cases, Macquarie will make a determination in good faith based on its evaluation of the relevant facts and circumstances. Please also refer to “—Consultants” and “—Operating Executives, Consultants, Senior Advisors” below.

Macquarie (including its affiliates and personnel performing services on behalf of Macquarie) reserves the right to provide a broad range of pre- and post-acquisition advisory and consulting services to certain Underlying Portfolio Investments, and is permitted to receive compensation from purchasers, sellers or other parties prior to or upon the closing of certain investments or other transactions by one or more Underlying Funds as compensation for services, including advice on valuing, structuring, negotiating and arranging financing for such transactions and could earn fees in connection with unconsummated transactions. Macquarie is also permitted to act as underwriter or placement agent in connection with an offering of securities by an Underlying Fund or Underlying Portfolio Investment or as underwriter, placement agent or financial advisor in connection with the public or private sale of an Underlying Portfolio Investment and Macquarie generally will be paid customary fees for such services. The General Partner, the Portfolio Manager or any of their affiliates within MAM Solutions or any other Macquarie entity may engage and retain strategic advisors, consultants and other similar professionals who are not employees or affiliates of Macquarie and who may, from time to time, receive payments from, or allocations with respect to, investments. Furthermore, Macquarie expects, in the ordinary course of its business, to offer and provide financing to various market participants. Pursuant to Section 4.6(c) of the Partnership Agreement, where Macquarie is part of a lender consortium and does not determine the pricing and other material terms of the borrowing, Macquarie is permitted to provide such financing to an Underlying Portfolio Investment without obtaining the consent of the LPAC to, or a waiver by the LPAC of, the conflicts of interest associated with such transaction. In such circumstances, the amounts described in this paragraph will not be deemed paid to or received by the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager and their affiliates or personnel within MAM Solutions and, consequently, will not be subject to the offset provisions in the Partnership Agreement.

In addition, the Fund, Underlying Funds, Underlying Portfolio Investments and/or any Direct Portfolio Companies are expected to require advisory services (including certain financial advisory, investment banking, commercial banking mergers and acquisition advice, restructuring or other similar advisory services) or lending or the provision of debt facilities, or the provision of debt or equity underwriting services (whether for transactions or otherwise), hedging or other services related to foreign exchange, interest rates or commodities (the fees, commissions and mark-ups in connection therewith, “Advisory Fees”). Subject to restrictions on principal and affiliate transactions, entities outside of MAM Solutions related to the General Partner and the Portfolio Manager, including the Macquarie Capital division of Macquarie Capital (USA) Inc. and its non-U.S. counterparts within Macquarie (“Macquarie Capital”), are permitted to be invited to provide such services to the Fund and its Underlying Portfolio Investments and, if engaged, will receive the Advisory Fees without any corresponding offset to the Management Fees.

The Macquarie Insurance Facility (“MIF”) is an insurance solutions platform with two distinct offerings for private equity funds and their portfolio investments; an aggregated buying program (“ABP”) and a managing general agent (“MGA”). MIF is managed by an affiliate of the General Partner and Manager and is available to provide services to Macquarie Funds and third-party sponsors.

In the ABP, MIF works to aggregate the insurance purchasing needs of Macquarie, Macquarie Funds and their portfolio businesses (which could include the Fund, the Underlying Funds, the Underlying Portfolio Investments and/or any Direct Portfolio Companies), Macquarie’s clients and the portfolios of third-party financial sponsors on a voluntary, non-exclusive basis. MIF then seeks to leverage this aggregated need to obtain competitive terms and pricing from a panel of preferred insurers and brokers which take a portfolio view of the aggregated insurance requirements and risks. If the Fund elects to participate in the ABP and ultimately obtains insurance from the associated insurers or through preferred brokers, MIF typically receives commissions which are paid by the insurer (subject to a cap on such commissions of 5% on the premium paid) and/or broker (subject to a cap on such commissions of 8% on the premium paid) and that comprise a percentage of the premium paid to the insurer or percentage of the fee paid to the broker.

As an MGA, MIF entities can write insurance policies on behalf of certain insurance companies (“Capacity Providers”) for Macquarie, Macquarie Funds and their portfolio businesses (which could include the Fund, the Underlying Funds, the Underlying Portfolio Investments and/or any Direct Portfolio Companies), Macquarie’s clients and the portfolios of third-party financial sponsors on a voluntary, non-exclusive basis. MIF attempts to use its familiarity with private equity sponsor business practices, structures, and objectives to provide better service and additional capacity on competitive terms for its clients. During the insurance buying process, a retail broker working on behalf of any portfolio company or partnership can elect to obtain insurance policy quotes from insurers across the market, including preferred insurers in the ABP and the MGA. If the MGA is selected to issue a policy for a portion of the desired insurance coverage, MIF will receive a fee from the Capacity Providers for administering and managing the MGA, comprising a percentage of the premium paid to the insurer (subject to a cap of 20% on the premium paid).

When utilizing either of MIF's offerings, the Fund will use an unaffiliated retail broker responsible for providing advice, evaluating quotes provided and executing the insurance buying strategy. MIF never acts as the retail broker on behalf of any party, including the Fund.

The amounts received by MIF will not be subject to the Management Fee offset provisions as described in Section 10—“Detailed Term Sheet—Management Fee Offset.” With respect to Portfolio Investments, the applicable Underlying Fund or Direct Portfolio Company (and not the General Partner or the Portfolio Manager) makes the decision whether to use MIF. MIF operates in the U.S. through the regulated legal entity, Commerce and Industry Brokerage Inc. (“CIB”). CIB is a New York State licensed insurance brokerage and is licensed to conduct its regulated activities in all 51 U.S. jurisdictions. For additional information on the MIF Insurance Program fee and fee structure, refer to Section 11—“Risk Factors and Potential Conflicts of Interest.” For the avoidance of doubt, Advisory Fees described above and insurer/broker commissions and amounts received by MIF shall not constitute Other Fees, shall not reduce Management Fees and shall not be included in calculating the Reduction Amount. For the avoidance of doubt, any interest payments or other amounts received by Macquarie in connection with any borrowings by the Fund or any of its subsidiaries where Macquarie is part of a debt consortium but does not determine the price and material terms of such borrowing (as contemplated in the Partnership Agreement) will not constitute Advisory Fees. The Fund is not obliged to use the services of Macquarie Capital or MIF and is permitted to utilize the services of third parties if deemed appropriate by the General Partner or Manager in their respective sole discretion. Any fee payable to MIF under the MIF Insurance Program is in addition to any commission or other payment received by MIF under the preceding paragraphs.

Certain of the investment or other activities of Macquarie and the Macquarie Funds (including with respect to Underlying Portfolio Investments) could compete, or otherwise give rise to potential conflicts of interest, with the Fund. As a general matter, Macquarie, its affiliates and other Macquarie Funds have interests that are not necessarily aligned with those of MAM Solutions or the Fund and have no duty to resolve any conflicts in favor of the Fund or to otherwise act in the interests of the Fund.

The Portfolio Manager and its affiliates can be expected to receive certain intangible and/or other benefits and/or perquisites arising or resulting from their activities on behalf of the Fund which will not be subject to the management fee offset or otherwise shared with the Fund and/or Limited Partners. For example, in the course of Macquarie's operations, including research, due diligence, investment monitoring, operational improvements and investment activities, Macquarie and its personnel expect to receive and benefit from information, “know-how,” experience, analysis and data relating to fund or portfolio company (as applicable) operations, terms, trends, market demands, customers, vendors and other metrics (collectively, “Macquarie Information”). In many cases, Macquarie Information will include tools, procedures and resources developed by Macquarie to organize or systematize Macquarie Information for ongoing or future use. Although Macquarie expects Macquarie Funds and their portfolio companies generally to benefit from Macquarie's possession of Macquarie Information, it is possible that any benefits will be experienced solely by other or future Macquarie Funds and/or their portfolio companies and not by the Fund, its Underlying Portfolio Investments or the portfolio company from which the Macquarie Information was originally received. Macquarie Information will be the sole intellectual property of Macquarie and solely for the use of Macquarie. Macquarie reserves the right to use, share, license, sell or monetize Macquarie Information, without offsetting or otherwise reducing Management Fees, and the Fund, any other Macquarie Fund and their respective portfolio companies will not receive any financial or other benefit of such use, sharing, licensure, sale or monetization. Additionally, airline travel, hotel stays, lodging or rental car fees incurred as Fund expenses typically could result in “miles” or “points” or credit in loyalty/status programs, and such benefits and/or amounts will, whether or not de minimis or difficult to value, inure exclusively to the personnel of the Portfolio Manager and its affiliates (and not the Fund or Limited Partners) even though the cost of the underlying service is borne by the Fund and/or Underlying Portfolio Investments. To the extent Other Fees are paid in kind (including through securities, option grants or other interests), Macquarie is permitted to calculate the amount of offset based on the then-current value of the in-kind payment, rather than the ultimate value of the interests as of a future date.

Consultants. The General Partner, Macquarie and/or their affiliates and their personnel and related parties engage and retain consultants (including Third Party Consultants), to provide a variety of consultant services, including services that are similar in nature to those provided by the portfolio management team, such as deal sourcing. Specifically, the Fund is expected to have access to certain consultants (including Third Party Consultants) that are infrastructure investment professionals and could have a role in sourcing investments on behalf of the Fund. Such consultants could be treated as access persons of the Portfolio Manager (as such term is defined under the Advisers Act), but they are not employees or sub-advisers of the Portfolio Manager. These consultants are not subject to any devotion of time requirements to the Fund under the Partnership Agreement and could have conflicting obligations to other investment funds or clients not managed by Macquarie. As further discussed below, the compensation payable to such consultants will be treated as a Partnership Expense and will not offset, or otherwise reduce, the Management Fees. Similarly, the Partnership, Underlying Funds, other Macquarie Funds and their portfolio companies retain and pay compensation to consultants to provide services, or to undertake a build-up strategy to acquire and develop assets and businesses in a particular sector or involving a particular strategy. Consulting services arrangements could give rise to conflicts of interests as described below and the potential for the existence of a conflict is magnified where the consultant is an affiliate, or has a relationship with, the Fund, other Macquarie Funds and/or Macquarie, that bears indicia of affiliation. For example, a former Macquarie employee can be engaged by Macquarie, MAM Solutions, the Portfolio Manager or any of their respective affiliates to provide consultant services in respect of one or several portfolio investments of Macquarie-Managed Underlying Funds, portfolio companies of other Macquarie Funds, or to undertake a build-up strategy to acquire and develop assets and businesses in a particular sector or involving a particular strategy, including deal sourcing. It is possible that a consulting services arrangement with a Macquarie employee or an employee of an Underlying Portfolio Investment is negotiated while such person is still an employee of Macquarie or such Underlying Portfolio Investment and, following the termination of such person’s employment with Macquarie, such person could provide consultant services exclusively to portfolio companies of Macquarie Funds (including one or more Macquarie-Managed Underlying Funds) and Macquarie or could also provide such services to other clients (which potentially includes competitors of Macquarie). Such former Macquarie employee or employees of Underlying Portfolio Investment may return to Macquarie or such Underlying Portfolio Investment as an employee or, in the case of a former Macquarie employee, be hired as an employee, officer or director of an Underlying Portfolio Investment or a portfolio company of another Macquarie Fund, or, in the case of a former Underlying Portfolio Investment employee, be hired as an employee of Macquarie, after having served in a consulting capacity to Macquarie, the Fund or another Macquarie Fund.

Any amounts paid by the Underlying Portfolio Investment to consultants in connection with the above, including performance-based compensation (e.g., promote), retainers and expense reimbursements, will be treated as Partnership Expenses or expenses of Underlying Portfolio Investment, as the case may be, and will not, even if they have the effect of reducing any retainers or minimum amounts otherwise payable by the General Partner, Macquarie and/or their affiliates, be chargeable to the General Partner, Macquarie and/or their affiliates or deemed paid to or received by the General Partner, Macquarie and/or their affiliates, or offset or reduce any Management Fees to the General Partner, Macquarie and/or their affiliates or be subordinated to return of the Limited Partner’s capital. In addition, and for the avoidance of doubt, any fees, compensation and incentives awarded to former Macquarie employees or former employees of Underlying Portfolio Investment in connection with consulting service arrangements of the type described above, even if such fees, compensation and/or incentives are realized, vested or otherwise actually received after such person's return to Macquarie or an Underlying Portfolio Investment (or vice versa) will not constitute Other Fees, will not offset or reduce the Management Fee or otherwise be shared with the Fund. Amounts charged by such consultants, including, for the avoidance of doubt, consultants that are former Macquarie employees or former employees of an Underlying Portfolio Investment, will not necessarily be confirmed as being comparable to market rates for such services.

Also, consultants, including former Macquarie employees and former Underlying Portfolio Investment employees, are permitted to co-invest alongside the Fund or Macquarie-Managed Underlying Funds in Underlying Portfolio Investments and Portfolio Investments (including but not limited to Underlying Portfolio Investments and Portfolio Investments that they source or for which they provide advice), participate in long-term incentive plans of an Underlying Portfolio Investment, and invest directly in Macquarie-Managed Underlying Fund or in vehicles controlled by the Partnership, with reduced or waived Management Fees and carried interest. Such arrangement, particularly co-investment rights granted to consultants, could result in a Macquarie-Managed Underlying Fund investing less capital than it otherwise would have in such transactions. It is possible that the benefits to consultants described in this paragraph may continue after termination of status as a consultant or Third Party Consultant.

The time, dedication and scope of work of a consultant (including a Third Party Consultant) varies considerably. Some consultants (including Third Party Consultants) work only for the Fund or Macquarie-Managed Underlying Funds, while other consultants have other clients. Consultants could have conflicts of interest between their work for a Macquarie-Managed Underlying Fund, on the one hand, and themselves or other clients, on the other hand, and the General Partner, Macquarie and/or their affiliates are limited in their ability to monitor and mitigate these conflicts.

Operating Executives, Consultants, Senior Advisors. The Portfolio Manager, Underlying Fund managers and their respective affiliates engage and retain operating executives, consultants, strategic or senior advisors, and/or other similar professionals who are not employees, personnel or affiliates of the Portfolio Manager (but, in certain circumstances and/or limited roles, are exclusive to MAM Solutions and/or the Portfolio Manager and/or share office space, accounting, network, communications, administration and other support benefits with MAM Solutions) although such persons can include former personnel of Macquarie, a portfolio company of a Macquarie-Managed Underlying Fund or a portfolio company of another Macquarie Fund. Additionally, it is possible that such persons in the future become personnel of or be seconded to Macquarie or a portfolio company of another Macquarie-Managed Underlying Fund. Consequently, the determination of whether individuals are operating executives, consultants or senior advisors is expected to vary and/or be revisited, and this can result in conflicts of interest where certain changes in status or categorization would reduce costs that MAM Solutions or its affiliates otherwise would be required to bear. Such operating executives, consultants, strategic or senior advisors, and/or other similar professionals are permitted to, receive payments from, or allocations or performance-based compensation with respect to, a portfolio company of a Macquarie-Managed Underlying Fund (as well as from the Fund, in the case of consultants) for their services (including for serving on a portfolio company's board of directors), and such amounts would reduce such Macquarie-Managed Underlying Fund's returns and not be subordinate to the return of Fund's capital contributions. In such circumstances, such payments from, or allocations with respect to, portfolio companies and/or the Macquarie-Managed Underlying Fund will not, even if they have the effect of reducing any retainers or minimum amounts otherwise payable by Macquarie-Managed Underlying Fund's manager ("Underlying Manager") or if such payments or allocations are realized, vested or otherwise actually received after such person's becomes an employee of or is seconded to Macquarie or an Underlying Portfolio Investment, be deemed paid to or received by the Underlying Manager and such amounts will not be subject to the management fee offset provisions of the partnership agreements, and therefore, such payments will ultimately be borne by the Fund. These operating executives, consultants, strategic or senior advisors and/or other professionals are permitted to receive reimbursement of expenses (including travel costs) incurred in connection with their activities on behalf of the Fund. These operating executives, consultants, strategic or senior advisors and/or other professionals' expenses are required to be reimbursed whether or not there is overlap in expertise, function or services performed by the Portfolio Manager's personnel. In addition, such operating executives, consultants, strategic or senior advisors and/or other professionals can be compensated or incentivized by equity participation rights or offers in respect of Macquarie-Managed Underlying Funds or the Fund. Such rights and offers will be granted at the sole discretion of the General Partner or the general partner of the applicable Macquarie-Managed Underlying Fund, as applicable, and can be in the form of carried interest participation, the ability to invest in, or co-invest alongside, the Fund, such Macquarie-Managed Underlying Fund or any other Macquarie Fund, or otherwise participate in equity plans for management of any Underlying Portfolio Investment (which could have the effect of reducing the amount invested by a Macquarie-Managed Underlying Fund in any Underlying Portfolio Investment). Due to the nature of the relationships and the timing of services, these persons have the potential to have information advantages relative to other investors or co-investors, and likely will be offered co-investment opportunities before such opportunities are presented to other prospective co-investors. It is possible that service providers consider the overall level of work performed for Macquarie, the Fund or the portfolio companies of the Macquarie Funds in determining whether to provide reduced rates or benefits to Macquarie. Due to the nature of the relationships and the timing of services these persons have the potential to have information advantages relative to other investors or co-investors, and likely will be offered co-investment opportunities before such opportunities are presented to other prospective co-investors. Based on the foregoing factors, Limited Partners should not expect operating executives, consultants, strategic or senior advisors and/or other professionals of the Portfolio Manager or the Fund to provide services that will be the most beneficial to any Limited Partner or group of Limited Partners. Such equity participation offers or rights (which, for the avoidance of doubt, can be structured through loans, profits, participation or equity interests or similar arrangements provided by Macquarie-Managed Underlying Fund or an Underlying Portfolio Investment) are generally expected (but not required) to relate to those Underlying Portfolio Investments in which the relevant operating executive, consultant, strategic or senior advisor and/or other professional is involved. The compensation arrangement, including any equity participation rights, for individual operating executives, consultants, strategic or senior advisors and/or other professionals will be tailored based on the specific services such person is expected to provide to Macquarie, the Fund, a Macquarie-Managed Underlying Fund and/or a specific portfolio company of a Macquarie-Managed Underlying Fund, as well as Macquarie's history, experience and relationship with such person. Additionally, and notwithstanding the foregoing, these operating executives, consultants, strategic or senior advisors and/or other professionals can include (or have the preferred right to be) investors in the Fund and other Macquarie Funds. They can be compensated (including pursuant to retainers and expense reimbursement) by the Fund, the Underlying Managers, Macquarie-Managed Underlying Funds and/or portfolio companies of a Macquarie-Managed Underlying Fund or otherwise uncompensated unless and until an engagement with such portfolio company develops. To the extent that operating executives, consultants or senior advisors are paid retainers or guaranteed minimum compensation amounts, there is the possibility that the Fund or certain portfolio companies or Macquarie-Managed Underlying Funds will bear a greater share of such compensation due to the utilization of such operating executives', consultants' or senior advisors' services at a time when fewer Underlying Portfolio Investments make use of such operating executives, consultants or senior advisors. Under many of these arrangements, there can be no assurance that the amount of compensation paid in a particular year will be proportional to the amount of hours worked or the amount or tangible work product generated by such operating executives, consultants or senior advisors. There can be no assurance that any of the operating executives, consultants, strategic or senior advisors and/or other professionals will continue to serve in such roles and/or continue their arrangements with Macquarie, the Fund, Macquarie-Managed Underlying Funds and/or any Underlying Portfolio Investment throughout the term of the Fund.

Other Affiliate Transactions. Except as otherwise provided in the Partnership Agreement, the Fund will not, without the consent of either the LPAC or a majority in interest of the Combined Limited Partners, purchase or sell any Portfolio Investment directly to or from, as the case may be, Macquarie and its affiliates or any Macquarie Fund. Such LPAC or such majority in interest consent can include any transaction terms the Portfolio Manager requests the LPAC or such majority in interest to approve, including any terms related to transaction costs (including reimbursement of any costs and expenses). It is possible that situations arise where another Macquarie Fund incurs diligence, sourcing and/or other similar costs for a potential investment but ultimately is unable to consummate such transaction in light of availability of capital or otherwise, and the Portfolio Manager determines that such investment is an appropriate investment for the Fund. In such case, the Fund is permitted to consummate such Portfolio Investment and reimburse such other Macquarie Fund for all diligence, sourcing or other similar costs incurred in connection with such potential investment. By executing a subscription agreement for the Fund, each Limited Partner will be deemed to consent to all such transactions with Macquarie and its affiliates described above to the fullest extent permitted by law.

The Partnership Agreement provides that the Fund is permitted to enter into affiliate transactions with the General Partner and its affiliates, which give rise to potential conflicts of interest that will not necessarily be resolved in favor of the Fund. It is also possible for conflicts to arise where the Fund co-invests with Macquarie or another Macquarie Fund (including with regards to timing, structuring and terms of such investment and its disposition or restructuring). Conflicts can also arise where the Fund invests in equity instruments of a Portfolio Investment while an affiliate acts as lender to such Portfolio Investment. In this circumstance, Macquarie will potentially have conflicting interests as an equity holder, on the one hand, and as a debt holder, on the other. Other considerations include, for example, that if such Portfolio Investment goes into bankruptcy, becomes insolvent or is otherwise unable to meet its payment obligations or comply with its debt covenants, conflicts of interest could arise between the holders of different types of securities as to what actions the Portfolio Investment should take. In addition, conflicts can arise in determining the amount of an investment, if any, to be offered among potential investors and the respective terms thereof. There can be no assurance that the return on the Fund's investment will be equivalent to or better than the returns obtained by the other affiliates participating in the transaction.

Macquarie is expected to provide interim acquisition financing or other forms of credit in connection with an investment by, or otherwise act as a lender to, an entity in which the Fund, directly or indirectly, invests. The Fund is permitted to also borrow money from Macquarie as provided for by the Partnership Agreement. Subject to the provisions of the Partnership Agreement, by executing a subscription agreement for Interests in the Fund, a Limited Partner will consent to all such counterparty transactions with Macquarie. It is possible that Macquarie's interests as a lender or counterparty could be in conflict with those of the Fund and the interests of its Limited Partners, including in circumstances where a Macquarie balance sheet entity acquires an investment as principal and subsequently sells some or all of it to the Fund and/or co-investment vehicles, particularly if such syndication or warehousing is executed in a series of transactions over time. The General Partner and the Portfolio Manager, which are responsible for pursuing the Fund's investment objective, are affiliates of Macquarie and can encounter conflicts where, for example, a decision regarding the acquisition, holding or disposition of a Portfolio Investment is considered attractive or advantageous for the Fund yet poses a risk of economic loss of principal to Macquarie as lender or counterparty. If such conflicts arise, potential investors should be aware that certain business units of Macquarie reserves the right to act to protect Macquarie's own interests as a lender or counterparty ahead of the Fund's investment interests.

Further conflicts could arise once the Fund and other affiliates have made their respective investments. For example, if an Underlying Fund or Underlying Portfolio Investment goes into bankruptcy or reorganization, becomes insolvent or otherwise experiences financial distress or is unable to meet its payment obligations or comply with covenants relating to securities held by the Fund or by the other affiliates, such other affiliates could have an interest that conflicts with the interests of the Fund. If additional financing is necessary as a result of financial or other difficulties, it is not necessarily in the best interests of the Fund or any Underlying Fund to provide such additional financing.

By executing a subscription agreement, each Limited Partner will consent to all such counterparty transactions with Macquarie and its affiliates to the fullest extent permitted by law. The interests of Macquarie and/or its affiliates as a counterparty could be in conflict with those of the Fund and the interests of the Limited Partners.

Other Trading and Investing Activities. Certain other Macquarie Funds, Macquarie and its affiliates are permitted to invest in securities of publicly traded companies that may be actual or potential investments of one or more Underlying Funds. The trading activities of those other Macquarie Funds will likely differ from or be inconsistent with activities undertaken for the account of the Fund in such securities or related securities. In addition, the Fund could be unable to pursue an investment as a result of such trading activities by Macquarie, its affiliates or certain other Macquarie Funds, vehicles or accounts or clients. In addition, the trading activities of Macquarie and its clients in publicly traded securities and the research recommendations of Macquarie with respect to publicly traded securities will likely differ from, or be inconsistent with, the interests of and activities which are undertaken for the account of the Fund in such securities or related securities. For example, the Fund could dispose of securities at a time when Macquarie's research is recommending a purchase of such securities. The Portfolio Manager intends to make its own independent determination with respect to the trading activities of the Fund. The officers, directors, members, managers and personnel of the General Partner and the Portfolio Manager are permitted to trade in securities for their own accounts, subject to (i) the Portfolio Manager's Code of Ethics which outlines the Portfolio Manager's policies and procedures regarding standards of conduct, personal investment transactions, and handling of material non-public information and (ii) restrictions and reporting requirements as required by law or otherwise as determined by the General Partner or the Portfolio Manager, as applicable.

Macquarie's Status as a Public Company. As a consequence of Macquarie's status as a public company, the officers, directors, members, managers and personnel of the General Partner and the Portfolio Manager could take into account certain considerations and other factors in connection with the management and advice with respect to of the business and affairs of the Fund and its affiliates that would not necessarily be taken into account if Macquarie were not a public company, including the need to generate value and returns for the shareholders of Macquarie. Such persons could have fiduciary duties to shareholders of Macquarie as a public company that conflict with their duties to the Fund or otherwise not be conducive to acting in the best interests of the Fund. As a public company, Macquarie is subject to certain disclosures and reporting requirements which could necessitate the disclosure and/or reporting of information in a manner or timeframe which would otherwise not apply, and such disclosure or reporting could adversely affect the interests of Macquarie (and indirectly, the interest of the Fund) as well as the interests of the Fund and its investors to a greater extent than would otherwise be the case. While management of the Fund is conducted independently from Macquarie, circumstances could arise in which decisions are taken in the interests of shareholders of Macquarie, its direct and indirect subsidiaries and affiliates, which could, directly or indirectly, impact the Fund and/or its activities and which, more generally, do not necessarily align with the interests of the Fund.

Other Activities of Management. The Fund does not have a team solely dedicated to the Fund. Macquarie personnel responsible for the affairs of the Fund intend to devote such time and attention as the Portfolio Manager, in its sole discretion, deems reasonably necessary to conduct the business affairs of the Fund in an appropriate manner and otherwise as required in accordance with the Partnership Agreement, and in that regard, in connection with any standard calling for "active involvement" such term shall be active involvement consistent with such person's roles and responsibilities within MAM Solutions. However, Macquarie personnel, including all of those responsible for the affairs of the Fund, have commitments to, and will work on other projects unrelated to, the Fund, including Macquarie's existing investments, other investment funds and future activities. In addition, members of MAM Solutions and the other divisions of Macquarie expect to engage in other permitted investment activities such as (i) the continuing involvement of such persons (A) as passive owners, stockholders and debtholders in connection with personal investments and (B) as passive investors in professionally managed and other third-party hedge fund, private equity fund, fund of funds and other private investment entities and vehicles; (ii) the involvement by such persons in other civic, professional, industry and charitable activities; and (iii) the involvement of such persons with other current and future Macquarie Funds. Accordingly, conflicts will arise in the availability and allocation of management and other professional resources between the Fund and these other matters. The possibility exists that the companies with which one or more of such persons is involved could engage in transactions that would be suitable for the Fund, but in which the Fund might be unable to invest.

Possible Future Activities. Macquarie reserves the right to expand the range of services that it provides over time, including sponsoring and managing investment funds, vehicles and accounts, or entering into advisory relationships with clients, that differ in terms of their structure and/or applicable regulatory regime(s) and intend to pursue a strategy that involves making secondaries investments in managed infrastructure investment. Except as provided in the Partnership Agreement, Macquarie, the General Partner and the Portfolio Manager will not be restricted in the scope of its business or in the performance of any such services (whether now offered or undertaken in the future) even if such activities could give rise to conflicts of interest, and whether or not such conflicts are described or contemplated herein. Macquarie has, and will continue to develop, relationships with a significant number of companies, financial sponsors and their senior managers, including relationships with clients who currently hold or have held investments similar to those intended to be made by the Fund. These clients could themselves represent appropriate investment opportunities for the Fund or could compete with the Fund for investment opportunities or Limited Partners for co-investment opportunities.

Valuation Matters. The value of all investments or of property received in exchange for any investments will be the fair values determined by the General Partner pursuant to guidelines prepared based upon reported valuations from Underlying Funds, U.S. generally accepted accounting principles and Macquarie's internal valuation policies. The carrying value of an investment potentially does not reflect the price at which the investment could be sold in the market, and the difference between carrying value and the ultimate sales price could be material. Valuations are only estimates of future results that are based upon assumptions made at the time the valuations are developed and there can be no assurance that any projected results on which valuations are based will be obtained, and actual results could vary significantly from the valuations. General economic, political, regulatory and market conditions and the actual operations of Underlying Portfolio Investments, which are not predictable, can have a material adverse impact on the reliability of such valuations. Additionally, under certain limited circumstances set forth in the Partnership Agreement, distributions in-kind of investments for which market quotations are not readily available are permitted to be made. The valuation of such investments, and the Founder Partner's carried interest in respect thereof, will be determined by the General Partner in accordance with procedures set forth in the Partnership Agreement. Certain personnel of the Portfolio Manager or MAM Solutions could have compensation tied to the Fund's investments which could create conflicts. The valuation of investments will affect the amount and timing of the Founder Partner's Carried Interest and, following the expiration of the Investment Period, the amount of Management Fees payable to the Portfolio Manager. Valuations are subject to determinations, judgments and opinions and other third parties or investors could disagree with such valuations. The valuation of investments could also affect the ability of Macquarie to raise a Successor Fund. As a result, there are circumstances where the General Partner is incentivized to determine valuations that are higher than the actual fair value of investments.

Side Letters; Other Arrangements. The General Partner and/or its affiliates will enter into a side letter or other similar agreement with a particular Limited Partner or group or category of Limited Partners with respect to the Fund without the approval of any other Limited Partner, which would have the effect of establishing rights under, altering or supplementing the terms of the Partnership Agreement with respect to such Limited Partner or group or category of Limited Partners in a manner different or more favorable to such Limited Partner or group or category of Limited Partners than those applicable to other Limited Partners. Similarly, the general partner of an Underlying Fund could enter into similar arrangements with the other limited partners of such Underlying Fund without the approval of the Fund. Such rights or terms in any such side letter or other similar agreement are generally expected to include, without limitation, (i) the General Partner's agreement to extend information rights or additional informational rights for a Limited Partner or additional reporting obligations of the Fund to such Limited Partner, including, without limitation, to accommodate special tax, regulatory, policy or other circumstances of such Limited Partner, (ii) waiver or modification of certain confidentiality obligations and/or documentation that might be requested by the General Partner for the benefit of lenders or other persons extending credit to or arranging financing for the Fund, (iii) consent of the General Partner to certain transfers by such Limited Partner or other exercises by the General Partner of its discretionary authority under the Partnership Agreement for the benefit of such Limited Partner, (iv) restrictions on, or special rights of such Limited Partner with respect to the activities of the General Partner, (v) withdrawal rights due to legal, regulatory or policy matters, including matters related to political contributions, gifts and other such policies, which could materially increase the percentage interest of other Limited Partners in, and their contribution obligations for, future investments and expenses, and reduce the overall size of the Fund, (vi) other rights or terms necessary in light of particular legal, regulatory, tax, accounting or public policy characteristics of a Limited Partner, (vii) economic rights, for example with respect to any Carried Interest, expenses and/or Management Fees to be charged to a Limited Partner (by way of rebates, discounts or otherwise), (viii) additional obligations and restrictions of the General Partner and the Fund with respect to the structuring of any Portfolio Investment (including with respect to Alternative Investment Vehicles) in light of the legal, tax and regulatory considerations of particular Limited Partners and (ix) preferential and/or priority access to, and economic and other terms applicable to, co-investment opportunities, including Management Fee and Carried Interest reductions in respect of the Partnership if a Limited Partner does not invest in a specified amount of Fund or MAM Solutions co-investment opportunities, which could incentivize the General Partner to present an investment opportunity as a co-investment to such Limited Partner and other investors with priority access co-investment rights rather than to the Fund. Similar rights or terms will be granted with respect to Parallel Funds. Such side agreements will generally permit such Limited Partners to take actions on the basis of information not available to other Limited Partners (or the Fund) that do not have the benefit of such agreements, and many of the terms of the side letters will not be subject to the "most-favored nation" provisions of the Partnership Agreement. Other side letter rights are likely to confer benefits on the relevant limited partner at the expense of the Fund or of the Limited Partners as a whole, including in the event that a side letter confers additional reporting, information rights and/or transfer rights, the costs and expenses of which are expected to be borne by the Fund. A copy of the applicable provisions of each side letter (without duplication) that is entered into by the Fund with the Limited Partners will be distributed in connection with the most-favored-nations side letter election process that will take place following the Final Closing Date. Moreover, notwithstanding the fact that a Limited Partner could be eligible to make elections in connection with such most-favored nations process, such Limited Partner will not have the right to elect certain rights or benefits pursuant to such process as set forth in the Partnership Agreement. Any rights or terms so established in a side letter or other similar agreement with a Limited Partner will govern solely with respect to such Limited Partner (but not any of such Limited Partner's assignees or transferees unless so specified in such side letter) and will not require the approval of any other Limited Partner notwithstanding any other provision of the Partnership Agreement. Notwithstanding any other provision of the Partnership Agreement and, for the avoidance of doubt, matters arising under any side letter or other similar agreement with a Limited Partner are considered matters contemplated in the Partnership Agreement and the limitation on liability provisions therein shall apply equally to any side letter.

Possibility of Different Information Rights. As described above, certain Limited Partners could request information from Macquarie relating to the Fund and its Portfolio Investments and, to the extent such information is readily available or can be obtained without unreasonable effort or expense, Macquarie reserves the right to provide such Limited Partners with the information requested to the extent practicable and germane to monitoring their interests in the Fund (subject to confidentiality obligations and other similar considerations). Limited Partners could also be entitled to receive additional or customized reporting relating to their investment in the Fund pursuant to their side letters, which are particular to such Limited Partners and not be available to other Limited Partners and certain Limited Partners could receive information with respect to Portfolio Investments by virtue of such Limited Partner's participation in other Macquarie Funds. Any costs and expenses incurred in compliance with this paragraph will be considered Partnership Expenses. Any such Limited Partners that request and receive such information will consequently possess information regarding the business and affairs of the Fund or an Underlying Fund or Direct Portfolio Company that is not generally known to other Limited Partners. As a result, certain Limited Partners could be able to take actions on the basis of such information which, in the absence of such information, other Limited Partners do not take.

Insurance. The General Partner reserves the right to cause the Fund to purchase, and/or bear all or a portion of premiums, fees, costs and expenses (including any expenses or fees of insurance brokers) for insurance to insure the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager, their affiliates and/or their respective partners, directors, officers, employees, members of the LPAC and other indemnified parties (and, in certain circumstances, such person's agents and representatives), against liability in connection with the Fund and its activities. This could include all or a portion of any premiums, fees, costs and expenses for one or more "umbrella" or other insurance policies maintained by the Portfolio Manager or its affiliates that cover one or more of the Fund, other Macquarie Funds and the Portfolio Manager (including their respective partners, directors, officers, employees, members and other indemnified parties). Insurance that contains benefits to the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager, their affiliates and other indemnified parties can be obtained as part of the overall package of terms offered by the provider to the Fund. The insurance provider could be unable to break out the cost of any such benefits to the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager, their affiliates and other indemnified parties, so that those costs can be allocated to the General Partner and not the Fund. Thus, the Fund could bear the cost of insurance which includes a benefit to the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager, their affiliates and other indemnified parties as part of the coverage provided. Other Macquarie clients will also share in the costs of insurance pro rata based on assets under management of the Fund and such other clients.

The Fund and Macquarie-Managed Underlying Funds are permitted to enter into arrangements with other Macquarie Funds and their respective portfolio companies whereby property and/or other types of insurance is procured as a group where the insurance provider charges lower premiums to the group than it would on an individual asset-by-asset basis. In such event, the obligation to pay the premiums on such group policies could be allocated in accordance with the relative values of the respective assets that are insured by such policies or assets under management of the applicable Macquarie Funds (or other factors that the Portfolio Manager in good faith determines). Additionally, the Fund and such other Macquarie Funds (and their respective portfolio companies) are permitted to jointly contribute to a pool of funds that can be used to pay losses that are subject to the deductibles on any such group insurance policies, which contributions could similarly be allocated in accordance with the relative values of the respective assets that are insured by such policies (or other factors that the Portfolio Manager reasonably determines).

The Portfolio Manager reserves the right to make corrective allocations should it determine subsequently that such adjustments are necessary or advisable. There can be no assurance that different allocations or arrangements than those implemented by the Portfolio Manager as provided above would not result in the Fund and Macquarie-Managed Underlying Funds bearing less premiums, deductibles, fees, costs and expenses for insurance policies.

Allocation of Expenses. The General Partner and the Portfolio Manager will be required to decide whether costs and expenses are to be borne by the Fund, on the one hand, or General Partner, the Portfolio Manager, and their affiliates and other Macquarie Funds, on the other, and whether certain costs and expenses should be allocated between or among the Fund, on the one hand, and another Macquarie Funds on the other hand. Certain expenses could be suitable for only the Partnership, a particular Parallel Fund, a particular Feeder Fund or another participating Macquarie Fund and borne only by such fund, vehicle or account, or expenses are permitted to be allocated pro rata among each other participating Macquarie Fund and the Partnership and all Parallel Funds even if the expenses relate only to particular Macquarie Fund(s) therein (including, for the avoidance of doubt, the expenses of any Feeder Funds and any Parallel Funds and each of their respective alternative investment vehicles). Certain expenses incurred in connection with a particular matter could be borne in part by the Fund and in part by the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager, and their affiliates when determined by the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager, and their affiliates in good faith to be equitable or appropriate under the circumstances. The General Partner, the Portfolio Manager, and their affiliates intend to generally allocate partnership expenses, including partnership expenses of the Feeder Funds, any Parallel Funds and alternative investment vehicles, and organizational expenses of the Partnership, the Feeder Funds and any Parallel Funds between or among the Partnership, the Feeder Funds, any Parallel Funds, and each of their respective alternative investment vehicles, as applicable, on a pro rata and fair equitable basis based on fund size (including amount of Undrawn Capital Commitments), asset size or fair value, number of investors, number of investments, number of users, invested capital or available capital, as applicable, but in certain circumstances are permitted to allocate such expenses in a different manner if the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager, and their affiliates determine in good faith that doing so is more equitable or appropriate under the circumstances. The General Partner, the Portfolio Manager, and their affiliates will seek to make expense allocation judgments in their fair, reasonable sole discretion, notwithstanding their interest in the outcome, and reserve the right, in their sole discretion, to make corrective allocations should they determine that such corrections are necessary or advisable. The selection of an equitable and appropriate expense allocation methodology involves inherently subjective elements, as does the implementation of any allocation methodology that involves estimates (e.g., of time spent by personnel or of secondees of the Portfolio Manager or its affiliates on providing in-house administrative services), and there can be no assurance that the Fund will not be required to bear more than its pro rata portion of any type or sub-type of fees and expenses. A different manner of allocation could result in the Fund or another Macquarie Fund bearing less (or more) expenses. In addition, there could be circumstances when the Portfolio Manager has considered a potential investment in a portfolio investment on behalf of the Fund, has determined not to make such investment and an investment is eventually made in such portfolio investment by another Macquarie Fund. In these circumstances, such other Macquarie Fund would benefit from research by the investment team's diligence and/or from costs borne by the Fund in pursuing the potential portfolio investment. While it is generally expected that such other Macquarie Fund will reimburse the Fund for expenses incurred in connection with such investment (as described above), it is possible that such other Macquarie Fund will not be in a position to reimburse the Fund for all or any such expenses and, in such circumstances, such other Macquarie Fund will not be required to reimburse the Fund. It is also possible that Macquarie considers an opportunity for another Macquarie Fund that is not pursued and an investment is later made in such portfolio investment by the Fund. In those circumstances, the Fund could benefit from Macquarie's diligence and/or from costs borne by such other Macquarie Fund, and will generally be required to reimburse such other Macquarie Fund, subject to any transaction-specific circumstances that could, in Macquarie's sole discretion, make such reimbursement inappropriate, impossible or otherwise undesirable. Macquarie will make such judgments regarding appropriate allocation notwithstanding its interest in the outcome, in accordance with the Partnership Agreement and the relevant governing documents of such other Macquarie Fund. Conflicts of interest are expected to arise in allocating any such fees and expenses between Macquarie, the Fund and other Macquarie Funds.

In certain limited circumstances, the Fund is expected to pay an expense common to it and one or more other Macquarie Funds (including, without limitation, legal expenses for a transaction in which all such funds participate, or other fees or expenses in connection with services the benefits of which are received by the Fund and other Macquarie Funds over time), and be reimbursed by the relevant other Macquarie Funds by their share of such expense, without interest. While highly unlikely, it is possible that one of the other Macquarie Funds could default on its obligation to reimburse the Fund. In certain circumstances, Macquarie is expected to advance amounts related to the foregoing and receive reimbursements from the Fund and/or the other Macquarie Funds to which such expenses relate.

Service Providers. Certain advisors and other service providers or their affiliates (including, without limitation, any accountants, developers, property managers, administrators, lenders, bankers, brokers, attorneys, consultants, investment or commercial banking firms, deal finders, data providers, and certain other advisors and agents) of the Fund, Macquarie or any of their affiliates are permitted to be investors in the Fund or entities in which Macquarie and/or other Macquarie Funds have an investment, and payments by the Fund and/or such Underlying Portfolio Investments could indirectly benefit Macquarie and/or such other Macquarie Funds, and/or sources of investment opportunities and co-investors or counterparties (commercial or otherwise) therewith and can also provide goods or services to or have business, personal, political, financial or other relationships with Macquarie. These service providers and their affiliates are permitted to contract or enter into any custodial, financial, banking, advising or brokerage, placement agency or other arrangement or transaction with the Fund, the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager or any Combined Limited Partner in the Fund or any entity in which the Fund has made an investment. Additionally, certain Macquarie employees could have family members or relatives employed by advisors and service providers. Similarly, these service providers and their affiliates are expected to engage in competitive activities and could earn fees from or receive other consideration from such persons or entities, and could provide different advice or services, take different action from the advice or services they provide, or action they take, for the Fund. Moreover, certain service providers (or their affiliates, including project developers, lenders, brokers, attorneys, consultants and investment banking firms) to the Fund can also provide services to or have other relationships with Macquarie. It is possible that service providers consider the overall level of work performed for Macquarie, the Fund or the portfolio companies of the Macquarie Funds in determining whether to provide reduced rates or benefits to Macquarie. Due to the nature of the relationships and the timing of services these persons have the potential to have information advantages relative to other investors or co-investors, and likely will be offered co-investment opportunities before such opportunities are presented to other prospective co-investors. These other services and relationships could influence the Portfolio Manager in deciding whether to select or recommend such a service provider to perform services for the Fund. Notwithstanding the foregoing, investment transactions for the Fund that require the use of a service provider, will generally be allocated to service providers on the basis of best execution, the evaluation of which includes, among other considerations, such service provider's provision of certain investment-related services and research that the Portfolio Manager believes to be of benefit to the Fund, but it should be noted such service providers are not necessarily be the most cost effective or necessarily the best for every particular situation. In addition, the General Partner is permitted to engage one or more fund administrators to perform certain functions in relation to the Fund, including but not limited to, coordination of the Fund's legal entity management function, execution and recordkeeping associated with applicable tax elections and filings, support for the General Partner's valuation process and support of certain investor correspondence, investor data management and reporting requests as well as data collection required for various regulatory reporting that the Fund is obligated to comply with. Certain employees of such fund administrators are expected to dedicate substantially all of their time to Macquarie Funds. In certain circumstances, advisors and other service providers, or their affiliates, can charge different rates or have different arrangements for services provided to Macquarie, the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager or their affiliates as compared to services provided to the Fund due to a variety of factors, including, without limitation, volume of work, complexity of the overall transaction or matter, time commitment and/or seniority of staff involved, which could result in more favorable rates or arrangements than those payable by the Fund. In connection with the engagement of any such service provider (including accountants), it is likely that the Fund, the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager and their respective affiliates will need to acknowledge that to the fullest extent permitted by law, such service provider does not represent or owe any duty to any Limited Partner or to the Limited Partners as a group in connection with such retention.

Certain advisors and service providers (including law firms) could temporarily provide their personnel to Macquarie, the Fund, other Macquarie Funds or their respective portfolio companies pursuant to various arrangements including at cost or at no cost. While the Fund, other Macquarie Funds and their respective portfolio companies are often the beneficiaries of these types of arrangements, Macquarie can from time to time be a beneficiary of these arrangements as well, including in circumstances where the advisor or service provider also provides services to the Fund in the ordinary course. Such personnel could provide services in respect of multiple matters, including in respect of matters related to Macquarie its affiliates and/or Underlying Portfolio Investments and in any such circumstance the benefits or costs of any such personnel will be allocated in Macquarie's discretion taking into consideration the estimated usage of such personnel.

Partnership Counsel. Kirkland & Ellis LLP and its affiliates ("Kirkland") will act as global counsel to the Fund, Elvinger Hoss Prussen, Société anonyme ("Elvinger Hoss") will act as Luxembourg Counsel, to the Partnership, the General Partner, the AIFM and the Portfolio Manager in connection with this offering of Interests. Kirkland and/or Elvinger Hoss represent Macquarie and other Macquarie Funds in a variety of different matters. Kirkland and/or Elvinger Hoss could also act as counsel to an investment, other equity sponsors of an investment, other creditors of an investment or an agent therefor, a party seeking to acquire some or all of the assets or equity of an investment, or a person engaged in litigation with an investment. In connection with this offering of Interests and ongoing advice to the Fund, the General Partner, the AIFM and the Portfolio Manager, Kirkland and/or Elvinger Hoss will not be representing the Limited Partners. No independent counsel has been retained to represent the Limited Partners. Kirkland and/or Elvinger Hoss can be removed by the General Partner at any time without the consent of, or notice to, the Limited Partners. Representation by Kirkland and/or Elvinger Hoss of the Fund, the General Partner and their affiliates is limited to specific matters as to which they have been consulted by such persons. There could exist other matters which could have a bearing on the Fund, the General Partner and/or their affiliates as to which Kirkland and/or Elvinger Hoss have not been consulted. In addition, Kirkland and/or Elvinger Hoss do not undertake to monitor the compliance of the Fund, the General Partner, the AIFM, the Portfolio Manager and their affiliates with the investment program, investment strategies, investment restrictions and other guidelines and terms set forth in this Memorandum and the Partnership Agreement, nor do Kirkland and/or Elvinger Hoss monitor compliance with applicable laws. Kirkland and/or Elvinger Hoss have not investigated or verified the accuracy and completeness of any information set forth in this Memorandum. Prospective investors should seek their own legal, tax and financial advice before making an investment in the Fund.

Personal Conflicts. Macquarie personnel responsible for and/or supporting the affairs of the Fund (including Investment Committee members) could have personal relationships with individuals who are employed by or who are otherwise associated with organizations that have dealings with Macquarie, the Fund or its Portfolio Investments. Such individuals or the organizations they are associated with are permitted to act in a number of capacities including as an adviser or other service provider, investor, co-investor or joint venture partner to Macquarie, the Fund or a Portfolio Investment. There could also be situations where such individuals or the organizations they are associated with act in capacities that are in competition with or have interests that are adverse to Macquarie, the Fund or a Portfolio Investment. To the extent any such personal relationship raises particular conflicts of interest, Macquarie will review the circumstances of such relationship with a view to addressing and reducing the potential for conflict, which could, in certain instances, result in impacted Macquarie personnel not participating in certain decisions for the Fund or its Portfolio Investments.

12. CERTAIN LEGAL, TAX AND REGULATORY CONSIDERATIONS

CERTAIN REGULATORY MATTERS

Alternative Investment Fund Managers' Directive and Certain Luxembourg Regulatory Considerations

The AIFMD became effective across the EU on July 22, 2013. The AIFMD regulates (i) alternative investment fund managers based in the EU, (ii) the management of any alternative investment fund ("AIF") established in the EU and (iii) the marketing in the EU of any AIF, such as the Partnership. The AIFMD imposes detailed and prescriptive obligations on AIFMs established in the EU.

The corpus of rules formed by the AIFMD, the Commission Delegated Regulation (EU) No 231/2013 of 19 December 2012 supplementing Directive 2011/61/EU of the European Parliament and of the Council with regard to exemptions, general operating conditions, depositaries, leverage, transparency and supervisions (the "AIFM Regulation") and any binding guidelines or other delegated acts and regulations issued from time to time by the EU relevant authorities pursuant to the AIFMD and/or the AIFM Regulation, as well as by any national laws and regulations that are taken in relation to (or transposing either of) the foregoing are hereafter referred to as the "AIFM Rules".

The Alternative Investment Fund Manager of the Partnership

The General Partner has appointed Macquarie Asset Management Europe S.à r.l. (the "AIFM") as the external alternative investment fund manager of the Partnership pursuant to the AIFM Agreement. The AIFM has been authorized in Luxembourg by the CSSF to act as external alternative investment fund manager for alternative investment funds.

The Partnership will pay the AIFM the Management Fee for its services rendered to the Partnership. Please refer to Section 11—"Detailed Term Sheet—Management Fee."

Description of Duties. The AIFM has initially been entrusted with the duties pertaining to the investment management functions of the Partnership, namely (a) the portfolio management function and (b) the risk management function, but has delegated certain of such investment management duties to Macquarie Alliance Partners Management, LLC (the "Portfolio Manager") as described below.

The AIFM will also be responsible for the proper and independent valuation of the assets of the Partnership. The Portfolio Manager will provide valuation advice and assist the AIFM in the valuation of the assets of the Partnership. The individuals valuing the Partnership's assets have experience in valuing the kinds of assets in which the Partnership will invest.

Professional Liability. In accordance with the requirements of Article 9(7) of the AIFMD, the AIFM is holding a professional indemnity insurance against liability arising from professional negligence that is appropriate to the risks covered.

Delegation. The AIFM has been permitted by the Partnership to appoint delegates in relation to its functions in accordance with the AIFMD. Information about conflicts of interests that may arise from these delegations and that is not already disclosed in this Memorandum is available at the registered office of the AIFM.

The AIFM will monitor on a continuing basis the activities of the third-parties to which it has delegated functions. The agreements entered into between the AIFM and such third-parties provide that the AIFM may give at any time further instructions to such third-parties, and that it may withdraw their mandate under certain circumstances.

All delegations will be carried out in accordance with the AIFMD.

The AIFM has delegated its portfolio management function regarding the Partnership to the Portfolio Manager. The Portfolio Manager is an affiliate of Macquarie. For the avoidance of doubt, the Portfolio Manager will have sole discretion to make Investments on behalf of the Partnership. The Portfolio Manager will be remunerated for its portfolio management services out of the Management Fee paid by the Partnership to the AIFM.

Fees and Expenses. In addition to receiving the Management Fee, the AIFM will be entitled to reimbursement of certain out-of-pocket expenses. (See also Section 10—“Risk Factors and Potential Conflicts of Interest—Partnership Expenses” above).

The Depositary of the Partnership

J.P. Morgan SE – Luxembourg Branch, has been appointed as depositary bank of the Partnership (the “Depositary”) pursuant to the AIFM Law and the terms of a depositary bank agreement entered into as of the formation date of the Partnership among the Partnership, the Depositary and the AIFM (the “Depositary Agreement”), effective as of the formation date of the Partnership. The Depositary is a stock corporation (Aktiengesellschaft) incorporated under the laws of Germany (registered with the local court of Frankfurt am Main, Germany, HRB number 126056, presently having its registered office at TaunusTurm, Taunustor 1, Frankfurt am Main, 60310 Germany), acting through its Luxembourg branch located at European Bank & Business Centre, 6 route de Trèves, L-2633, Senningerberg, Grand Duchy of Luxembourg, registered with the RCS under number B255938. The Depositary has a banking licence granted in accordance with the Luxembourg law of 5 April 1993 on the Financial Sector, as amended. It is registered on the official list of Luxembourg credit institutions and is subject as such to the supervision of the CSSF.

The Depositary is responsible (as further detailed in the Depositary Agreement) for the safekeeping of the financial instruments of the Partnership that are required to be held in custody under the AIFMD, and record keeping and verification of ownership of the other assets of the Partnership, in accordance with the Depositary Agreement and the AIFM Law.

The Depositary is also responsible for cash flow monitoring of the Partnership and such additional oversight functions as set out under article 19(9) of the AIFM Law, namely:

- (a) ensuring that the sale, issue, repurchase and cancellation of Interests of the Partnership are carried out in accordance with Luxembourg laws and regulations and the Partnership Agreement;
- (b) ensuring that the value of the Interests is calculated in accordance with applicable Luxembourg law, the Partnership Agreement and the valuation procedures adopted in respect of the Partnership;
- (c) carrying out authorised instructions provided such authorised instructions do not conflict with applicable Luxembourg law and the Partnership Agreement;
- (d) monitoring the Partnership’s compliance with the investment restrictions set out in this Memorandum;
- (e) ensuring that in respect of transactions involving the assets of the Partnership, the consideration is remitted to the Partnership within the usual time limits; and

- (f) ensuring that the income of the Partnership is applied in accordance with Luxembourg law and the Partnership Agreement.

The oversight and monitoring duties of the Depositary may not be delegated by the Depositary to a third party.

The Depositary's safekeeping duties with respect to financial instruments and other assets of the Partnership shall apply on a look-through basis to underlying assets held by the Partnership's subsidiaries and other financial and, as the case may be, legal structures controlled directly or indirectly by the Partnership or by the AIFM acting on behalf of the Partnership, which are established for the purpose of investing in the underlying assets. However, this does not apply to fund of funds structures or master-feeder structures where the target funds have a depositary, which keeps in custody the assets of those funds.

The Depositary's duty regarding monitoring of cash flows will not apply to cash held by the Partnership's subsidiaries or other financial and, as the case may be, legal structures, directly or indirectly, controlled by the Partnership or the AIFM acting on behalf of the Partnership.

The Depositary will be responsible for the segregation of the assets of the Partnership in accordance with the requirements of the AIFM Law and the CSSF.

The Depositary is only permitted to delegate (i) the custody of financial instruments or (ii) its verification obligations in relation to those assets that are not required to be held in custody by the Depositary. In order to discharge its responsibility under the 2013 Law, the Depositary must exercise care and diligence in choosing and appointing a delegate and in accordance with the 2013 Law. For the time being, the Depositary has not contractually discharged its liability to any delegate. The Depositary must continue to exercise all due skill, care and diligence in the periodic review and on-going monitoring of the delegate to whom it has delegated its safe keeping and verification obligations.

The Depositary undertakes its best efforts to comply with applicable data protection laws at all times.

In the case of a loss of a financial instrument that is held in custody by the Depositary or its sub-custodian or delegate and for which the Depositary is liable pursuant to the AIFM Law, the Depositary is required to return without undue delay, a financial instrument of identical type or the corresponding amount to the Partnership. The liability of the Depositary will in principle not be affected by any delegation(s) of its custody function and the Depositary will be liable to the Partnership or the Limited Partners for the loss of financial instruments held in custody by the Depositary or a third party to whom the custody of financial instruments has been delegated. The Depositary will not be liable for a loss of such a financial instrument (i) in the event it can prove that the loss has arisen as a result of an external event beyond its reasonable control, the consequences of which would have been unavoidable despite all reasonable efforts to the contrary or (ii) where it has contractually discharged its liability in compliance with the relevant provisions of the AIFM Law.

Save as previously mentioned, the Depositary will be liable to the Partnership for any loss incurred by the Partnership arising from the Depositary's negligent or intentional failure to properly fulfil its obligations pursuant to the AIFM Law or the Depositary Agreement. In the absence of negligent or intentional failure to properly fulfil such obligations, the Depositary will not be liable to the Partnership or any other person with respect to any act or omission in connection with the services provided under the Depositary Agreement. Under no circumstances will the Depositary be liable to the Partnership, or any other person for indirect or consequential damages and the Depositary will not in any event be liable for loss of profits, loss of contracts, loss of goodwill, whether or not foreseeable, even if the Depositary has been advised of the likelihood of such loss or damage and regardless of whether the claim for loss or damage is made in negligence, for breach of contract or otherwise.

To the extent the Depositary will appoint sub-custodians or delegates (including prime brokers), potential discharge of liability, and the possibility for those sub-custodians or delegates to reuse the assets (if any) will be specified in the Depositary Agreement (and/or in any operating memorandum relating thereto).

Under the Depositary Agreement, the Partnership and the AIFM undertake to indemnify the Depositary, its subcustodians, directors, officers, employees and agents (the “Depositary Indemnified Persons”) and hold such Depositary Indemnified Persons harmless from and against all expenses, claims, damages, losses, commitments, costs, disbursements, taxes and other liabilities incurred or suffered by the Depositary resulting directly or indirectly from (a) the Depositary carrying out its obligations under the Depositary Agreement, except in the case the Depositary is liable pursuant to the Depositary Agreement; and (b) any of Depositary Indemnified Persons’ status as a holder of record of the Partnership’s securities, other than as a result of Depositary Indemnified Persons’ fraud, negligence and willful misconduct.

The Depositary is also entitled to certain other rights and protections under the Depositary Agreement, which rights and protections are more fully described in the Depositary Agreement.

In consideration for its services as depositary of the Partnership, the Depositary is entitled to receive from the Partnership fees as described in the Depositary Agreement. The General Partner (or its delegate) will make the Depositary Agreement available for inspection, upon prior request of a Limited Partner.

The Depositary Agreement is governed by Luxembourg law and will remain in effect until such time as it is terminated in accordance with the provisions of the Depositary Agreement. The Depositary Agreement may be terminated by any of the parties thereto by giving to the other party a notice in writing specifying the date of such termination, which will be not less than 90 days after the date of service of such notice. The Depositary Agreement may also be terminated on shorter notice in certain circumstances, for instance where one party commits a material breach of its obligations.

The Depositary is not involved, directly or indirectly, with the business affairs, organization, sponsorship or management of the Partnership and has not participated in and is not responsible for the preparation of this document or any other disclosure documents and accepts no responsibility and will not be liable for any information contained in this document or any other disclosure documents.

Prime Broker

The Partnership has not appointed, and does not anticipate to appoint, a prime broker.

Any cash held by a prime broker, another broker or counterparty on behalf of the Partnership may not be treated as client money (and therefore not have the protections afforded to cash which is to be held as client money) and accordingly may not be segregated from the money belonging to that prime broker, other broker or counterparty, as the case may be. As such, that cash may be used by a prime broker, other broker or counterparty, in the course of its investment business. In this event, the Partnership will rank as one of the prime broker’s, other broker’s or counterparty’s unsecured creditors in relation thereto.

The Administrator of the Partnership

J.P. Morgan SE – Luxembourg Branch, a stock corporation (Aktiengesellschaft) incorporated under the laws of Germany (registered with the local court of Frankfurt am Main, Germany, HRB number 126056, presently having its registered office at TaunusTurm, Taunustor 1, Frankfurt am Main, 60310 Germany), acting through its Luxembourg branch located at European Bank & Business Centre, 6 route de Trèves, L-

2633, Senningerberg, Grand Duchy of Luxembourg, registered with the RCS under number B255938, has been appointed as transfer and registrar agent and central administrator of the Partnership (the “Administrator”) pursuant to an investment fund services agreement entered into as of the formation date of the Partnership (the “Administration Agreement”) and effective as of the formation date of the Partnership.

The duties of the Administrator (as further detailed in the Administration Agreement) include inter alia:

- keeping the accounts and holding the books and records of the Partnership,
- maintaining a capital account for each Partner, calculating the net asset value of the Partnership,
- recording sales and acquisitions of Investments,
- drawing up the annual financial statements of the Partnership,
- maintaining the register of Partners of the Partnership and recording any subscription, and
- withdrawal or transfer of Interests in such register.

The Administrator may be assisted by Macquarie and its affiliates in the performance of any of these services as further specified in the operating memorandum as referred to in the Administration Agreement.

In consideration for its services as transfer and registrar agent and central administrator of the Partnership, Administrator is entitled to receive from the Partnership fees as described in the Administration Agreement. The Sponsor (or its delegate) will make the Administration Agreement available for inspection, upon prior request of a Limited Partner.

Limited Partners’ Rights against Service Providers

It should be noted that Limited Partners will only be able to exercise their rights directly against the Partnership and will not have any direct contractual rights against the service providers of the Partnership appointed from time to time. The foregoing is without prejudice to other rights that investors may have under ordinary rules of law or pursuant to specific legislation (e.g., a right of access to and rectification of personal data).

Securities Financing Transactions and TRS

As required by the AIFM Rules and EU Regulation 2015/2365 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 25 November 2015 on transparency of securities financing transactions and of reuse and amending EU Regulation 648/2012 (the “SFTR”), the AIFM or the Portfolio Manager will make available to any investors upon request at the registered office of the AIFM or such other means as is determined by the AIFM and/or the Portfolio Manager any information regarding the use of Securities Financing Transactions by the Partnership and total return swaps in accordance with the provisions of the SFTR, including, amongst others, general description of instruments used. With respect to any such securities financing transactions and total return swaps, the information provided will include the rationale for their use, the type of assets that can be subject to them, the maximum and expected proportion of assets under management subject to them, criteria to select counterparties, acceptable collateral, valuation methodology, and information on safekeeping of assets and collateral.

Applicable Laws and Jurisdiction

The Partnership is governed by the laws of the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg, although certain references to Delaware law are contained in the Partnership Agreement. By entering into a subscription agreement, each Limited Partner will enter into a contractual relationship governed by the subscription agreement or the Partnership Agreement, as applicable, and applicable laws and regulations.

The Partnership Agreement provides that any action or proceeding against the parties relating in any way to the Partnership Agreement will be settled by binding arbitration before a tribunal of three arbitrators with the seat of arbitration in New York, New York, United States of America in accordance with the then-existing Rules of Arbitration of the International Chamber of Commerce. The subscription agreement contains similar terms.

Awards given by an arbitration tribunal in New York may not be automatically executed in a member state of the EU.

Fair and Preferential Treatment

The AIFM intends that all Limited Partners will be treated fairly in accordance with the relevant requirements of the AIFMD and applicable laws and regulations.

Notwithstanding the foregoing paragraph, a Limited Partner may be granted “preferential treatment” within the meaning of, and to the widest extent allowed by, the Partnership Agreement. To the extent that a Limited Partner obtains a “preferential treatment” or the right to obtain a “preferential treatment”, a brief description of that preferential treatment, the type of Limited Partner who obtained such “preferential treatment” and, where relevant, their legal or economic links with the Partnership, the AIFM or the Portfolio Manager will be made available on a confidential basis upon request at the registered office of the AIFM to the extent required by applicable law (see “Other Information” below and Section 11—“Risk Factors and Potential Conflicts of Interest—Side Letters; Other Arrangements” above).

Historical Performance Information

If any historical performance is produced for the Partnership, it will be made available at the registered office of the AIFM.

Leverage

The Partnership may utilize substantial leverage, incur indebtedness and provide other credit support (which may be secured by undrawn Capital Commitments as well as the Partnership’s other assets generally or one or more assets specifically) for any Partnership purpose, including to fund all or a portion of the capital necessary for a Portfolio Investment if the Portfolio Manager determines that such leverage is desirable in light of the investment objectives of the Partnership; provided, that the aggregate amount of borrowings by the Partnership (or guarantees by the Partnership of cash borrowings by an entity in which an Investment is held) will not in the aggregate exceed certain limits (as more fully set forth in Section 10—“Detailed Term Sheet—Borrowings, Guarantees and Letters of Credit”).

The AIFM will make available to the CSSF information about the overall level of leverage employed by the Partnership, a breakdown between leverage arising from borrowing of cash or securities and leverage embedded in financial derivatives and the extent to which the Partnership’s assets have been reused under leveraging arrangements.

The AIFM will also make available to the CSSF and the Limited Partners on a regular basis: (a) any changes to the maximum level of leverage which the AIFM may employ on behalf of the Partnership as well as any right of the reuse of collateral or any guarantee granted under the leveraging arrangement; and (b) the total amount of leverage employed by the Partnership.

The General Partner, the AIFM or the Portfolio Manager may cause the Partnership, in connection with any credit facilities or guarantees, to give security over or otherwise pledge the assets of the Partnership, the obligation of the Partners to make capital contributions and to deliver drawdown notices, any accounts of the Partnership into which the capital contributions by the Partners are to be made and any other related rights, titles interests, remedies, powers and privileges of the Partnership with respect to the capital commitments and capital contributions of the Partners.

Please also refer to Section 10—“Detailed Term Sheet— Borrowings, Guarantees and Letters of Credit” and Section 11—“Risk Factors and Potential Conflicts of Interest” of this Memorandum.

Other Information

The AIFM will make available to Limited Partners in the annual report of the Partnership, and/or at any reasonable time during normal business hours (upon request after furnishing reasonable advance written notice to the AIFM) at the registered office of the AIFM, any information and/or documents which the AIFM or the Partnership is or will be required by virtue of law (and in particular the AIFM Law and articles 21(4) and 21(5) thereof) to make available and any amendments or supplements thereto made from time to time; provided, that such availability will be reasonably related to such Limited Partner’s interest as a Limited Partner.

The locations of underlying vehicles (if applicable) in which the Partnership may invest will be available at the registered office of the AIFM.

Acquisition of Major Holdings and Control of Non-Listed Companies

If the Partnership acquires or disposes of certain holdings in a non-listed company the AIFM may be subject to certain reporting obligations set out in Articles 24 and following of the AIFM Law.

Valuation of Assets of the Partnership, Net Asset Value Calculation and Frequency of Calculation

The net asset value of the Partnership and of each Interest will be calculated as of each Valuation Day (as defined in the Partnership Agreement) by the Administrator based inter alia on the value of the assets of the Partnership determined by the AIFM in accordance with the valuation policies (the “Valuation Policies”) it has adopted for the Partnership.

The value of the assets of the Partnership will be determined at least once a year and more frequently as may be required by the AIFMD by the AIFM in accordance with the Valuation Policies.

In addition to, and not in limitation of, the methodologies set forth above:

- (i) the AIFM (in consultation with the Sponsor) may apply other valuation principles for the assets of the Partnership if such valuation principles do not accurately reflect the AIFM’s estimation of value or are otherwise inappropriate for the asset concerned;
- (ii) the value of assets denominated in a currency other than the base currency of the Partnership will be converted into the base currency of the Partnership at prevailing exchange rates as the AIFM may reasonably determine; and
- (iii) the latest net asset value of the Partnership is available at the registered office of the AIFM.

Additional information in relation to the valuation procedure of the Partnership and of the pricing methodology for valuing the assets of the Partnership, including, as the case may be, the methods used in valuing hard-to-value assets in accordance with Article 17 of the AIFM Law, is available at the registered office of the AIFM.

Suspension of the Calculation of the Net Asset Value of the Partnership

The General Partner may, upon its reasonable determination that one or more of the conditions below have occurred, suspend the calculation of the net asset value of the Partnership:

- (i) when a force majeure event has occurred and is continuing and it is impracticable for the AIFM to dispose of or value all or a substantial part of the Partnership's assets;
- (ii) when the means of communication usually used to determine the price or value of an asset are out of service or otherwise unavailable;
- (iii) when, for any reason, the value of any asset cannot be determined promptly or accurately; or
- (iv) during any period in which the Partnership is being liquidated.

The General Partner intends to notify the Limited Partners of any such suspension as deemed appropriate by it in consultation with the AIFM and the Portfolio Manager.

Liquidity Risk Management

The AIFM maintains a liquidity risk management process to monitor the liquidity risk of the Partnership, which includes, among other tools and methods of measurement, the use of stress tests under both normal and exceptional liquidity conditions. Further details regarding the liquidity risk management process of the Partnership are available upon request at any reasonable time during normal business hours (after furnishing reasonable advance written notice to the AIFM) at the registered office of the AIFM.

Anti-Money Laundering and Fight Against Terrorism Financing

Pursuant to international rules and Luxembourg laws and regulations comprising, but not limited to, the law of 12 November 2004 on the fight against money laundering and financing of terrorism, as amended (the "Lux AML Law"), the Grand Ducal Regulation dated 1 February 2010 and CSSF Regulation 12-02 of 14 December 2012 concerning the fight against money laundering and terrorist financing, and any respective amendments or replacements, obligations have been imposed on all professionals of the financial sector to prevent the use of undertakings for collective investment for money laundering and financing of terrorism purposes. As a result of such provisions, the Administrator must ascertain the identity of each investor in the Partnership in accordance with Luxembourg laws and regulations. The Administrator may require investors to provide any document it deems necessary to effect such identification.

In case of delay or failure by an investor to provide the documents required, the application for subscription will not be accepted and in case of withdrawal, payment of redemption proceeds delayed. Neither the AIFM nor the Partnership nor the General Partner nor any affiliate thereof will have any liability for delays or failure to process transactions as a result of an investor providing no or only incomplete documentation.

Limited Partners are expected to provide additional or updated identification documents from time to time pursuant to ongoing client due diligence requirements under relevant laws and regulations.

The General Partner, or any delegate thereof, may provide the Luxembourg beneficial owner register (the "RBO") created pursuant to the Law of 13 January 2019 establishing a register of beneficial owners with relevant information about any Partner or, as applicable, beneficial owner(s) thereof, qualifying as beneficial owner of the Partnership within the meaning of Article 1(7) of the Lux AML Law. To the extent required by and subject to the conditions of Luxembourg anti-money laundering laws and regulations, such information will be made available to the general public through access to the RBO. By executing a Subscription Agreement with respect to the Partnership, each Limited Partner acknowledges that failure by a Limited Partner, or, as applicable, beneficial owner(s) thereof, to provide the General Partner, or any delegate thereof, with any relevant information and supporting documentation necessary for the General Partner to comply with its obligation to provide same information and documentation to the RBO is subject to criminal fines in Luxembourg.

Data Protection

Prospective investors should be aware that in making an investment in the Partnership and interacting with the Partnership, its affiliates and/or their agents and delegates (including in each case employees thereof) by:

- (i) submitting the subscription documents;
- (ii) communicating through telephone calls, written correspondence and emails (all of which may be recorded); or
- (iii) providing personal data within the meaning given in the EU General Data Protection Regulation (Regulation 2016/679), which includes any information relating to an identifiable individual (such as name, address, date of birth or economic information) (“Personal Data”) concerning individuals connected with the investor (such as directors, trustees, employees, representatives, shareholders, investors, clients, beneficial owners and/or agents), they will be providing the Partnership, its affiliates and/or delegates with Personal Data.

The Partnership has prepared a data privacy notice (“DPN”), attached to the Partnership’s subscription documents, detailing how the Partnership will collect Personal Data, where it collects it from, and the purposes for which the Personal Data is used. This DPN is included in the subscription documents and explains what rights are given to individuals, how long Personal Data will be retained, who it will be shared with, the purposes of the processing, whether Personal Data is transferred outside of the European Economic Area, and relevant contacts.

All new investors will receive an advance copy of the DPN as part of the process of making an investment in the Partnership. All prospective investors should read the DPN carefully before sharing any Personal Data in accordance with the steps noted in (i), (ii) and (iii) above.

Outsourcing arrangements

The Partnership has appointed J.P. Morgan SE – Luxembourg Branch, an institution authorized in Luxembourg, to provide central administration services (including transfer agency services) and J.P. Morgan SE – Luxembourg Branch to act as the Partnership’s Depositary. In this context, each Limited Partner understands, acknowledges, agrees and confirms (as applicable) for the purpose of Section 25 of CSSF Q&A on the AIFM Law, dated October 30, 2020 that (a) confidential and personal information submitted and / or provided to the Partnership, Macquarie, the AIFM, the Administrator, the Depositary and / or their affiliates in connection with its application to subscribe for interests in the Partnership and details of its interest may be disclosed to and processed by the Administrator, the Depositary and / or their respective affiliates in order for the Administrator, the Depositary and / or their respective affiliates to comply with their respective contractual, legal and regulatory obligations in connection with its services with respect to the Partnership. The categories of confidential and personal data the Administrator, the Depositary and / or their respective affiliates may transfer and process in connection with the Limited

Partner's application for an interest in the Partnership may include without limitation all anti-money laundering, counter-finance terrorism, know-your-customer identification and verification documents, including (i) names, dates of birth, citizenship, location of residence and birth place, passport, driver's license; (ii) contact details and professional addresses (including physical address, email address and telephone number); (iii) account data, financial data, payment instructions and other information contained in any document the Limited Partner provides the Partnership; (iv) information regarding the Limited Partner's status under various laws and regulations, including social security number, tax status, income and assets; (v) information regarding the Limited Partner's interest and holdings in other funds or other investment vehicles managed and / or advised by the AIFM and / or its affiliates; (vi) source of funds used to make the investment in the Partnership or other investment vehicle; (vii) data relating to any individual regarded as a politically exposed person; and (viii) criminal offences data (where relevant) (together, "Data"); and (b) its Data may be disclosed to and processed by the Administrator, the Depositary and / or their respective affiliates subject to and in accordance with the terms of its engagement with or in respect of the Partnership, Macquarie, the AIFM or any other of their respective affiliates (which engagement includes the ability for the Administrator, the Depositary and / or their respective affiliates to delegate and / or outsource to its group members and / or third parties certain of the services (including without limitation anti-money laundering checks, fund accounting, investor relations, tax, middle-office, company secretarial, treasury, depositary (as applicable) services) it has agreed to provide, which necessitate the transfer of the Limited Partner's Data to such persons) and such other parties which intervene in the process of the business relationship (e.g., external processing centers, dispatch or payment agents), in each case including without limitation companies or other entities based in countries outside Luxembourg (including without limitation Bulgaria, Hungary, India, Ireland, Mauritius, the Netherlands, Singapore, the United Kingdom and the United States). By subscribing to the Partnership, each Limited Partner consents to the above-mentioned transfer of its Data, pursuant to article 41 (2 bis) of the law of 5 April 1993 on the financial sector as amended, for the duration of its subscription in the Partnership and for the period prescribed under the applicable laws and regulations thereafter.

CERTAIN SECURITIES LAW AND OTHER REGULATORY CONSIDERATIONS

U.S. Investment Company Act of 1940. The Fund does not intend to register as an investment company under the 1940 Act in reliance upon an exemption in Section 3(c)(7) thereof, which excludes from the definition of "investment company" any issuer whose outstanding securities are owned exclusively by "qualified purchasers," (as defined in Section 2(a)(51) of the 1940 Act) and that meet the other conditions contained therein. A "qualified purchaser" generally includes a natural person who owns not less than $5,000,000 in investments or a company acting for its own account or the accounts of other qualified purchasers which owns and invests on a discretionary basis not less than $25,000,000 in investments and certain trusts. The subscription documents and the Partnership Agreement will contain representations and restrictions on transfer designed to assure that these conditions (as applicable) are met. The Fund may in its sole discretion determine in the future to require that the number of beneficial owners of Interests in the Fund for purposes of the 1940 Act be limited to no more than 100 persons in order for the Fund to qualify for the exemption from the provisions of the 1940 Act as set forth in Section 3(c)(1) thereof. With respect to determination of the number of such beneficial owners, the Fund will obtain and rely on appropriate representations and undertakings from each Limited Partner in order to assure that the Fund meets the conditions of the exemption on an ongoing basis. In addition, the Portfolio Manager reserves the right to form one or more Parallel Funds that will not be subject to the provisions of the 1940 Act, in reliance upon other exemptions or provisions thereunder, including for example, Section 3(c)(1) or Section 7(d) thereof.

U.S. Investment Advisers Act of 1940. The Portfolio Manager is a relying adviser of MAM Americas Inc., a registered investment adviser under the Advisers Act. Consequently, the Portfolio Manager is subject to the recordkeeping, disclosure and other obligations specified in the Advisers Act and the rules thereunder. Such registration does not imply any approval by the SEC of the Portfolio Manager, Macquarie or their respective policies. The Founder Partner's carried interest is intended to comply with Rule 205-3 promulgated under the Advisers Act.

U.S. Securities Act of 1933. The offer and sale of the Interests are not expected to be registered under the 1933 Act in reliance upon the exemption from registration provided by Section 4(a)(2) thereof and Rule 506 of Regulation D promulgated thereunder and/or other exemptions of similar import in the laws of the states and other jurisdictions where the offering will be made and in compliance with any applicable U.S. state or other securities laws. Each purchaser of Interests must be an "accredited investor" (as defined in Regulation D) and will be required to represent, among other customary private placement representations, that it is acquiring its Interests for its own account and for investment purposes only and not with a view to resale or distribution.

Further, each investor must be prepared to bear the economic risk of an investment in the Fund for an indefinite period of time, since limited partner interests in the Fund cannot be sold unless they are subsequently registered under the Securities Act or an exemption from such registration is available. It is extremely unlikely that limited partner interests in the Fund will ever be registered under the Securities Act.

The Fund's reliance on the "private placement" exemption from registration provided under Regulation D may become unavailable if "covered persons" who become subject to a "disqualifying event" (as such terms are described in Rule 506 of the Securities Act) are beneficial owners of 20% or more of the Fund's outstanding equity securities, calculated on the basis of voting power (a "20% Beneficial Owner"). In the event that a Limited Partner that is or becomes a 20% Beneficial Owner is or becomes subject to a disqualifying event, the General Partner is permitted to treat such Limited Partner as a defaulting Partner or take such other equitable measures as it determines, such as the compulsory withdrawal of, or the transfer of all or a portion of, or the limitation of voting interest of, such Limited Partner's interest.

There is no public market for the Interests and no such market is expected to develop in the future. The Interests may not be transferred or resold except as permitted under the 1933 Act and any applicable U.S. state or non-U.S. securities laws, or pursuant to registration or exemption therefrom. As described elsewhere in this Memorandum, the transferability of the Interests will be further restricted by the terms of the Partnership Agreement.

U.S. Securities Exchange Act of 1934. It is not expected that the Fund will be required to register the Interests or any other security of the Fund under Section 12(g) or any other provision of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended (the "Exchange Act"). The Fund does not expect to have any class of equity security held of record by two thousand (2,000) or more persons and expects to meet the other exemptions available under the Exchange Act. As a result, the Fund would not be subject to the periodic reporting and related requirements of the Exchange Act and Limited Partners should only expect to receive the information and reports required to be delivered pursuant to the Partnership Agreement and applicable law.

U.S. Federal Securities Regulation. In connection with any acquisition of beneficial ownership by the Fund, or by a group that includes the Fund, of more than 5% of any class of the equity securities of a company registered under the Exchange Act, the Fund may be required to make certain filings with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission. Generally, these filings require disclosure of the identity and background of the purchasers, the source and amount of funds used to acquire the securities, the purpose of the transaction, the purchaser's interest in the securities, and any contracts, arrangements, or undertakings regarding the securities. In certain circumstances, the Fund may be required to aggregate its investment position in a given portfolio company with the beneficial ownership of that company's securities by, or on behalf of, the General Partner and its affiliates or other members of a group that includes the Fund, which could require the Fund, together with such other parties, to make certain disclosure filings or otherwise restrict the Fund's activities with respect to such portfolio company securities.

Also, if the Fund becomes the beneficial owner of more than 10% of any class of the equity securities of a company registered under the Exchange Act, or otherwise becomes an “affiliate” of such a company, the Fund may be subject to certain additional reporting requirements and to liability for short swing profits under Section 16 of the Exchange Act. The Fund intends to manage its investments so as to avoid the short swing profit liability provisions of Section 16 of the Exchange Act.

U.S. Commodity Exchange Act. To the extent the Fund acquires instruments that can be treated as commodity interests, the Main Fund General Partner is permitted to claim an exemption from registration as a commodity pool operator (“CPO”) with the CFTC, including pursuant to certain no-action relief or pursuant to CFTC Rule 4.13(a)(3) with respect to the Fund, on the basis that, among other things, (a) the pool’s trading in commodity interest positions (including both hedging and speculative positions, and positions in security futures) is limited so that either (i) no more than 5% of the liquidation value of the pool’s portfolio is used as initial margin, premiums and required minimum security deposits to establish such positions or (ii) the aggregate net notional value of the pool’s trading in such positions does not exceed 100% of the pool’s liquidation value and (b) interests in the pool are exempt from registration under the 1933 Act and, unless the Main Fund General Partner determines otherwise in its sole discretion and subject to applicable regulatory requirements, are offered and sold without marketing to the public in the United States. Therefore, unlike a registered CPO, the Main Fund General Partner will not be required to provide prospective investors with a CFTC compliant disclosure document, nor will the Main Fund General Partner be required to provide Limited Partners with periodic account statements or certified annual reports that satisfy the requirements of CFTC rules applicable to registered CPOs. Accordingly, this Memorandum has not been reviewed or approved by the CFTC and it is not anticipated that such review or approval will occur.

As an alternative to the exemption from registration as a CPO, the Main Fund General Partner may register as a CPO with the CFTC. While the Main Fund General Partner may avail itself of certain disclosure, reporting and record-keeping relief under CFTC Rule 4.7 or rely on another exemption, such registration and/or reliance on alternative exemptions would require the Fund and/or the Portfolio Manager to comply with additional and/or different requirements, which would result in additional expenses being borne by the Fund.

Other Securities Laws. The Interests will not be registered under any other securities laws, including U.S. state securities or blue sky laws and non-U.S. securities laws.

Each investor must be prepared to bear the economic risk of the investment in the Interests for an indefinite period of time. There is no public market for the Interests and no such market is expected to develop in the future. Each Limited Partner will be required to represent that it is a qualified investor under applicable securities laws and that it is acquiring its Interests for investment purposes and not with a view to resale or distribution and that it will only sell and transfer its Interest to a qualified investor under applicable securities laws or in a manner permitted by the Partnership Agreement and consistent with such laws. The Interests may not be sold or transferred (i) except as permitted under the Partnership Agreement, (ii) unless they are registered under the 1933 Act and under any other applicable state or non-U.S. securities laws or an exemption from such registration thereunder is available (although no such registration is contemplated or expected) and (iii) only as permitted by any other relevant laws of any applicable jurisdiction.

Anti-Money Laundering Requirements. In order to comply with applicable anti-money laundering requirements, each investor must, except as otherwise agreed by the Sponsor, represent in its subscription agreement with the Fund that neither the investor, nor any person having a direct or indirect beneficial interest in the Interest being acquired by the investor, is the subject of applicable sanctions programs, including those adopted by the United States and enforced by Office of Foreign Assets Control of the U.S. Department of the Treasury, United Kingdom, member States of the European Union, and United Nations.

Each investor must also represent that (a) it has conducted thorough due diligence with respect to all of its beneficial owners, has established the identities of all beneficial owners and the source of each of the beneficial owner's funds and will retain evidence of such due diligence, beneficial owner identities, and sources of funds; (b) neither it nor any "immediate family member" or "close associate" is a "politically exposed person" (each as defined in the subscription agreement) on whom adequate enhanced due diligence has not been performed, and (c) it does not know or have any reason to suspect that (i) the monies used to fund the investor's investment in the Fund have been or will be derived from or related to any illegal activities, including but not limited to money laundering activities, and (ii) the proceeds from the investor's investment in the Fund will be used to finance any illegal activities. Each investor must also agree, except as otherwise agreed by the Sponsor, to provide any information to the Fund and its agents as the Fund may require in order to determine the investor's and any of its beneficial owners' source and use of funds and to comply with any anti-money laundering laws and regulations applicable to the Fund. Additionally, the Fund may be required to "freeze" such investor's account and prohibit redemptions or transfers if required by applicable sanctions or anti-money laundering laws and regulations, and to report such occurrence to competent regulator(s).

Bank Holding Company Act. The U.S. Bank Holding Company Act of 1956, as amended from time to time, and the rules promulgated thereunder (collectively, the "BHC Act"), including as modified by the Dodd-Frank Act and the "Volcker Rule" thereunder, prohibit any "banking entity" (generally defined as any insured depository institution, subject to certain exceptions including for depository institutions that do not have, and are not controlled by a company that has, more than $10 billion in total consolidated assets or significant trading assets and liabilities, any company that controls such an institution, a non-U.S. bank that is treated as a bank holding company for purposes of U.S. banking law, and any affiliate or subsidiary of the foregoing entities) from sponsoring or acquiring or retaining an ownership interest in a private equity fund or hedge fund that is not subject to the provisions of the 1940 Act in reliance upon either Section 3(c)(1) or Section 3(c)(7) of the 1940 Act (such as the Fund). Interests in the Fund are not freely transferable, are not readily tradable on any exchange or market, and there are no redemption or withdrawal rights, even as a result of regulatory matters. As a result, each investor should carefully review and familiarize itself with these rules and regulations and consult with its own counsel on how the Volcker Rule, Dodd-Frank and the BHC Act may impact the investor, including as a result of its investment in the Fund.

Requests for Additional Information. Each Limited Partner will be required to comply promptly with reasonable requests for information made by the General Partner in order for the Fund to satisfy any request for information about such Limited Partner, its Commitment and other information regarding its interest in the Fund in connection with the operation of the Fund, including requests made by any U.S. federal, state or local or non-U.S. regulatory authority, agency, committee, court, exchange or self-regulatory organization (e.g., obtaining approvals necessary for the making, holding or disposition of any portfolio investment).

Restrictions on Transfer. Generally, limited partner interests will not be assignable or transferable without the prior written consent of the General Partner. As a condition to any transfer or assignment, the General Partner is permitted to require a legal opinion that such transfer or assignment would not subject the Fund or the General Partner to any regulatory or tax requirements or result in the violation of any applicable law. The transferor and transferee would be required to bear the cost of such legal opinion.

Legal Counsel. Kirkland & Ellis LLP (the "Law Firm") represents the Main Fund General Partner solely with respect to the specific matters as to which it has been retained and consulted by the Main Fund General Partner, including certain matters with respect to the Fund. Other matters may exist that could have a bearing on the Fund and its investments and underlying portfolio companies, the General Partner and/or their respective affiliates as to which the Law Firm has been neither retained nor consulted. The Law Firm does not undertake to monitor compliance by the Main Fund General Partner, the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager the AIFM and their affiliates with the investment program and other investment guidelines and procedures set forth in this Memorandum and the Partnership Agreement, nor does the Law Firm monitor compliance by the Fund, the Main Fund General Partner, the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager the AIFM and/or their affiliates with applicable laws, unless in each case the Law Firm has been specifically retained to do so. The Law Firm does not investigate or verify the accuracy and completeness of information set forth in this Memorandum concerning the Fund, the Main Fund General Partner, the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager the AIFM or any of their respective affiliates, personnel, investments or portfolio companies. Furthermore, the Law Firm is not providing any advice, representation, warranty or other assurance of any kind as to any matter to any Limited Partner of the Fund, and Limited Partners will be required to authorize and agree in the subscription materials as to the Law Firm's representation.

Additional Information. During the course of the offering and before the sale of any limited partner interests in the Fund, the General Partner will provide to each prospective investor and such investor's representatives and advisors, if any, the opportunity to ask questions and receive answers concerning the terms and conditions of this offering and to obtain any additional information that the Fund may possess or can obtain without unreasonable effort or expense that is necessary to verify the accuracy of the information furnished to such prospective investor. Any such questions should be directed to the General Partner. No other person other than the General Partner has been authorized to give information or to make any representations concerning the Fund or this offering outside of this Memorandum, and if given or made, such other information or representations must not be relied upon as having been authorized by the General Partner or the Fund.

This Memorandum is intended to present a general outline of the policies and structure of the Fund and the General Partner. Each prospective Limited Partner should thoroughly review the Partnership Agreement, which specifies the rights and obligations of the Partners. The Summary of Principal Terms contained herein is necessarily incomplete and is qualified in its entirety by reference to the Partnership Agreement. Copies of the Partnership Agreement and subscription agreement will be made available upon request.

European Regulatory Environment. On August 16, 2012, the European Market Infrastructure Regulation (EU No. 648/2012) ("EMIR") entered into force, with an on-shored version of EMIR implemented in the UK at the time of Brexit. EMIR introduces certain uniform requirements in respect of over-the-counter ("OTC") derivative contracts, which apply primarily to "financial counterparties" ("FCs") established in the EU such as EU authorized investment firms, credit institutions, insurance companies, UCITS and AIFs managed by EU AIFMs, and "non-financial counterparties" ("NFCs"), which are entities established in the EU that are not financial counterparties. NFCs whose transactions in OTC derivative contracts exceed EMIR's prescribed clearing threshold ("NFC+s") are generally subject to more stringent requirements under EMIR than NFCs whose transactions in OTC derivative contracts do not exceed such clearing threshold ("NFC-s").

Broadly, EMIR's requirements in respect of derivative contracts are (i) mandatory clearing of OTC derivative contracts declared subject to the clearing obligation (including in some instances active account obligations, rules relating to post-trade risk reduction); (ii) risk mitigation techniques in respect of uncleared OTC derivative contracts (such as the exchange and segregation of collateral); and (iii) reporting and record-keeping requirements in respect of all derivative contracts.

EMIR was amended by Regulation (EU) 2019/834 of the European Parliament and of the Council ("EMIR REFIT") which came into effect on 17 June 2019. EMIR REFIT expanded the obligations which apply to EEA AIFs (irrespective of the location) of the AIFM and, where relevant, their EEA AIFMs, in addition to, as under the original definition, AIFs (irrespective of location) with an authorized or registered AIFM, making all such entities subject to the risk mitigation requirements contained in EMIR. Non-EEA AIFs with non-EEA AIFMs have also been reclassified as third country entities that would be FCs if they were established in the EU, potentially requiring them to adhere to risk mitigation requirements contained in EMIR to the extent they are otherwise brought within the scope of EMIR.

The EU regulatory framework and legal regime relating to derivatives is set not only by EMIR but also by Directive 2014/65/EU of May 15, 2014 on markets and financial instruments and Regulation (EU) No 600/2014 of May 15, 2014 on markets and financial instruments (“MiFID II”). In particular, MiFID II requires transactions between FC and NFC+s in sufficiently liquid OTC derivatives to be executed on a trading venue that meets the requirements of the MiFID II regime.

It is difficult to predict the full impact of these regulatory requirements on the Fund. Prospective investors should be aware that regulatory requirements under EMIR and MiFID II may significantly raise the costs of entering into certain classes of derivative contracts and may adversely affect the Fund’s ability to engage in transactions in derivatives.

Following the end of the Brexit transitional period, the UK has retained EMIR and MiFID II (with appropriate modifications) as part of its domestic legislation.

MiFID II Obligations. MiFID II came into effect on January 3, 2018 and imposed new regulatory obligations in respect of the provision of financial services in the EEA by EEA banks and EEA investment firms providing regulated services (each an “Investment Firm”). The retained UK version of MiFID II generally imposes the same obligations in respect of UK banks and UK investment firms. The Portfolio Manager is a non-EEA investment company and is, therefore, not directly subject to MiFID II, but may be indirectly affected. The regulatory obligations imposed by MiFID II may impact, and constrain the implementation of, the investment strategy of the Fund.

Commodity position limits and reporting. MiFID II introduced position limit and position reporting requirements within the EU for the first time in relation to certain commodity derivatives. These measures impose restrictions on the positions that the Fund may hold in certain commodity derivatives. As a result, the Sponsor will be required to monitor and if necessary reduce the Fund’s positions so as to remain within the position limit thresholds, which may restrict the Sponsor’s ability to implement the Fund’s investment objective and strategy.

Equities—mandatory on-exchange trading. MiFID II introduced a new rule that an EU regulated firm may execute certain equities trades only on an EU trading venue (or with a firm which is a systematic internaliser or an equivalent venue in a third country). The instruments in scope for this requirement are any equities admitted to trading on any EU trading venue, including those with only a secondary listing in the EU (although if the primary liquidity is outside of the EU, an exemption should be available). The effect of this rule is to introduce a substantial limit on the possibility of trading off-exchange or OTC in EU listed equities with EU counterparties. The overall impact of this rule on the Sponsor’s ability to implement the Fund’s investment objective and investment strategy, particularly in the context of the UK’s exit from the EU, is uncertain.

OTC derivatives. MiFID II requires certain standardized OTC derivatives (including all those subject to a mandatory clearing obligation under EMIR) to be executed on regulated trading venues when executed by certain types of counterparty. In addition, MiFID II introduced a new type of trading venue, the “organised trading facility”, which is intended to provide greater price transparency and competition for bilateral trades. The overall impact of such requirements on the Fund remains uncertain and it remains unclear how the OTC derivatives markets will continue to adapt to this new regulatory regime.

Access to research. MiFID II restricts investment firms’ ability to obtain research in connection with the provision of an investment service. For example, investment firms providing portfolio management or independent investment advice may purchase investment research only at their own expense or out of specifically dedicated research payment accounts agreed upon with their clients. Research must also be unbundled and paid separately from trading commission. EEA broker-dealers will unbundle research costs and invoice them to investment firms separated from dealing commissions.

Therefore, in light of the above, MiFID II could have an adverse effect on the ability of the Sponsor and its MiFID-authorized EEA affiliates to obtain and to provide research. The requirements regarding the unbundling of research costs under MiFID II are not consistent with market practice in the United States and the regulatory framework concerning the use of commissions to acquire research developed by the SEC, although the SEC has issued temporary no-action letters to facilitate compliance by firms with the research requirements under MiFID II in a manner that is consistent with the U.S. federal securities laws. The Sponsor's access to third party research may nonetheless be significantly limited. Some EEA jurisdictions have extended certain MiFID II obligations to market participants other than investment firms (e.g., AIFMs) under national law.

Direct market access. MiFID II introduced new requirements on EU banks and brokers which offer direct market access ("DMA") services to allow their clients to trade on EU trading venues via their trading systems. EU DMA providers are required to impose trading and credit thresholds on their clients, and to have the benefit of monitoring rights. It will also be necessary for the EU DMA provider to enter into a binding written agreement with its clients, which deals with compliance with MiFID II and the trading venue rules. These requirements may affect the implementation of the Fund's investment strategy.

Conduct rules for EU brokers. Historically, certain EU sell-side firms have used IPO and secondary allocations as a way of rewarding their most valued buy-side clients (in terms of trading volumes or commissions) for the business that they have given to the firm previously or to incentivize future business. MiFID II requirements effectively prohibit such behavior, as MiFID II precludes a sell-side firm from allocating issuances to clients either (i) to incentivize the payment of a large amount of fees for unrelated services provided by the EU firm or (ii) which is conditional on the receipt of future orders or the purchase of any other service from the EU firm by a client. As a result, the manner in which the Portfolio Manager is allocated IPOs and secondary issuances by its sell-side service providers may have an adverse effect on the Portfolio Manager's ability to implement the Fund's investment strategy.

European sustainability-related disclosure and reporting frameworks may lead to increased compliance costs. On June 22, 2020, the Official Journal of the European Union published a classification system that establishes a list of environmentally sustainable economic activities and sets out four overarching conditions that an economic activity has to meet in order to qualify as environmentally sustainable (Regulation (EU) 2020/852 of the European Parliament and of the Council of June 18, 2020 on the establishment of a framework to facilitate sustainable investment, and amending Regulation (EU) 2019/2088, "Taxonomy Regulation"). The Taxonomy Regulation, amongst other things, introduces certain mandatory disclosure and reporting requirements and supplements the framework set out in the Sustainable Financial Disclosure Regulation (Regulation (EU) 2019/2088 of the European Parliament and of the Council of November 27, 2019 on sustainability-related disclosures in the financial services sector, "SFDR"), which requires certain disclosures in relation to how sustainability risks and negative impacts on environmental and social factors are taken into account in investment decisions and for financial products which have a sustainable investment objective or which promote environmental or social characteristics.

Compliance with frameworks of this nature may create an additional compliance burden and costs to funds and/or fund managers because of the need to collect certain information to meet the disclosure requirements. In addition, where there are uncertainties regarding the operation of the framework, a lack of official, conflicting or inconsistent regulatory guidance, a lack of established market practice and/or data gaps or methodological challenges affecting the ability to collect relevant data, funds and/or fund managers may be required to engage third party advisors and/or service providers to fulfil the requirements, thereby exacerbating any increase in compliance burden and costs. To the extent that relevant jurisdictions or any other applicable jurisdictions enact similar laws and/or frameworks, there is a risk that the Fund may not be able to maintain alignment of a particular investment with such frameworks, and/or may be subject to additional compliance burdens and costs, which might adversely affect the investment returns of the Fund.

CERTAIN LUXEMBOURG TAX CONSIDERATIONS

The following information is based on the laws, regulations, decisions and practice currently in force in Luxembourg and is subject to changes therein, possibly with retrospective effect. This tax section is a short summary of certain Luxembourg tax principles that may be or may become relevant with respect to the investments in the Partnership. IT DOES NOT PURPORT TO BE A COMPREHENSIVE DESCRIPTION OF ALL LUXEMBOURG TAX LAWS AND CONSIDERATIONS THAT MAY BE RELEVANT TO A DECISION TO INVEST IN, OWN, HOLD, OR DISPOSE OF INTERESTS IN THE PARTNERSHIP. IT DOES NOT CONSTITUTE AND SHOULD NOT BE CONSIDERED AS TAX ADVICE TO ANY PARTICULAR INVESTOR OR POTENTIAL INVESTOR. Prospective investors should consult their own professional advisers as to the implications of buying, holding or disposing of Interests and to the provisions of the laws of the jurisdiction in which they are subject to tax. This summary does not describe any tax consequences arising under the laws of any state, locality or other taxing jurisdiction other than Luxembourg.

Taxation of the Partnership

The Partnership is a tax transparent entity for Luxembourg corporate income tax and net wealth tax purposes. Accordingly, no Luxembourg corporate income tax and net wealth tax will be due by the Partnership.

The Partnership is not considered to be tax-transparent with respect to municipal business tax, meaning that if municipal business tax is due, it will be paid by the Partnership directly and not in the hands of the partners. No municipal business tax should, however, be due by the Partnership except if it carries out a commercial activity for tax purposes. However, according to the tax circular L.I.R. n° 14/4 dated 9 January 2015, the Partnership, being an AIF, is deemed never to carry out such commercial activity and is therefore never subject to Luxembourg municipal business tax, to the extent that any unlimited partner (associé commandité), being or deemed to be a capital company, holds, directly or indirectly, less than 5% of the aggregate interests in the Partnership (parts d'intérêts within the meaning of article 14(4) of the Luxembourg income tax law of 4 December 1967 (Loi modifiée concernant l'impôt sur le revenu) and §2(2)3 of the Luxembourg commercial tax law of 1 December 1936 (Gewerbesteuer-gesetz)).

Under Luxembourg anti-hybrid mismatch rules, as from the tax year 2022, the Partnership could (under certain conditions) become liable to Luxembourg corporate income tax for the portion of its net income that is not otherwise taxed under the laws of Luxembourg or any other jurisdictions as a result of the Partnership being treated as opaque for tax purposes in the jurisdiction of the investor(s) and tax transparent from a Luxembourg tax perspective.

Withholding Tax

Distributions made by the Partnership as well as capital gains realised on a disposal or a redemption of Interests in the Partnership are not subject to withholding tax in Luxembourg.

Interest and dividend income received by the Partnership may be subject to non-recoverable withholding tax in the source countries. Furthermore, realised or unrealised capital appreciation of the Partnership's assets may be subject to tax in the countries of origin. However, as a result of the tax transparency of the Partnership, an exemption or a reduced tax rate may be available based on the double tax treaty entered into between the countries of the investments and the investor's tax residence.

VAT Aspects

A special limited partnership (société en commandite spéciale) (an "SCSp") qualifying as an AIF such as the Partnership should be considered as a taxable person on its own for value added tax ("VAT") purposes, distinct from the General Partner even though it carries out only exempt activities with, in principle, no right to deduct input VAT. No Luxembourg VAT registration is necessary unless (i) the Partnership receives non-exempt services from abroad (including, notably, legal and tax advisory services, non-exempt financial and banking services, etc.) or (ii) purchases goods from another EU Member State. In such case, the Partnership will need to register for VAT purposes in order to self-assess Luxembourg input VAT (reverse charge mechanism). A VAT exemption applies in Luxembourg for services qualifying as fund management services. Other services supplied to the Partnership by the General Partner could potentially trigger VAT. No VAT liability arises in principle in Luxembourg in respect of any payments by the Partnership to its investors as such payments are linked to their subscription to the Partnership's Interests and do therefore not constitute the consideration received for taxable services supplied.

Taxation of Investors

As a result of the tax transparency of the Partnership, each investor is, in principle, subject to taxation on profits and gains of the Partnership according to that investor's particular tax status and the jurisdiction in which it is resident for taxation purposes.

Non-resident investors without a permanent establishment, a permanent representative, or a fixed place of business in Luxembourg to which the Interests in the Partnership are attributable, are not, in principle, subject to any capital gains tax, income tax, withholding tax or net wealth tax in Luxembourg.

As an exception, a non-resident investor could, however, be subject to Luxembourg taxation on capital gains (unless a tax treaty provides otherwise) if such an investor holds a substantial participation through the Partnership in a Luxembourg undertaking which is transferred or redeemed (i) less than 6 months after its acquisition or (ii) more than 6 months after its acquisition, and where the investor has been a Luxembourg resident taxpayer for more than 15 years but became a non-resident taxpayer fewer than five years before the transfer/redemption took place.

Luxembourg-resident investors, and non-resident investors having a permanent establishment, permanent representative or fixed place of business in Luxembourg to which or whom the Interests can be attributed, may, depending on their own tax status, be subject to Luxembourg taxation in relation to their Interests.

Foreign Account Tax Compliance Act

The FATCA requires financial institutions outside the U.S. ("foreign financial institutions" or "FFIs") to pass information about "Financial Accounts" held by "Specified U.S. Persons", directly or indirectly, to the U.S. tax authorities (the Internal Revenue Service, "IRS") on an annual basis. A 30% withholding tax is imposed on certain U.S. source income of any FFI that fails to comply with this requirement.

On March 28, 2014, the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg entered into a Model 1 Intergovernmental Agreement ("Luxembourg IGA") with the United States of America and a memorandum of understanding in respect thereof. The Partnership would hence have to comply with this Luxembourg IGA as implemented into Luxembourg law by the FATCA Law in order to comply with the provisions of FATCA rather than directly complying with the U.S. Treasury Regulations implementing FATCA. Under the FATCA Law and the Luxembourg IGA, the Partnership may be required to collect information aiming to identify its financial account holders (including certain entities and their controlling persons) that are Specified U.S. Persons for FATCA purposes (“FATCA Reportable Accounts”). Any such information on FATCA Reportable Accounts provided to the Partnership will be shared with the Luxembourg tax authorities (Administration des Contributions Directes) which will exchange that information on an automatic basis with the IRS.

The Partnership intends to comply with the provisions of the FATCA Law and the Luxembourg IGA to be deemed compliant with FATCA and will thus not be subject to the 30% withholding tax with respect to its share of any such payments attributable to actual and deemed U.S. investments of the Partnership. The Partnership will continually assess the extent of the requirements that FATCA, and notably the FATCA Law, place upon it.

To ensure the Partnership’s compliance with FATCA, the FATCA Law and the Luxembourg IGA in accordance with the foregoing, the Partnership may:

- (a) request information or documentation, including W-9 or W-8 tax forms, a Global Intermediary Identification Number, if applicable, or any other valid evidence of an investor’s FATCA registration with the IRS or a corresponding exemption, in order to ascertain that investor’s FATCA status;
- (b) report information concerning an investor and his/her/its account holding in the Partnership to the Luxembourg tax authorities (Administration des Contributions Directes) if such account is deemed a FATCA Reportable Account under the FATCA Law and the Luxembourg IGA;
- (c) report information to the Luxembourg tax authorities (Administration des Contributions Directes) concerning accounts held by recalcitrant account holders;
- (d) deduct applicable U.S. withholding taxes from certain payments made to an investor by or on behalf of the Partnership in accordance with FATCA, the FATCA Law and the Luxembourg IGA; and
- (e) divulge any such personal information to any immediate payer of certain U.S. source income as may be required for withholding and reporting to occur with respect to the payment of such income.

By investing in the Partnership, the investors acknowledge that (i) the Partnership is responsible for the treatment of the personal data provided for in the FATCA Law; (ii) the personal data will inter alia be used for the purposes of the FATCA Law; (iii) the personal data may be communicated to the Luxembourg tax authorities (Administration des Contributions Directes) and through them to the IRS; (iv) responding to FATCA-related questions is mandatory; and (v) the investors have a right of access to and rectification of the data communicated to the Luxembourg tax authorities (Administration des Contributions Directes).

The Partnership reserves the right to refuse any subscription for Interests if the information provided or not provided does not satisfy the requirements under FATCA, the FATCA Law and the Luxembourg IGA.

Prospective investors should consult their professional advisor on the individual impact of FATCA.

Automatic Exchange of Information

The Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (“OECD”) has developed a CRS to achieve a comprehensive and multilateral automatic exchange of information on a global basis. On October 29, 2014, Luxembourg signed the OECD’s multilateral competent authority agreement (“Multilateral Agreement”) to automatically exchange information under the CRS. On December 9, 2014, Council Directive 2014/107/EU amending Directive 2011/16/EU as regards mandatory automatic exchange of information in the field of taxation (“DAC2”) was adopted to implement the CRS among the EU Member States. The CRS and the DAC2 were implemented into Luxembourg law by the CRS Law.

The CRS Law requires Luxembourg financial institutions to identify their financial account holders (including certain entities and their controlling persons) and establish if they are fiscally resident in (i) an EU Member State other than Luxembourg or (ii) a jurisdiction with which Luxembourg has a tax information sharing agreement in place (including the Multilateral Agreement) and which is identified in the list of reportable jurisdictions published by Grand Ducal Decree (“CRS Reportable Accounts”). The first official list of CRS reportable jurisdictions was published on March 24, 2017 and is updated from time to time. Luxembourg financial institutions will then report the information on such CRS Reportable Accounts to the Luxembourg tax authorities (Administration des Contributions Directes), which will thereafter automatically transfer this information to the competent foreign tax authorities on a yearly basis.

Accordingly, the Partnership may require its investors to provide information or documentation in relation to the identity and fiscal residence of financial account holders (including certain entities and their controlling persons) in order to ascertain their CRS status; and report information regarding an investor and his/her/its account holding in the Partnership to the Luxembourg tax authorities (Administration des Contributions Directes) if such an account is deemed a CRS Reportable Account under the CRS Law.

By investing in the Partnership, the investors acknowledge that (i) the Partnership is responsible for the treatment of the personal data provided for in the CRS Law; (ii) the personal data will inter alia be used for the purposes of the CRS Law; (iii) the personal data may be communicated to the Luxembourg tax authorities (Administration des Contributions Directes) and through them to the competent authorities of CRS reportable jurisdictions; (iv) responding to CRS-related questions is mandatory; and (v) the investors have a right of access to and rectification of the data communicated to the Luxembourg tax authorities (Administration des Contributions Directes).

The Partnership reserves the right to refuse any subscription for Interests if the information provided or not provided does not satisfy the requirements under the CRS Law.

Prospective investors should consult their professional advisor on the individual impact of the CRS.

CERTAIN U.S. FEDERAL INCOME TAX CONSIDERATIONS

The following is a general discussion of certain U.S. federal income tax considerations relating to an investment in the Fund. For purposes of this discussion, the “Fund” shall refer to the Partnership, any Alternative Vehicle treated as a partnership for U.S. federal income tax purposes or any other Parallel Fund treated as a partnership for U.S. federal income tax purposes, individually or collectively as the applicable context may require. This discussion is based on provisions of the Code, the regulations promulgated thereunder, IRS rulings and pronouncements and judicial decisions now in effect. These authorities, and interpretations thereof, may be changed during the life of the Fund so as to result in U.S. federal income tax consequences different from those set forth below. Both the level and basis of taxation may change. Any such tax developments could materially affect the tax consequences of a Limited Partner’s investment in the Fund, and the tax treatment of the Fund and the Fund’s investments, in each case possibly with retroactive effect. This discussion is necessarily general, and is not intended to be applicable to all categories of investors, some of which, such as banks, thrifts, insurance companies, dealers in securities, states and municipalities, private college and university endowments, charitable remainder trusts and other investors that do not own their Interests as capital assets, may be subject to special rules. Except to the extent set forth below under the headings “—U.S. Tax-Exempt Investors” and “—Certain U.S. Tax Consequences with Respect to Non-U.S. Limited Partners,” this summary does not address the tax consequences that may be relevant to tax-exempt organizations and Non-U.S. Persons (as defined below), including non-U.S. governments and international organizations. The actual tax and financial consequences of the ownership or sale of Interests in the Fund will vary depending upon the investor's particular circumstances.

For purposes of this discussion, a "U.S. Person" is (i) an individual who is a citizen or resident of the U.S. for U.S. federal income tax purposes, (ii) a corporation or other entity taxable as a corporation created or organized in the U.S. or under the laws of the U.S., any state thereof or the District of Columbia, (iii) an estate the income of which is subject to U.S. federal income taxation regardless of its source or (iv) a trust (A) that is subject to the supervision of a court within the U.S. and the control of one or more U.S. persons as described in Section 7701(a)(30) of the Code or (B) that has a valid election in effect under applicable U.S. Treasury regulations to be treated as a U.S. Person. A "U.S. Limited Partner" is a Limited Partner that is a U.S. Person. A "Non-U.S. Person" is a person that is not a U.S. Person, and a "Non-U.S. Limited Partner" is a Limited Partner (other than an entity treated as a partnership for U.S. federal income tax purposes) that is not a U.S. Person.

If a Limited Partner is a partnership for U.S. federal income tax purposes, the tax treatment of a partner in such partnership will generally depend upon the status of the partner and the activities of the partner and the partnership. If you are a partner of a Limited Partner treated as a partnership for U.S. federal income tax purposes, you should consult your own tax advisors. This discussion does not constitute tax advice, and is not intended to substitute for an investor's own tax planning or the advice an investor should obtain from the investor's own tax advisor.

This discussion assumes that (i) no Non-U.S. Limited Partners will invest in the Main Fund and (ii) no U.S. Limited Partners (other than certain U.S. tax-exempt Limited Partners) will invest in the Partnership. An investment in the Partnership is generally not intended for U.S. Limited Partners (other than certain U.S. tax-exempt Limited Partners) and may result in significant adverse tax consequences for any such U.S. Limited Partner, and an investment in the Main Fund (rather than the Partnership) is generally not intended for any Non-U.S. Limited Partners seeking to avoid the incurrence of ECI or CAI (or U.S. tax return filing obligations). Any Non-U.S. Limited Partner that intends to invest in the Main Fund (rather than the Partnership), or any U.S. Limited Partner (other than certain U.S. tax-exempt Limited Partners) that intends to invest in the Partnership, is urged to consult with its own tax advisors as to the potential tax consequences to it of making such an investment. Prospective investors should refer to the private placement memorandum of the Main Fund for a discussion of certain U.S. federal income tax consequences of an investment in the Main Fund.

Prospective investors should consult their own tax advisors regarding the U.S. federal, state, and local income tax consequences in their particular situations of the purchase, ownership, and disposition of Interests in the Fund, as well as any consequences under the laws of any other taxing jurisdiction.

U.S. Tax Status of the Partnership

Subject to the discussion of publicly traded partnerships below, a Luxembourg special limited partnership will generally be classified as a partnership for U.S. federal income tax purposes if it has two or more partners and at least one partner does not have limited liability, unless it elects to be treated as a corporation. The Partnership will not make an election to be treated as a corporation for U.S. federal income tax purposes and, notwithstanding the foregoing default classification, will make an affirmative election to be treated as a partnership for U.S. federal income tax purposes.

An entity such as the Partnership that would otherwise be classified as a partnership for U.S. federal income tax purposes may nonetheless be taxable as a corporation if it is a "publicly traded partnership." If the Partnership were determined to be taxable as a corporation, then (i) the Partnership would generally be taxable on any ECI (as defined below) at U.S. federal income tax rates applicable to corporations (and the Partnership would potentially be subject to an additional 30% “branch profits” tax), (ii) the Partnership would generally be subject a 30% U.S. withholding tax on any U.S.-source dividends, interest and certain other income, and (iii) any distributions to the Limited Partners of the Partnership would be taxable as dividends to such Limited Partners to the extent of the earnings and profits of the Partnership. The General Partner intends to operate the Partnership such that it will not be treated as a corporation under the publicly traded partnership provisions, and the discussion herein assumes that the Fund will be treated as a partnership for U.S. federal income tax purposes.

The Partnership generally expects to invest, directly or indirectly (including through one or more corporations, as discussed below), through one or more entities each of which is classified as a partnership or as a disregarded entity for U.S. federal income tax purposes, including any Aggregator Vehicle as such term is defined in the Partnership Agreement (each such entity a “Flow-Through Entity”). Unless otherwise indicated, references herein to the activities and investments of the Partnership include activities conducted and investments made indirectly by the Fund through one or more Flow-Through Entities through which it invests.

An organization that is classified as a partnership for U.S. federal income tax purposes is generally not subject to federal income tax itself (subject to the discussion below under “—Other Matters”), although it must file an annual information return.

U.S. Tax Status of Corporations

The Partnership is expected to invest primarily in or through one or more entities, each of which is treated as a corporation for U.S. federal income tax purposes (each such corporation, a “Corporation” as such term is used in the Partnership Agreement). Each such Corporation is generally expected, in turn, to invest all or substantially of its assets in one or more Aggregator Vehicles through which the Partnership will hold its Portfolio Investments. The Partnership may also invest in certain Aggregator Vehicles (or other Flow-Through Entities) directly in certain cases where a direct investment in such an entity is not generally expected to result in ECI to the Limited Partners of the Partnership.

The Partnership generally expects to invest in the Corporations through a mix of equity contributions and loans to such Corporations. In general, neither the Partnership nor its Limited Partners will be directly taxed on the distributive share of income realized by any Corporation or any Flow-Through Entity in which such a Corporation invests. Instead, a U.S. Corporation (as defined below) will, and a Non-U.S. Corporation (as defined below) may, pay U.S. federal, and possible state and local, taxes with respect to such income.

One or more of the Corporations is expected to be organized as a non-U.S. entity that is classified (or that elects to be classified) as a corporation for U.S. federal income tax purposes (each, a “Non-U.S. Corporation”). In general, an entity treated as a corporation for U.S. federal income tax purposes that is organized under non-U.S. law will be subject to U.S. federal income tax if it is engaged in the conduct of a trade or business within the U.S. In such case, such entity is subject to tax at the applicable corporate rates on its income that is ECI and will also be subject to the branch profits tax at a rate of 30% on earnings that are withdrawn from the U.S. trade or business. Because the Flow-Through Entities (including the Underlying Funds) in which the Fund (or any given Non-U.S. Corporation owned by the Partnership) is expected to invest will often be entities treated as partnerships for U.S. federal income tax purposes, the character of a Non-U.S. Corporation’s income (e.g., as ECI or U.S. source) will be based on the nature of the applicable Flow-Through Entity’s activities and investments. Although not free from doubt, it is generally expected that a Non-U.S. Corporation will participate in investments that do not primarily generate ECI, although no assurance can be given in this regard.

Even if none of a Non-U.S. Corporation's income is ECI, certain categories of income (including dividends and certain types of interest income and fees) derived by a Non-U.S. Corporation from U.S. sources may be subject to a U.S. withholding tax of 30% in the same manner as discussed below with respect to Non-U.S. Limited Partners (unless eligible for reduction under an applicable income tax treaty). While it is not expected that the Non-U.S. Corporations through which the Partnership invests will themselves be eligible for a reduced rate of U.S. withholding under an applicable income tax treaty, it is possible that certain Non-U.S. Limited Partners may be eligible for a reduced rate of U.S. withholding tax in respect of the applicable Non-U.S. Corporation's share of applicable U.S. source income under an income tax treaty between the Non-U.S. Limited Partner's jurisdiction of residence and the United States, as further discussed below. However, note that claiming treaty benefits is administratively complex and there can be no assurances that a Non-U.S. Limited Partner will successfully be able to claim benefits to which they might be entitled.

One or more of the Corporations is expected to be a U.S. corporation or a U.S. limited liability company classified as a corporation under U.S. federal income tax principles (each, a "U.S. Corporation"). Subject to certain exceptions, an entity classified as a U.S. corporation generally is subject to U.S. federal income tax (currently at a rate of 21%) on its income, which will be reduced by certain deductible expenses, including management fees and, in certain cases, interest expense paid to the Partnership in respect of loans made to the U.S. Corporation. Although not free from doubt, it is generally expected that a U.S. Corporation will participate in investments that produce income associated with activities constituting a U.S. trade or business.

It is possible that deductions for interest paid by a Corporation may be subject to limitations under the Code, including that interest may not be deductible until paid under Section 267 of the Code, limitations on business interest expense under Section 163(j) of the Code, and the applicable high yield discount limitations under Section 163(i) of the Code. It is also possible that all or a portion of such loans may not be respected by the IRS as indebtedness of the applicable Corporation for U.S. federal income tax purposes, or that all or a portion of the interest paid is in excess of an arm's length rate and may be disallowed. If the loans are re-characterized as equity in the applicable Corporation, (i) such Corporation would generally lose its ability to deduct the interest paid on those loans or some of the interest would be disallowed, (ii) the re-characterized amounts may be treated as dividends subject to higher withholding taxes under applicable tax law or any applicable tax treaties, and (iii) the Corporation could be subject to interest and penalties for failing to timely withhold and pay over such taxes.

The Corporations through which the Partnership invests are generally expected to hold their applicable share of the Fund's underlying Portfolio Investments through "tracking" (or similar) interests issued by one or more Flow-Through Entities that hold such Portfolio Investments and in which such Corporations invest. The General Partner will be entitled to make appropriate adjustments to allocations and distributions by such Flow-Through Entities in order to ensure, to the maximum extent possible, that Portfolio Investments are held (indirectly) by the applicable Corporations. While it is expected that such allocations and distributions will be respected, it is possible that the IRS could challenge such a structure and, if successfully challenged, the U.S. tax consequences to the Corporations (and to the Limited Partners investing in the Partnership) could be different than those described above.

Taxation of U.S. Limited Partners

As discussed above, an investment in the Partnership is generally not intended for U.S. Limited Partners (other than certain U.S. tax-exempt Limited Partners) and may result in significant adverse tax results for any such U.S. Limited Partner as compared to an investment in the Main Fund. Each prospective U.S. Limited Partner should review the private placement memorandum of the Main Fund and consult its tax advisors regarding the U.S. federal income tax consequences of an investment in the Fund.

Income Associated with the Underlying Fund Investments

The Partnership may have no ability to control important aspects associated with its investments (including investments in or through Underlying Funds), including the character of any gains or income allocated with respect to such investments, the ability to make Section 754 elections (as further described below), and the amount or timing of cash distributed by such Underlying Funds. These restrictions may also cause the Limited Partners of the Partnership or the Corporations through which the Partnership invests to be allocated Partnership income in excess (potentially significantly) of cash distributions for a particular year.

Additionally, the Partnership generally does not expect to have the ability to participate in any tax audits of the Underlying Funds, and the Partnership generally will be bound by elections and other decisions made by the Underlying Funds in connection with such tax audits (including, if applicable, push-out elections) and the Partnership or the Corporations through which the Partnership invests may therefore be required to bear their share of any imputed underpayments or other adjustments arising in connection with such tax audits. It is possible the Partnership or the Corporations through which the Partnership invests may economically bear imputed underpayments from (or attributable to) Underlying Funds that are attributable to taxable income arising prior to its period of ownership of an interest in such Underlying Fund.

The purchase price paid (directly or indirectly) by the Partnership for its interest in any Underlying Fund that is a Flow-Through Entity acquired in a secondary market transaction generally will not be reflected in the tax basis of the securities and other assets held by the Underlying Fund unless the Underlying Fund has in effect an election under Section 754 of the Code. If no such election is in effect and the Partnership (or a Corporation through which the Partnership invests) pays a price for its interest in the Underlying Fund that exceeds its proportionate share of the Underlying Fund's tax basis in its assets, the Partnership (or such Corporation) may realize taxable gains on the Underlying Fund's later sale of those assets even though the Partnership (or such Corporation) would have realized smaller gains (or even losses) if the Underlying Fund's tax basis in the assets sold had reflected the price paid (directly or indirectly) by the Partnership for its interests in such Underlying Fund. A Corporation through which the Partnership invests may subsequently might be able to claim a loss deduction for U.S. federal income tax purposes to offset this "artificial" gain realized on the earlier sale of assets by the Underlying Fund, but such a loss deduction is generally only expected to arise at the time of the Underlying Fund's final liquidating distribution (provided that those distributions are made in cash). If the final liquidating distribution of the Underlying Fund consisted in part of an in-kind distribution of securities or other assets, the Partnership (or any such Corporation) generally would not be allowed an immediate loss deduction, and any taxable gain otherwise reportable on a later sale of those assets generally would be reduced correspondingly.

If an Underlying Fund in which the Partnership directly or indirectly acquires an interest has a Section 754 election in effect for the year during which the Partnership acquired its interest, the Partnership's share (or the share of any Corporation through which the Partnership invests) of the Underlying Fund's tax basis in its assets would be increased (or decreased, as the case may be) to reflect the purchase price paid (including its proportionate share of liabilities) by the Partnership (or such Corporation) for its interest in such Underlying Fund. In that event, taxable gains (or losses) realized by the Partnership (or such Corporation) on later sales of those assets generally would be limited to the appreciation (or depreciation) occurring after the Partnership's (or such Corporation's) acquisition of its interest in the Underlying Fund, and acceleration of tax liabilities (as described in the preceding paragraph) would not be expected to occur. Basis adjustments may be required upon the acquisition of a partnership interest in a secondary market transaction in the same manner as if a Section 754 election were made, regardless of whether such an election is actually made if, generally, the applicable partnership whose interests are being acquired has a built-in loss exceeding $250,000 immediately following the transfer. If the Partnership (or a Corporation through which it invests) acquires an interest in an Underlying Fund and a basis adjustment is required (either pursuant to a Section 754 election or due to the built-in loss rule described above), the Underlying Fund may require the Partnership (or such Corporation) to bear the additional tax bookkeeping and compliance costs and expenses attributable to such basis adjustment.

Delayed Tax Information

The Fund's ability to deliver accurate and timely tax filing information to Limited Partners is dependent upon the accuracy and timeliness of the information received from the Portfolio Investments (including investments in Underlying Funds). The Fund is unlikely to be able to provide final tax filing information to Limited Partners for any given fiscal year until after the initial tax filing deadlines for Limited Partner tax returns (and perhaps significantly after such times). Final IRS Schedule K-1s (or other tax reporting information) will not be available until the Fund has received tax-reporting information from its underlying Portfolio Investments (including Underlying Funds) necessary to prepare such final IRS Schedule K-1s. Accordingly, Limited Partners should plan to obtain extensions of the filing dates for their income tax returns.

State, Local and Other Tax Consequences

Prospective investors should also consider the potential U.S. state and local tax consequences of an investment in the Fund. In addition to being taxed in its own state or locality of residence, a Limited Partner may be subject to tax return filing obligations and income, franchise and other taxes in jurisdictions in which the Fund directly or indirectly invests or is engaged in a trade or business (particularly with respect to an investment in the Main Fund, rather than the Partnership). Further, the Fund may be subject to state and/or local tax. In addition, state and local jurisdictions may depart from the U.S. federal income tax treatment of certain items of Partnership income, gain, loss, deduction or credit. Prospective investors should consult their own tax advisors regarding the state and local tax consequences of an investment in the Fund.

Taxation in Other Jurisdictions

If the Fund makes investments, directly or indirectly (including through Underlying Funds), in jurisdictions outside the U.S., the Fund or the Limited Partners may be subject to income or other tax in that jurisdiction. Additionally, withholding taxes or other taxes may be imposed on income or gains of the Fund from investments in such jurisdictions; provided, that such taxes may be subject to the possibility of reduction under applicable tax treaties. In addition, local tax incurred in non-U.S. jurisdictions by the Fund or vehicles through which the Fund invests may not be creditable or deductible by a Limited Partner.

There may be changes in the tax laws or interpretations of tax laws in any jurisdiction in which the Fund or any of its Portfolio Investments (including any Underlying Fund or any investment by any Underlying Fund) operates, is managed, is advised or invests (including at a time after a particular investment has been made in such jurisdiction), that are adverse to the Fund, its Portfolio Investments or the Limited Partners. Changes to taxation treaties or other intergovernmental agreements or interpretations of taxation treaties or other intergovernmental agreements between one or more such jurisdictions and countries through which the Fund or any of its Portfolio Investments (including Underlying Funds) holds investments or in which a Limited Partner is resident may adversely affect the Fund's ability to efficiently realize income or capital gains, including by reason of additional withholding taxes imposed by such jurisdictions. Consequently, it is possible that the Fund, Portfolio Investments, Underlying Funds, or Limited Partners may face unfavorable tax treatment in such jurisdictions that may materially adversely affect the value and/or returns of the Fund's Portfolio Investments or the feasibility of making investments in certain countries.

Prospective investors should consult their own tax advisors regarding the non-U.S. tax consequences of an investment in the Fund.

U.S. Tax-Exempt Investors

Because a significant portion of the Partnership's investments are expected to be held through the Corporations, it is generally expected that, except as described below, a U.S. tax-exempt Limited Partner's distributive share of the Partnership's income should consist principally of dividends and interest, and potentially capital gains—types of income that (subject to the discussion of debt financing below) are expressly excluded from UBTI.

Income recognized by a U.S. tax-exempt entity is exempt from U.S. federal income tax, except to the extent of the entity's UBTI. With exceptions for certain types of entities, UBTI is generally defined as income from a trade or business regularly carried on by a tax-exempt entity that is unrelated to its exempt purpose (including an unrelated trade or business regularly carried on by a partnership of which the entity is a partner). However, subject to the discussion below of debt financing and "acquisition indebtedness," UBTI generally does not include dividends, interest and gains from the sale of property that is neither inventory nor held for sale to customers in the ordinary course of business. A U.S. tax-exempt entity deriving gross income characterized as UBTI that exceeds $1,000 in any taxable year is obligated to file a U.S. federal income tax return, even if it has no liability for that year as a result of deductions against such gross income, including an annual $1,000 statutory deduction.

If a U.S. tax-exempt Limited Partner's acquisition of an Interest in the Fund is debt-financed, or the Partnership or a Flow-Through Entity in which the Partnership invests other than through a Corporation) incurs "acquisition indebtedness" that is allocated to the acquisition of an investment, as applicable, then a percentage of the U.S. tax-exempt Limited Partner's gross income from the Partnership (less the same percentage of deductions) derived from such investment will generally be treated as UBTI regardless of whether such income would otherwise be excluded from UBTI as dividends, interest, rents, gain or loss from sale of eligible property or similar income.

The percentage referred to in the preceding paragraph is, in the case of operating income, the average amount of acquisition indebtedness for a taxable year with respect to property over the average adjusted basis for such year for the property or, in the case of a sale of an investment, the highest amount of indebtedness outstanding for the 12-month period prior to the sale with respect to the property over the average adjusted basis for such year for the property. Acquisition indebtedness includes the amount of (i) any mortgage or lien to which property is subject at the time of its acquisition and (ii) debt incurred after the acquisition or improvement of any property if the debt would not have been incurred but for such acquisition or improvement and the incurrence of the debt was reasonably foreseeable at the time of the acquisition or improvement.

Certain Flow-Through Entities through which the Partnership invests other than through a Corporation may incur debt in connection with the Fund's investments, subject to limitations provided in the Partnership Agreement. Generally, debt incurred by a partnership is attributed to its partners. The General Partner may (but is not required to) make available to certain electing U.S. tax-exempt Limited Partners certain structures (including holding certain investments indirectly through Corporations) intended to avoid or minimize the incurrence of debt-financed UBTI arising from borrowing by a Flow-Through Entity in which the Partnership invests.

Additionally, where available, the General Partner generally intends to incur the Partnership's share of borrowing at or below the level of one or more Corporations through which the Partnership invests, though no guarantees can be provided in this regard. In such a case, it is possible that a U.S. tax-exempt Limited Partner (or the Partnership itself) could be deemed to have directly incurred its share of borrowing held through a Corporation, which could generate UBTI for the applicable U.S. tax-exempt Limited Partner. While such deemed borrowings are not expected, the position is not free from doubt.

The amount of UBTI that will be realized by U.S. tax-exempt Limited Partners will depend on the nature of the Fund's operations and investments. Fee income actually received or deemed to be received by the Fund or the Limited Partners (including fee income that might be deemed to be received because, although paid to the General Partner or the Portfolio Manager, such income results in a reduction in the Management Fee) may be treated as UBTI in certain circumstances. Moreover, rebates of certain excess amounts not applied to reduce Management Fees could be deemed to give rise to UBTI. The General Partner intends to take the position that such Management Fee reductions and rebates should not cause the Fund or the Limited Partners to be treated as being engaged in an unrelated trade or business or otherwise generate UBTI, although there can be no assurance that such position will be respected by the IRS.

Accordingly, an investment in the Partnership is generally intended for U.S. tax-exempt Limited Partners seeking to minimize the incurrence of UBTI (though such U.S. tax-exempt Limited Partners may nevertheless be subject to tax on UBTI in the event of certain borrowing activities, including where the U.S. tax-exempt Limited Partner borrows any amount to fund its capital commitment to the Partnership).

Because the Partnership's investments are expected to be held through one or more Corporations, U.S. tax-exempt Limited Partners should review the discussion under "U.S. Tax Status of Corporations," above.

Certain U.S. tax-exempt Limited Partners may be subject to an excise tax if the Partnership engages in a "prohibited tax shelter transaction" or a "subsequently listed transaction" within the meaning of Section 4965 of the Code. In addition, if the Partnership engages in a "prohibited tax shelter transaction," U.S. tax-exempt Limited Partners may be subject to substantial penalties if they fail to comply with special disclosure requirements and managers of such U.S. tax-exempt Limited Partners may also be subject to substantial penalties. Although the Partnership does not expect to engage in any such transaction, the rules are subject to interpretation. Prospective investors that are U.S. tax-exempt Limited Partners should consult their own tax advisors regarding these rules.

Certain U.S. Tax Consequences with Respect to Non-U.S. Limited Partners

General. The following section describes the U.S. federal income tax treatment of a Non-U.S. Limited Partner investing in the Partnership. As a condition of admission to the Partnership, each Non-U.S. Limited Partner generally will be required to complete, execute and deliver to the General Partner the version of IRS Form W-8 applicable to such Non-U.S. Limited Partner. A Non-U.S. Limited Partner that is an intermediary or classified as a partnership or disregarded entity for U.S. federal income tax purposes generally also will be required to provide applicable tax certificates with respect to its investors.

As discussed above, the Partnership's investments will be held primarily through the Corporations (or through one or more Flow-Through Entities, including Aggregator Vehicles, that are not generally expected to make investments expected to generate ECI).

Effectively Connected Income. As discussed above, the Partnership's investments will be held primarily through one or more Corporations (or through one or more Flow-Through Entities, including Aggregator Vehicles, that are not generally expected to make investments expected to generate ECI). Additionally, though such position is not free from doubt, the General Partner intends to take the position that the Partnership is not engaged in a trade or business within the United States as a result of its activities, or the activities of the General Partner and its affiliates. Accordingly, it is not generally expected that a Non-U.S. Limited Partner investing in the Partnership will recognize ECI as a result of its investment in the Partnership.

If the Partnership were regarded as engaged in a U.S. trade or business for U.S. federal income tax purposes, each Non-U.S. Limited Partner would be required to file U.S. federal income tax returns and pay U.S. federal income tax on its share of the Partnership's net ECI. In addition to income earned by the Partnership, all or a portion of the gain on the disposition (including by redemption) by a Non-U.S. Limited Partner of its interests will be taxed as ECI to the extent such gain were to be treated as attributable to assets of the Partnership that generate ECI. In addition, a Non-U.S. Limited Partner that is a non-U.S. corporation may also be subject to an additional branch profits tax of 30% on its share of the Fund's effectively connected earnings and profits, adjusted as provided by law (subject to reduction by any applicable tax treaty).

In general, neither the Partnership nor the Non-U.S. Limited Partners who are not themselves engaged in a U.S. trade or business are expected to be subject to any U.S. federal income tax with respect to gains from the sale of stock or debt securities held for investment; provided, that such gains are not effectively connected to the conduct of a U.S. trade or business by the Partnership or such Limited Partner. However, a non-resident individual present in the U.S. for 183 or more days in the taxable year of the sale would be taxed by the U.S. on any such gain if either (i) such individual's tax home for U.S. federal income tax purposes is in the U.S. or (ii) the gain is attributable to an office or other fixed place of business maintained in the U.S. by such individual. In addition, as discussed below under the heading "—Interests in Real Property," special rules apply to dispositions of "U.S. real property interests" that include stock in a U.S. corporation 50% or more of the assets of which consist of U.S. real property. Special rules may also apply in the case of Non-U.S. Limited Partners: (i) that have an office or fixed place of business in the U.S.; or (ii) that are former citizens of the U.S., "controlled foreign corporations" as to the U.S., foreign insurance companies that hold Interests in the Partnership in connection with their U.S. business, "passive foreign investment companies" and corporations that accumulate earnings to avoid U.S. federal income tax. Prospective investors that are Non-U.S. Persons should consult their own tax advisors before investing in the Fund.

Fee income actually received or deemed to be received by the Partnership or the Limited Partners (including any fee income that might be deemed to be received because although paid to the General Partner or its affiliates, such income results in a reduction in the Management Fee) may cause the Partnership and the Limited Partners to be treated as being engaged in a U.S. trade or business with respect to such fee income. Moreover, rebates of certain excess amounts not applied to reduce Management Fees could be deemed to give rise to ECI. The General Partner intends to take the position that the fee reductions and rebates should not cause the Partnership or the Limited Partners to be treated as being engaged in a U.S. trade or business, although there can be no assurance that such position will be respected by the IRS.

Because the Partnership's investments will be held primarily through one or more Corporations (or through one or more Flow-Through Entities, including Aggregator Vehicles, that are not generally expected to make investments expected to generate ECI), an investment in the Partnership is generally intended to allow such Non-U.S. Limited Partners to avoid the direct incurrence of ECI with respect to investments that generate ECI. In such a case, the applicable Corporation will be allocated income from the underlying ECI investments, and the Corporation, rather than the Limited Partners, will file the tax return and pay a corporate tax on any reportable income associated with the ECI investments. As discussed above, the General Partner may, in its discretion, cause the Partnership to invest in one or more Corporations via a combination of loans and equity contributions. In the event that the Partnership invests a portion of its capital in any applicable Corporation in the form of loans, it is generally expected that the interest deductions arising with respect to any such loans would generally reduce taxable income of the Corporation, subject to applicable limitations. A Non-U.S. Limited Partner share of the Partnership's interest income arising with respect to any such loans is generally not expected to be taxable for U.S. federal income tax purposes (under the portfolio interest exemption described below under "—Fixed or Determinable Annual or Periodic Income") for Non-U.S. Limited Partners that directly or indirectly own less than 10% of the voting power of the Corporation. In order to reduce any withholding taxes that may be imposed on the Partnership or the Limited Partners with respect to distributions in respect of such loans, alternative voting or control arrangements may be implemented with respect to an applicable Corporation. In addition, a Non-U.S. Limited Partner's share of any dividends paid by the Corporation to the Partnership would generally be subject to a 30% withholding tax. This withholding tax may be eliminated or reduced with respect to Non-U.S. Limited Partners eligible for a reduced rate of or exemption from withholding under an applicable income tax treaty. Although the General Partner believes the above treatment is appropriate, it is possible the IRS would assert the loans should not be respected, in which event the interest deductions on such loans would not be available. Non-U.S. Limited Partners should generally be exempt from U.S. federal income tax on any gain resulting from the direct or indirect sale or disposition of the debt or equity interests of the Corporation (subject to the discussion above regarding gain from the sale of stock or debt securities and the discussion below under “—Interests in Real Property”). However, given the nature of the Fund’s investments, there can be no guarantee that the Partnership would be able to dispose of any applicable investment through a sale of stock or debt securities in any applicable Corporation.

While the structures discussed above may reduce the administrative burdens associated with filing U.S. federal income tax returns with respect to such investments, holding an investment through such structures will not necessarily eliminate all U.S. filing obligations with respect to an ECI investment by Non-U.S. Limited Partners or reduce the U.S. federal income tax liability associated with the investment and will generally not be intended to reduce ECI arising from the sale of stock of a “U.S. real property holding corporation.” It is possible that the tax indirectly borne by Non-U.S. Limited Partners as a result of investing indirectly through Corporations may exceed the tax that such investors would have been required to pay had they not invested through such Corporations. Thus, as a result of such taxes, and other expenses relating to the operation of such structures, it is possible that the investment returns to Non-U.S. Limited Partners electing to invest in the Partnership may be less than the investment returns received by investors electing to invest in the Main Fund.

Fixed or Determinable Annual or Periodic Income. If the Partnership realizes U.S. source income that is “fixed or determinable annual or periodical gains, profits and income” (as defined in the Code) and is not effectively connected with a U.S. trade or business, Non-U.S. Limited Partners generally will be subject to a U.S. federal withholding tax of 30% (unless reduced by applicable treaty or otherwise) on their share of such income (including, but not limited to, interest and dividends), and certain other gains and original issue discount that are included in the Non-U.S. Limited Partners’ distributive share of Partnership income (whether or not distributed), unless, in the case of interest, such interest qualifies as portfolio interest. Portfolio interest generally includes (with certain exceptions) interest paid on registered obligations with respect to which the beneficial owner provides a statement that it is not a U.S. person. The portfolio interest exemption is generally not available with respect to interest paid to a non-U.S. person (including a Non-U.S. Corporation through which the Partnership invests) that owns 10% or more of the interests in the issuer of the indebtedness and is subject to certain other limitations. In addition, certain types of “contingent interest” (generally, interest the amount of which is determined by the receipts, sales, cash flow, income or profits of the debtor or a related person, or by dividends or partnership distributions made by the debtor or a related person) are excluded from the definition of portfolio interest and will be subject to tax and withholding as discussed above.

Additionally, each Non-U.S. Corporation will generally be subject to the foregoing U.S. withholding tax as discussed above. However, certain Non-U.S. Limited Partners may be eligible for a reduced rate of U.S. withholding tax in respect of the applicable Non-U.S. Corporation’s share of any such dividend or interest income under an applicable income tax treaty between the Non-U.S. Limited Partner’s jurisdiction of residence and the United States. Any such Non-U.S. Limited Partners that is resident in a jurisdiction with which the U.S. has a tax treaty will not be entitled to the benefits of that treaty with respect to that Non-U.S. Limited Partner’s share of such income unless, under the law of that non-U.S. jurisdiction, the Partnership and the applicable Non-U.S. Corporation (and any additional intermediate entity through which the Non-U.S. Corporation receives the applicable U.S. source income) are treated as fiscally transparent and the other applicable conditions of the treaty are satisfied. Non-U.S. Limited Partners generally will be required to provide a validly completed IRS Form W-8 certifying eligibility for any such treaty benefits along with any other documentation requested by the General Partner or the payor of the U.S. source income. However, note that claiming treaty benefits is administratively complex and there can be no assurances that a Non-U.S. Limited Partner will successfully be able to claim benefits to which they might be entitled.

Interests in Real Property. Regardless of whether the Partnership's activities constitute a trade or business giving rise to ECI, under provisions added to the Code by FIRPTA, Non-U.S. Limited Partners (subject to certain limited exceptions, including the discussion below regarding Qualified Foreign Pension Funds) are taxed on the gain derived from the dispositions of "U.S. real property interests" (including gain allocated pursuant to the Partnership Agreement upon a sale of such property by the Partnership). Under FIRPTA, Non-U.S. Limited Partners treat gain or loss from dispositions of "U.S. real property interests" as if the gain or loss were ECI and, therefore, are required to pay U.S. taxes at regular U.S. rates on such gain or loss. The Partnership may in certain cases make investments in Underlying Funds that are treated as (or that invest in) "U.S. real property interests" and may also acquire or invest through Corporations that are treated as "U.S. real property interests" as a result of such Corporations being "U.S. real property holding corporations."

Under current U.S. federal income tax law, certain foreign pension funds ("Qualified Foreign Pension Funds") are exempt from FIRPTA on their disposition of U.S. real property interests held directly or indirectly through one or more partnerships, although a Qualified Foreign Pension Fund may be subject to U.S. federal income tax if the disposition otherwise generates ECI. A Qualified Foreign Pension Fund is a corporation, trust or other arrangement (1) which is organized outside of the United States, (2) established to provide retirement or pension benefits to current or former employees of one or more employers in consideration for services rendered, (3) which does not have any single participant or beneficiary with a right to more than 5% of the fund's assets or income, (4) which is subject to government regulation and provide annual information reporting about its beneficiaries to the relevant tax authorities in the country in which it is established or operates and (5) with respect to the laws of the country in which it is established or operates, contributions to the fund are deductible or excludable from the gross income of such entity or taxed at a reduced rate, or the investment income of the fund is deferred or taxed at a reduced rate.

Upon a sale of a Limited Partner's Interests, if (i) 50% or more of the Partnership's gross assets consist of "U.S. real property interests" and (ii) 90% or more of the Partnership's gross assets consist of "U.S. real property interests" and cash or cash equivalents, a purchaser will be required to withhold 15% of the amount paid for the Fund Interests pursuant to Section 1445 of the Code. Regardless of whether the Partnership satisfies these requirements, gain realized by a Non-U.S. Limited Partner from the sale of all or any portion of its Interests in the Partnership will, to the extent such gain is attributable to "U.S. real property interests" (including interests in any U.S. Corporations that are treated as "U.S. real property holding corporations"), be subject to U.S. federal income tax.

Special Considerations Relating to Section 892 Limited Partners. A foreign government or a "controlled entity" of a foreign government whose earnings do not inure to private persons and that is not treated as engaged in "commercial activity" ("Section 892 Limited Partners") is generally exempt from U.S. federal income tax on income from certain types of investments, such as stock or debt of U.S. corporations (including U.S. real property holding corporations); provided, any such corporation is not treated as a "controlled commercial entity" with respect to such investor. Subject to certain exceptions, investing in stocks, bonds or other securities is not considered commercial activity. In general, an entity engaged in commercial activity will be treated as a controlled commercial entity with respect to a Section 892 Limited Partner if such investor holds (directly or indirectly) 50% or more (by vote or value) of the interests in such entity.

Because the Partnership's investments will be held primarily through one or more Corporations (or through one or more Flow-Through Entities, including Aggregator Vehicles, that are not generally expected to make investments expected to generate ECI), it is generally expected that the Partnership's investment structures would permit a Section 892 Limited Partner to avoid the direct incurrence of commercial activity income as a result of its investment in the Partnership. A Section 892 Limited Partner generally will not be treated as engaged in a commercial activity with respect to its ownership of interests in such Corporation and will not be subject to withholding on any interest and dividends paid by such Corporation if it files, in a timely manner, with the Partnership a valid IRS Form W-8EXP (or successor form) claiming an exemption pursuant to Section 892 of the Code and such Corporation is not treated as a controlled commercial entity with respect to such investor. As discussed above, the Partnership's investment structures may cause the investment returns of Limited Partners electing to invest in the Partnership (rather than in the Main Fund) to be less than the investment returns received by investors investing in the Main Fund.

Reporting Regimes and FATCA Withholding Tax with Respect to the Partnership and Feeder Funds and Alternative Vehicles that Involve Non-U.S. Entities

FATCA requires all entities in a broadly defined class of FFIs to comply with a reporting regime or be subject to a 30% withholding tax on certain U.S. sourced payments. Under FATCA, such "withholdable payments" generally include any payment (or allocation from a partnership, if no corresponding payment is made) of (i) U.S.-source interest, dividends, and royalties (an "FDAP Payment") and (ii) the gross proceeds of a disposition of any stock, debt instrument, or other property that can produce U.S.-source dividends or interest (a "Proceeds Payment"). However, pursuant to proposed U.S. Treasury regulations on which taxpayers are permitted to rely, the withholding requirements with respect to Proceeds Payments are currently eliminated and not in effect. Certain Investors may be able to credit the amount of any FATCA withholding tax against their actual U.S. tax liability (if any) and claim a refund of any amount of such withholding tax in excess of its actual U.S. tax liability. However, such credits or refunds are subject to various limitations and conditions.

Non-U.S. entities that are not FFIs are required to either certify they have no substantial U.S. beneficial ownership or to report certain information with respect to their substantial U.S. beneficial ownership or be subject to a 30% withholding tax on certain payments.

The reporting requirements imposed under FATCA require an FFI to enter into agreements with the IRS to obtain and disclose information about certain of its U.S. investors or account holders to the IRS, or, if subject to an IGA, register with the IRS. The U.S. and Luxembourg entered into an IGA on March 28, 2014, which was ratified and implemented into Luxembourg law on July 24, 2015. IGAs are generally intended to result in the automatic exchange of tax information through reporting by an FFI to the government or tax authorities of the country in which such FFI is domiciled, followed by the automatic exchange of information with the IRS. The General Partner intends to cause any non-U.S. Fund entity (including the Partnership) to comply, to the extent reasonably practicable, with the reporting requirements to avoid the imposition of the withholding tax (where applicable), but if it does not do so (because, for example, investors fail to provide the General Partner with the required information), certain payments made to such non-U.S. Fund entity or by such non-U.S. Fund entity may be subject to a U.S. withholding tax, which would reduce the cash available to investors. Further, these reporting requirements may apply to underlying entities in which the Fund invests, and the General Partner may not have control over whether such entities comply with the reporting regime. Such withheld amounts that are allocable to a Limited Partner may, in accordance with the Partnership Agreement, be deemed to have been distributed to such Limited Partner to the extent the taxes reduce the amount otherwise distributable to such Limited Partner. Prospective investors should consult their own tax advisors regarding all aspects of FATCA as it affects their particular circumstances.

In addition, the OECD has published a global Common Reporting Standard for the exchange of information pursuant to which many countries have now signed multilateral agreements. One or more of these information exchange regimes are likely to apply to the Fund, Parallel Funds, Feeder Funds, and Alternative Vehicles and may require the General Partner to collect and share with applicable taxing authorities information concerning Limited Partners (including identifying information and amounts of certain income allocable or distributable to them).

With effect from 1 January 2016, a mandatory automatic exchange of information regime was implemented in the EU under Council Directive 2011/16/EU on administrative co-operation in the field of taxation (as amended) (the “Directive on Administrative Co-Operation” or the “DAC”). The DAC, which effectively incorporates (among other items) the CRS into European law, and like the CRS, requires governments to obtain detailed account information from financial institutions and exchange that information automatically with other jurisdictions annually. Neither the CRS nor the DAC impose withholding taxes. The DAC was also amended (“DAC6”), with effect from 25 June 2018, to require ‘intermediaries’ (as defined), and in some cases taxpayers, to report information to EU tax authorities about cross-border arrangements that contain certain prescribed hallmarks. A tax authority receiving such a report must automatically exchange that information with tax authorities in other EU Member States. Similar reporting rules may apply or be introduced in other jurisdictions which implement the OECD model mandatory disclosure rules (“OECD MDR”).

Investors will be required (i) to consent to the taking of any action (including any disclosure) in connection with FATCA, the CRS, the DAC (including DAC6), the OECD MDR and/or any local law relating to, implementing or having similar effect to any of these regimes to enable disclosures to be made by any relevant persons and/or to enable the Fund or any person to receive payments free of any withholding, deduction or retention for or on account of any tax and (ii) to agree to provide the Portfolio Manager and/or the General Partner with all such information and documents as they shall require in relation to FATCA, the CRS, the DAC (including DAC6), the OECD MDR and/or any law relating to, implementing or having similar effect to any of these regimes in any relevant jurisdiction.

Other Matters; U.S. Federal Income Tax Audits and Resulting Liabilities

The General Partner will have the authority to act as or appoint the “partnership representative” of the Fund. The General Partner or the partnership representative, as the case may be, will have the authority, subject to certain restrictions, to act on behalf of the Fund in connection with any administrative or judicial review of items of the Fund’s income, gain, loss, deduction or credit. Each Limited Partner will be required to indemnify the Fund for any withholding or other tax obligations imposed on the Fund with respect to such Limited Partner. The Fund may reserve certain amounts otherwise distributable to Limited Partners in light of such potential obligations. The amount of any taxes paid or withheld from receipts of the Fund allocable to a Partner may be deemed to have been distributed to such Partner to the extent the taxes reduce the amount otherwise distributable to such Partner.

U.S. federal income taxes (and any related interest and penalties) attributable to an adjustment to the Fund’s income following an IRS audit or judicial proceeding of the Fund will, absent an election by the Fund to the contrary, have to be paid by the Fund in the year during which the audit or other proceeding is resolved, if such adjustment results in an increase in U.S. federal income tax liability. If an adjustment to the Fund’s income following an IRS audit or judicial proceeding results in a reduction in U.S. federal income tax liability, the adjustment will flow through to the Partners based on their interests for the year in which the audit or other proceeding is resolved. This could cause the economic burden of U.S. federal income tax liability (or the economic benefit of a favorable adjustment) arising on audit of the Fund to be borne by (or, in the case of a favorable adjustment, to benefit) Partners based on their interests in the Fund in the year during which the audit or other proceeding is resolved, even though such tax liability (or benefit) is attributable to an earlier taxable year in which the interests or identity of some or all of the Partners was different. Current law directs the IRS to provide procedures that may allow the Fund, in calculating taxes imposed on the Fund with respect to audit adjustments, to take into account certain applicable lower tax rates and the tax-exempt status of certain Partners. However, such adjustments may be available only if the applicable Partners provide certain information to the Fund (potentially including information about the owners of Investors classified as partnerships). In addition, if elected by the partnership representative, alternative procedures may allow the Fund to avoid such entity-level U.S. federal income tax liability in some cases if certain conditions are satisfied. These alternative procedures may require Partners (based on their interests in the Fund in the prior tax year under audit) to either file amended returns and pay any tax that would be due for the prior tax year under audit, or adjust the tax liability reported on their income tax returns for the year in which the audit is resolved.

These partnership tax audit rules may also apply to audits of any Portfolio Investment of the Fund that is treated as a partnership for U.S. federal income tax purposes.

Any U.S. federal income taxes (and any related interest and penalties) paid by the Fund (or by a Portfolio Investment of the Fund that is treated as a partnership for U.S. federal income tax purposes) in respect of IRS audit adjustments at the Fund level (or at the Portfolio Investment level) will be allocated by the General Partner to, and will be borne by, the Partners pursuant to the terms of the Partnership Agreement.

Many issues and the overall effect of these rules on the Fund are uncertain, and holders should consult their own tax advisors regarding all aspects of these rules as they affect their particular circumstances.

Base Erosion and Profit Shifting (“BEPS”)

Pursuant to the OECD’s BEPS Project, many individual jurisdictions have now introduced domestic legislation implementing certain of the BEPS Actions. Several of the areas of tax law (including double taxation treaties) on which the BEPS Project focuses are relevant to the ability of the Fund to efficiently realize income or capital gains and to efficiently repatriate income and capital gains from the jurisdictions in which they arise to Limited Partners and, depending on the extent to and manner in which relevant jurisdictions have implemented (or implement, as the case may be) changes in such areas of tax law (including double taxation treaties), the ability of the Fund to do these things may be adversely impacted. Changes in tax laws as a result of the BEPS Project may, for example, result in: (a) the restriction or loss of existing access by Limited Partners in the Fund or its subsidiaries to tax relief under applicable double taxation treaties or EU Directives, such as the EU Interest and Royalties Directive; (b) restrictions on permitted levels of deductibility of expenses (such as interest) for tax purposes; or (c) an increased risk of activity undertaken in a jurisdiction constituting a permanent establishment of the Fund and/or any of its subsidiaries.

Many of the jurisdictions in which the Fund will make investments have now ratified, accepted and approved the OECD’s Multilateral Instrument (“MLI”) which brings into force a number of relevant changes to double tax treaties within scope. The MLI is intended to facilitate the speedy introduction by participating states of double tax treaty-related BEPS recommendations. While these changes continue to be introduced, there remains uncertainty as to whether and, if so, to what extent the Fund or its subsidiaries may benefit from the protections afforded by such treaties and whether the Fund may look to its Limited Partners in order to derive tax treaty or other benefits. This position is likely to remain uncertain for a number of years.

In addition, in July 2016, the European Union (“EU”) adopted the Anti-Tax Avoidance Directive 2016/1164 (commonly referred to as “ATAD I”), which directly implements some of the BEPS Project actions points within EU law. EU Member States had until 31 December 2018 to transpose ATAD I into their domestic laws (except for the provisions on exit taxation, which had to be transposed by 31 December 2019). On 29 May 2017, the Council of the EU formally adopted the Council Directive amending Directive (EU) 2016/1164 as regards hybrid mismatches with third countries (commonly referred to as “ATAD II”). ATAD II came into force in Member States on 1 January 2020 (subject to relevant derogations).

The effect of BEPS and the implementation of the above measures could lead to additional tax being suffered by the Fund or its subsidiaries, which may adversely affect the value of the investments held by Limited Partners in the Fund.

Other taxation

The Fund may be subject to withholding and other taxes imposed by, and Limited Partners may be subject to taxation and reporting requirements in, the jurisdictions of the Fund's activities or investments including, but not limited to, where payments (for example interest payments) are made to 'non-cooperative' or 'blacklist' jurisdictions. The Fund or Limited Partners may also be liable to local taxation in certain jurisdictions if the Fund, or a fund in which it has an interest, disposes of shares or securities of a company resident in that jurisdiction. Tax conventions between such countries and the jurisdiction in which a Limited Partner is a resident may reduce or eliminate certain of these taxes. Taxable Limited Partners may be entitled to claim foreign tax credits or deductions in respect of such taxes, subject to applicable limitations.

CERTAIN ERISA CONSIDERATIONS

The following is a summary of certain considerations associated with an investment in the Fund by (i) employee benefit plans that are subject to Title I of ERISA, (ii) plans and accounts (including individual retirement accounts ("IRAs")) that are subject to Section 4975 of the Code or provisions under any other U.S. or non-U.S. federal, state, local or other laws or regulations that are similar to such provisions of ERISA or the Code (collectively, "Similar Laws") and (iii) entities or accounts the underlying assets of which are considered to include the assets of any such employee benefit plan or plan (each of the foregoing described in clauses (i), (ii) and (iii) referred to herein as a "Plan"). For purposes of this discussion, the term "Fund" shall refer to the Partnership, any Alternative Vehicle and any Parallel Fund individually or collectively as the applicable context may require.

General Fiduciary Matters. ERISA and the Code impose certain duties on persons who are fiduciaries of a Plan subject to Title I of ERISA or Section 4975 of the Code (a "Covered Plan") and prohibit certain transactions involving the assets of a Covered Plan and its fiduciaries or other interested parties. Under ERISA, any person who exercises any discretionary authority or control over the administration of a Covered Plan or the management or disposition of the assets of a Covered Plan, or who renders investment advice for a fee or other compensation to a Covered Plan, is generally considered to be a fiduciary of the Covered Plan.

In considering an investment in the Fund of a portion of the assets of any Plan, a fiduciary should determine, particularly in light of the risks and lack of liquidity inherent in an investment in the Fund, whether the investment is in accordance with the documents and instruments governing the Plan and the applicable provisions of ERISA, the Code or any Similar Laws relating to a fiduciary's duties to the Plan including, without limitation, the prudence, diversification, delegation of control and prohibited transaction provisions of ERISA, Section 4975 of the Code and any other applicable Similar Laws.

Section 406 of ERISA and Section 4975 of the Code prohibit Covered Plans from engaging in specified transactions involving plan assets with persons or entities who are "parties in interest," within the meaning of ERISA, or "disqualified persons," within the meaning of Section 4975 of the Code. The acquisition or ownership of Interests by a Covered Plan with respect to which the Fund is considered a party in interest or a disqualified person may constitute or result in a direct or indirect prohibited transaction under Section 406 of ERISA or Section 4975 of the Code, unless the investment is acquired and is held in accordance with an applicable statutory, class or individual prohibited transaction exemption. In this regard, the U.S. Department of Labor (the "DOL") has issued prohibited transaction class exemptions, or "PTCEs," that may apply to the acquisition and holding of investments in the Fund. These class exemptions include, without limitation, PTCE 84-14 respecting transactions determined by independent qualified professional asset managers, PTCE 90-1 respecting insurance company pooled separate accounts, PTCE 91-38 respecting bank collective investment funds, PTCE 95-60 respecting life insurance company general accounts and PTCE 96-23 respecting transactions determined by in-house asset managers. Each of the above-noted exemptions contains conditions and limitations on its application. Fiduciaries of Covered Plans considering acquiring Interests in reliance on these or any other exemption should carefully review the exemption in consultation with counsel to assure it is applicable. There can be no assurance that all of the conditions of any such exemptions will be satisfied.

Plan Assets. Under ERISA and the regulations promulgated thereunder at 29 CFR 2510.3-101, as modified by Section 3(42) of ERISA (the “Plan Asset Regulations”), when a Covered Plan acquires an equity interest in an entity that is neither a “publicly-offered security” (within the meaning of the Plan Asset Regulations) nor a security issued by an investment company registered under the 1940 Act, the Covered Plan’s assets include both the equity interest and an undivided interest in each of the underlying assets of the entity unless it is established either that less than 25% of the total value of each class of equity interest in the entity is held by “benefit plan investors” (the “25% Test”) or that the entity is an “operating company,” each as defined in the Plan Asset Regulations. For purposes of the 25% Test, the assets of an entity will not be treated as “plan assets” if, immediately after the most recent acquisition of any equity interest in the entity, less than 25% of the total value of each class of equity interests in the entity is held by “benefit plan investors,” excluding equity interests held by persons (other than benefit plan investors) with discretionary authority or control over the assets of the entity or who provide investment advice for a fee (direct or indirect) with respect to such assets, and any affiliates thereof. The term “benefit plan investors” is generally defined to include employee benefit plans subject to Title I of ERISA or Section 4975 of the Code (including “Keogh” plans and IRAs), as well as any entity whose underlying assets include plan assets by reason of a plan’s investment in such entity (e.g., an entity of which 25% or more of the total value of any class of equity interests is held by benefit plan investors and which does not satisfy another exception under ERISA). Thus, absent satisfaction of another exception under ERISA, if 25% or more of the total value of any class of equity interests of the Partnership were held by benefit plan investors, an undivided interest in each of the underlying assets of the Partnership would be deemed to be “plan assets” of each Covered Plan that invested in the Partnership.

The definition of an “operating company” in the Plan Asset Regulations includes, among other things, a VCOC and a REOC. Generally, in order to qualify as a VCOC, an entity must demonstrate on its “initial valuation date” (as defined in the Plan Asset Regulations), and annually thereafter, that at least 50% of its assets, valued at cost (other than short-term investments pending long-term commitment or distribution to investors), are invested in operating companies (other than VCOCs) (i.e., operating entities that (x) are primarily engaged directly, or through a majority owned subsidiary or subsidiaries, in the production or sale of a product or service other than the investment of capital, or (y) qualify as REOCs as defined in the Plan Asset Regulations) in which such entity has direct contractual management rights. In addition, to qualify as a VCOC, an entity must, in the ordinary course of its business, actually exercise such management rights with respect to at least one of the operating companies in which it invests. Similarly, generally in order to qualify as a REOC, an entity must demonstrate on its initial valuation date and annually thereafter that at least 50% of its assets valued at cost (other than short-term investments pending long term commitment or distribution to investors) are invested in real estate which is managed or developed and with respect to which such entity has the right to substantially participate directly in the management or development activities. In addition, to qualify as a REOC an entity must in the ordinary course of its business actually be engaged directly in such real estate management or development activities. The Plan Asset Regulations do not provide specific guidance regarding what rights will qualify as management rights, and the DOL has consistently taken the position that such determination can only be made in light of the surrounding facts and circumstances of each particular case, substantially limiting the degree to which it can be determined with certainty whether particular rights will satisfy this requirement.

Based on the nature of the Partnership’s investments, it is not expected that the Partnership will satisfy the definition of an “operating company” for purposes of the Plan Asset Regulations and that, accordingly, the Partnership will be required to satisfy the 25% Test in order to prevent the underlying assets of the Partnership from being deemed to constitute “plan assets” of any Covered Plans that have invested in the Partnership.

Plan Asset Consequences. If the assets of the Partnership were deemed to constitute “plan assets” within the meaning of the Plan Asset Regulations, this would result, among other things, in (i) the application of the prudence and other fiduciary responsibility standards of ERISA to investments made by the Partnership and (ii) the possibility that certain transactions in which the Partnership might seek to engage could constitute “prohibited transactions” under ERISA and Section 4975 of the Code. If a prohibited transaction occurs for which no exemption is available, the Sponsor and/or any other fiduciary that has engaged in the prohibited transaction could be required to (i) restore to the Covered Plan any profit realized on the transaction and (ii) reimburse the Covered Plan for any losses suffered by the Covered Plan as a result of the investment. In addition, each disqualified person (within the meaning of Section 4975 of the Code) involved could be subject to an excise tax equal to 15% of the amount involved in the prohibited transaction for each year the transaction continues and, unless the transaction is corrected within statutorily required periods, to an additional tax of 100%. Covered Plan fiduciaries who decide to invest in the Partnership could, under certain circumstances, be liable for prohibited transactions or other violations as a result of their investment in the Partnership or as co-fiduciaries for actions taken by or on behalf of the Partnership or the Sponsor. With respect to an IRA that invests in the Partnership, the occurrence of a prohibited transaction involving the individual who established the IRA, or his or her beneficiaries, would cause the IRA to lose its tax-exempt status.

The General Partner intends to limit equity participation by benefit plan investors in the Partnership to less than 25% of the total value of each class of equity interests in the Partnership as described above so that the underlying assets of the Partnership should not constitute “plan assets” of any Covered Plan which invests in the Partnership. However, there can be no assurance that, notwithstanding the efforts of the General Partner, the underlying assets of the Partnership potentially could be deemed to include plan assets within the meaning of the Plan Asset Regulations.

Under the Partnership Agreement, the General Partner will have the power to take certain actions to avoid having the assets of the Fund characterized as “plan assets,” including, without limitation, the right to cause a Limited Partner that is a benefit plan investor to withdraw from the Fund. While the General Partner and the Fund do not expect that the General Partner will need to exercise such power, neither the General Partner nor the Fund can give any assurance that such power will not be exercised.

Under certain circumstances, certain investors may invest in the Partnership or one or more Alternative Vehicles through an entity established by the General Partner or an affiliate thereof, including a Corporation and Feeder Fund (each such entity an “Intermediate Entity”). The discussion above under “General Fiduciary Matters,” “Plan Assets” and “Plan Asset Consequences” will be similarly applicable to any investment in the Partnership or Alternative Vehicle either directly or indirectly through an Intermediate Entity. While the General Partner intends, as described above, to provide that the underlying assets of the Partnership and each Alternative Vehicle should not constitute “plan assets” under ERISA, an Intermediate Entity is not expected to qualify as an “operating company” for purposes of the Plan Asset Regulations and it is possible that an Intermediate Entity may not satisfy the 25% Test, in which case the assets of such Intermediate Entity will constitute “plan assets” for purposes of ERISA, Section 4975 of the Code or applicable Similar Law. The General Partner may structure each such Intermediate Entity as an intermediate vehicle for purposes of an investment in the Partnership or an Alternative Vehicle, as the case may be, and limit any discretion with respect to the investment, management and disposition of the assets of such Intermediate Entity. In this regard, when investing in the Partnership or an Alternative Vehicle through an Intermediate Entity, each Limited Partner will, by making a capital contribution or a loan to such an Intermediate Entity, be deemed to (i) direct the general partner (or similar managing entity) of the Intermediate Entity to invest (directly or indirectly through one or more Intermediate Entities) the amount of such capital contribution and the proceeds of such loan in the Partnership or Alternative Vehicle, as applicable, and acknowledge that during any period when the underlying assets of the Intermediate Entity are deemed to constitute “plan assets” for purposes of the fiduciary responsibility or prohibited transaction provisions of Title I of ERISA, Section 4975 of the Code or applicable Similar Law, the general partner (or similar managing entity) of the Intermediate Entity will act as a custodian with respect to the assets of such Limited Partner but is not intended to be a fiduciary with respect to any such Limited Partner for purposes of ERISA, Section 4975 of the Code or any applicable Similar Law and (ii) represent that such capital contribution and the holding of the loan, and the transactions contemplated by such direction, will not result in a non-exempt prohibited transaction under ERISA or Section 4975 of the Code or a violation of any applicable Similar Law. However, there can be no assurance that the fiduciary and prohibited transaction provisions of ERISA, Section 4975 of the Code or applicable Similar Law will not be applicable to activities of such an Intermediate Entity. Further, in the event the General Partner or the general partner (or similar managing entity) of an Alternative Vehicle structures a disposition of a Portfolio Investment with a buyer willing to acquire an Intermediate Entity’s direct or indirect interest in the Partnership or Alternative Vehicle, each investor in such Intermediate Entity shall be deemed to have directed such general partner to cause the sale of such Intermediate Entity’s direct or indirect interest to such buyer.

Important Notice for Plans. This Memorandum and the Partnership Agreement do not constitute an undertaking to provide investment advice and it is not our intention to act in a fiduciary capacity with respect to any Plan. The General Partner, the Portfolio Manager, and their respective affiliates have a financial interest in investors’ investment in Interests on account of the fees and other compensation they expect to receive from the Fund and their other relationships with the Fund as contemplated hereunder. Any such fees and compensation do not constitute fees or compensation rendered for the provision of investment advice to any Plan. Each Plan will be required to represent and warrant that it is advised by a fiduciary that is (a) independent of the General Partner, the Portfolio Manager and their respective affiliates; (b) capable of evaluating investment risks independently, both in general and with respect to particular transactions and investment strategies contemplated in this Memorandum and the Partnership Agreement; and (c) a fiduciary (under ERISA, Section 4975 of the Code, or applicable Similar Law) with respect to the Plan’s investment in the Interests and is responsible for exercising independent judgment in evaluating the Plan’s investment in the Interests and any related transactions.

Reporting of Indirect Compensation. The descriptions contained in this Memorandum of fees and compensation, including the Carried Interest allocable to the General Partner and the Management Fee to the Portfolio Manager, are intended to satisfy the disclosure requirements for “eligible indirect compensation” for which the alternative reporting option on Schedule C of a Covered Plan’s Form 5500 Annual Return/Report may be available.

The foregoing discussion is general in nature and is not intended to be all-inclusive. Each Plan fiduciary should consult with its legal adviser concerning the considerations discussed above before making an investment in the Fund. As indicated above, Similar Laws governing the investment and management of the assets of governmental or non-U.S. plans may contain fiduciary and prohibited transaction requirements similar to those under ERISA and Section 4975 of the Code. Accordingly, fiduciaries of such governmental or non-U.S. Plans, in consultation with their advisers, should consider the impact of their respective laws and regulations on an investment in the Fund and the considerations discussed above, if applicable.

Each Plan fiduciary should consult its legal advisor concerning the considerations discussed above before making an investment in the Fund or any Intermediate Entity.

Article 7: Transparency of Adverse Sustainability Impacts.

The AIFM, in relation to the Partnership, does not consider principal adverse impacts of investment decisions on sustainability factors because it would not be an effective approach to mitigate the Partnership's adverse impacts on sustainability factors in a secondaries strategy where it is not possible to exercise control on underlying portfolio company investments.

Article 7 Transparency of other financial products in pre-contractual disclosures and in periodic reports

The Partnership does not commit to making sustainable investments within the meaning of article 3 of the Taxonomy Regulation. The investments underlying this financial product are therefore not aligned with the EU criteria for environmentally sustainable economic activities.
